Ottawa, B.C. to Join In Roberts Bank Plan

AG Welcomes Hellyer Proposal

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

The federal and provincial governments today appeared to take a major step towards ending their war of words over the proposed Roberts Bank super-port.

Commercial Transport Minister Robert Bonner this morning welcomed a proposal from Federal Transport Minister Paul Hellyer that the two governments set up a liaison committee and begin serious talks on development of the port.

Mr. Bonner said he would phone Premier Bennett, who is in Ottawa today for a finance ministers' conference, in case the premier wished to start the ball rolling immediately through an informal contact.

He also suggested that he (Bonner) may arrange to meet Mr. Hellyer either before or after the Ontario government's "Confederation for Tomorrow" conference next week at which the attorney-general will represent B.C.

Few Withering Observations

But, the apparently growing spirit of co-operation between the two governments didn't quite reach full bloom as both sides exchanged a few withering observations left over from recent arguments in public.

Mr. Hellyer, noting that Mr. Bonner had accused him of having "tongue in cheek or holes in his head" when the federal minister first proposed co-operation last month, gave notice in his letter that he would release it to the press in order to demonstrate his sincerity to the public.

Unfortunately, although the letter was dated last Friday, Mr. Bonner's office still had not received it this morning and the attorney-general based his welcoming comments on a quick reading of the text obtained by reporters.

"I'm glad Mr. Hellyer has taken the precaution against poor mail delivery by releasing the contents of his letter to the press before I have seen it," he said.

Later Mr. Bonner added that he still didn't know what Mr Hellyer intends because "it's a mode of communications just as unusual as his initial statement was."

But, by the end of the interview, Mr Bonner obviously had second thoughts and asked reporters not to make him appear too acrimonious in his reaction.

"I, of course, welcome the invitation to talk," he replied when asked for his personal response.

"As a result (of the letter) I

STANFIELD:

Tories Set To Oust Liberals

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, who took his Commons seat for the first time today, says his party will seize any opportunity to defeat the government and thus force an election.

It would be an "act of patriotism" if the Conservatives could oust the Liberals, who had lost the confidence of Canadians, the 53-year-old former Nova Scotia premier said in an interview.

The government now holds exactly half the occupied Commons seats.

Standing in the Commons: Liberals 132, Conservatives, 95, NDP 22, Creditistes 8, Social Credit, 4, Independent 3, vacant 1—total 265.

Mr. Stanfield said the Conservatives will apply the most pressure on the government on the issue of the administration's "mismanagement" of its financial operations.

The major concern for Canadians in the next month or so would be inflation and the government's proposed tax increase, as yet unspecified, he said.

GENERAL ENCOURAGED BY PROGRESS OF WAR

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gen. William Westmoreland arrived from Saigon today "very, very encouraged" over progress of the Vietnam war effort but unhappy about the prospect of any year-end bombing pause.

The United States war commander also denied he was under administration pressure to score major military victories before the 1968 elections.

"There is no attitude by my higher command to accentuate this pressure because they appreciate this is my business, my job," he said.

On the war itself, the general said "I've never been more encouraged" since he went to Vietnam nearly four years ago. "We are really making progress over there. We have beaten them to the punch every time. They have been looking for a spectacular victory and we have denied it to them," he said.

Top-Level Talks Called by LBJ

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has summoned his military and diplomatic leaders to a White House meeting on the Vietnam war—a war he says could cut even deeper into his public support.

"I may wind up with a poll of one per cent before it's over with," he is reported to have said recently.

But underlining his determination to pursue his stated goal of peace with honor in Vietnam regardless of public opinion, he used this quote from Lincoln during his toast Tuesday night at a White House reception for Premier Eisaku Sato of Japan:

"Let us have faith that right makes might, and let us . . . dare to do our duty as we understand it."

Johnson said: "It is taking time and patience to win peace in the world. But it will be won if we have the faith to uphold Lincoln's first principle."

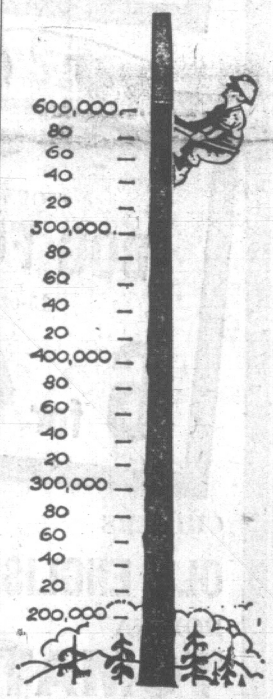

George Christian, White House press secretary, said the top-level meeting today was expected to include discussion of whether there should be a U.S. halt in bombing of North Vietnam during the year-end holidays.

B.C. SHIP PILOTS IN WORK STOPPAGE

VANCOUVER (CP)—A work stoppage by British Columbia ship's pilots slowed ship traffic through the ports of Vancouver, Victoria and other coastal points today.

Seventy-four pilots, members of the Canadian Merchant Service Guild, refused to guide ships in and out harbors. They said they were awaiting the outcome of grievance discussions between the union and the federal government in Ottawa.

National Harbors Board officials here have granted the captains of ships entering or leaving coastal ports permission to pilot their vessels themselves pending the outcome of the dispute.

Union officials indicated that the pilots plan to return to work Thursday morning. They declined to elaborate on issues involved in the grievance discussions in Ottawa.

Carter Tax Changes Backed by Labor Body

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Labour Congress today threw its support behind recommendations of the Carter royal commission on taxation, and expressed concern about the "organized hostility" other groups have shown to the Carter report.

"We are disturbed by the extraordinary lengths to which the report's detractors have gone," the CLC said in 9,500-word brief to Finance Minister Sharp.

Carter's ability-to-pay principle for taxation is wholly appropriate, the brief says.

If the government follows the commission's approach in tax reform next year "it is inconceivable that the majority of taxpayers would be dissatisfied with the outcome."

"We believe that the Carter proposal to tax capital gains is neither unfair nor the harbinger of the death blow to initiative as some critics would have us believe," says the brief.

Without this measure, working people would continue to bear a disproportionately large share of the nation's tax burden.

The CLC favored integration of personal and corporate income taxes for a trial period and supported taxation of the family unit with some changes.

It expressed reservations about proposals to tax fringe benefits and to treat co-operatives like other business enterprises for tax purposes.

PILOT KILLED IN X-15 CRASH

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI) — Air force Maj. Michael J. Adams was killed today when the record-holding X15 rocket ship crashed in the desert after a malfunction of controls at an altitude of 50 miles.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the veteran pilot was not able to eject himself from the stricken craft although it has escape capabilities. It was his 11th flight in an X15.

"We're not sure what happened," said a NASA spokesman. "He just plunged back in."

Adams had taken off in a nearly routine flight of the No. 3 experimental ship. He was launched from beneath the wing of a huge eight-jet B52 bomber high over Delamar Lake northwest of Las Vegas, Nev.

The ship smashed into the desert about 50 miles north of this desert base. There was no fire, the spokesman said.

It was the first fatal accident involving the X15 program in its eight years of existence.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Talks continued today in efforts to settle a contract dispute between Pacific Press and unions representing about 1,000 employees at the Province and Sun.

'I Will Be Back,' Says Shirley As Anti-Viet Candidate Wins

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — Shirley Temple Black, former child movie star attempting a political debut, was defeated Tuesday for the Republican nomination for Congress by Paul N. McCloskey, Korean war hero who advocates American disengagement from the Vietnam war.

McCloskey, 40, Navy Cross and Silver Star winner, faces Democrat Roy A. Archibald, 47, in a Dec. 12 runoff election for San Mateo County's 11th District seat, vacated through the death of J. Arthur Younger, a Republican.

Mrs. Black told her supporters: "I will be back. This was my first race and now I know how the game is played. I plan to dedicate my life and energies to public service because I think my country needs it now more than ever."

SHIRLEY BLACK
. . . 'knows the game'

With all of San Mateo County's 575 precincts counted today, McCloskey rolled up 52,878 votes to 34,521 for Mrs. Black.

Archibald polled 15,069 votes against 8,813 for Edward M. Keating, his nearest Democratic rival.

The campaign confrontation between McCloskey and Mrs. Black, 39, now a housewife and mother of three, was mainly on the Vietnam issue.

She urged leaving conduct of the war to the joint chiefs of staff, "the experienced military leaders of the United States."

In a victory statement, McCloskey declared voters had endorsed his ideas "for pressing for negotiations to gradually disengage U.S. forces from Vietnam."

Archibald, the Democratic nominee, also is a critic of present Vietnam policy.

BIG BOOST PUTS APPEAL AT 89.6 PER CENT

United Red Feather Red Cross Appeal today got a boost from the Hudson's Bay Company.

Its donation of $14,052 made up of $8,052 from employees and $6,000 from the company, brought the appeal total to $537,644, or 89.6 per cent of the target.

Campaign chairman G. F. Auchinleck and divisional chairmen are now making a special effort to bring in the remaining $62,356.

Repeat calls are being made to the business divisions and an appeal has gone out to householders who have not been contacted to phone 385-6708 or 384-0801 to have donations collected.

Stability in U.S. Economy Needed by Canada: Sharp

By JAMES NELSON

NEW YORK (CP)—Finance Minister Sharp, on a confidence-restoring visit to this centre of the Western world's financiers, said Tuesday he prays every night for stability in the American economy.

He dismissed as an unequal partnership any idea of a Canada-U.S. economic union, but said a wider free trade area involving North America with Britain and Western Europe might well be studied.

And he told American businessmen that Canada is able to live within the restrictions it accepted on its foreign exchange reserves, in return for exemption for new Canadian securities issues from the U.S. interest equalization tax, which is designed to deter Americans from investing abroad.

These views were expressed by Sharp during a question period following an major address to the Economic Club of New York. In it, he said Canada is moving to restore good health to its inflation-stricken economy, it will continue to need and welcome foreign investment, and it is not going to break up on the issue of Quebec separatism.

Robert V. Roosa, former undersecretary of the U.S. treasury for international affairs and now a partner in the prestige investment firm of Brown Brothers Harriman and Co., describe Sharp's speech as "reassuring to us here."

Roosa fired the questions of the audience of businessmen at the finance minister, saying Americans were "somewhat envious of the forthrightness with which your government has moved towards a temporary tax increase." A request by President Johnson for a 10-per-cent surtax on income tax is bogged down in Congress.

He asked whether the measures he is planning would actually control inflation in Canada, if it isn't stopped in the U.S. He said Canada can't isolate itself. Its economy is so closely bound with the U.S. that "I pray for the stability of the American economy."

Sharp told the financiers frankly: "Wages and prices have been rising at too rapid a rate."

MEDICAL BREAKTHROUGH DEMONSTRATED IN TORONTO

Spinal Cord Mend Lets Paraplegics Move

TORONTO (CP) — With a dramatic demonstration at a Toronto hotel Tuesday night, a surgeon unveiled a technique that allows persons paralyzed from spinal-cord injuries to regain the use of their limbs.

Dr. Gordon Murray, 73, of Toronto, speaking at the annual dinner of the Toronto East General and Orthopedic Hospital Research Foundation, had attendants wheel in on a bed a 24-year-old accident victim paralysed from the shoulders down since October, 1963.

Before the operation, Dr. Murray said, the victim, Bertram Proulx of St. Jean de Cherbourg, Que., "was utterly hopeless—in hopeless despair." He could not move his hands or elbows and he breathed with his diaphragm, unable to expand his chest.

Mr. Proulx then lifted himself to a sitting position, unassisted, by pulling on slings attached to a bar over the bed.

After resting, he then, with the aid of nurses, moved off the bed to a standing position on the floor, supporting himself by his elbows on a walker, a mobile device used for support.

"He hasn't moved a joint for three years," Dr. Murray said.

The patient moved one arm above his head at the bidding of a nurse and later heaved himself into a comfortable position in bed and took a drink from a glass.

WILL WALK AGAIN

Dr. Murray, honored for pioneering work in open heart surgery and development of the artificial kidney, said his research to disprove the textbook theory that the spinal cord could not be mended began eight years ago.

He and his associates cut the spinal cords of animals while they were under anesthetics to emulate the human condition, then tried to bring the ends together exactly opposite each other.

"My theory was that the reason the cord doesn't regenerate is that the ends are not in apposition," Dr. Murray said.

The difficulty was in bringing this about, he said. The spinal cord is made up of more than 30,000,000 axons or nerve cells and forms a soft tissue which cannot be sewn.

He said he cut through the spinal cord, removed the damaged portion, cut through the surrounding bone to shorten the cord and brought the ends together. This required special tools to bore a curved hole through the bone so it could be wired together.

Dr Murray showed pictures of rabbits used in his research experiments. One, with its spinal cord cut through, was on its feet after three months and was energetic and active after five months.

He said improvement in humans begins to show about the third month after surgery.

The thing that encouraged him and his associates to try the operation on humans was the hopelessness of paraplegics and quadriplegics, Dr. Murray said.

Other methods have been tried in an attempt to get spinal cords to regenerate, including the use of saliva of mice, snake venom, extract of cancer of mice—all without success. The secret is shown to be bringing the ends of the cord into apposition.

He said later that two of the seven patients operated on by him to date had not shown improvement. They suffered from a spinal cord lesion in which the cells were destroyed.

PARAPLEGIC for the last three years, Bertram Proulx, 24, of St. Jean de Cherbourg, Que., sits in a car after dramatic demonstration in Toronto Tuesday night of new surgical technique to repair damaged spinal cords. (CP Wirephoto.)

HUGE U.S. AMMO DUMP BLOWN UP BY CONG

SAIGON (UPI)—North Vietnamese troops hit the United States base at Dak To with a fourth mortar attack today. The series of attacks destroyed two big transport planes, blew up two ammunition dumps and set fire to a special forces camp.

The huge ammo dump is the source of supply for 10,000 American troops locked in a two-week battle in the central highlands.

will endeavor to be in touch with the premier, who is in Ottawa today, and advise him of Mr. Hellyer's statement.

"The matter might be informally raised in the course of the Premier's visit.

"It's pretty obvious the two jurisdictions have to talk to each other to learn the real concern and interest of each.

"My initial statement (last month) welcoming Mr. Hellyer's hopes for co-operation were correctly reported.

"My current interest is in the immediacy of port development.

"My only concern is to ensure that development of the port is not strung out over any 30-year period because this would not amount to port development, it would amount to port delay."

Why the 180-Degree Turnabout?

Mr. Bonner said the matter should be clarified because the Federal Government has created confusion in the past.

"You can't but wonder why the national government should do an 180-degree turnabout as between (former transport minister) Pickersgill and Mr. Hellyer when presumably the same professional advisors were available to both."

Mr. Bonner charged that under Pickersgill, federal agencies appeared obdurate in the face of provincial requests for port development "and it was no casual opposition."

"I think Vancouverites want to be assured that this (Mr. Hellyer's proposal) is the strategy of advance and not the tactics of delay."

Mr. Bonner said Mr. Hellyer's reference to various provincial agencies—such as the lands department, B.C. Hydro and B.C. Ferries—was "encouraging" because it tied in with his own advocacy that local authorities must be involved in future development.

"I think intergovernmental machinery ought to be considered in respect to major port development in the west coast in general and on the lower mainland in particular."

He said the location of increasing port traffic, by truck and rail, would pose serious problems or great opportunities for both the provincial and municipal governments in dealing with overall traffic situations for the next 20 years.

Province 'Appropriate Authority'

For the moment, he said, the provincial government alone should be considered the appropriate local authority because municipal governments in the Vancouver area were not sufficiently broadly based to share administration.

"I think this is a matter which should be raised (in federal-provincial discussions)," said Mr. Bonner.

"He (Hellyer) would appear to have been persuaded to take a somewhat broader position (than previously)."

Mr. Hellyer's letter was the first communication between the two men since Mr. Bonner bitterly attacked his proposal for a $50 million federal investment over 30 years in developing a super-port at Roberts Bank.

Mr. Bonner, in an interview Nov. 1, said Mr. Hellyer's statement was "totally, totally meaningless" because it could result in delay.

"Mr. Hellyer has a great sense of humor and he must have had his tongue in his cheek when he said that," he continued.

There was no direct reference to the slur in Mr. Hellyer's letter but it was obviously an undercurrent in its composition.

nam, was flying to Washington for the meeting.

Others to attend included Ellsworth Bunker, U.S. ambassador to Vietnam, Defence Secretary Robert McNamara and State Secretary Dean Rusk.

Johnson also scheduled a cabinet session for today at which Rusk was to review international affairs.

Rusk went to New York to talk about the war Tuesday night and his appearance attracted an anti-war demonstration outside his Sixth Avenue hotel.

As Rusk was telling a Foreign Policy Association dinner that he deplored the war as much as anyone, police fought off the crowd outside.

In Los Angeles, anti-war pickets and campus police scuffled at the University of California, where Dow Chemical Co. officials were interviewing job-seeking students. Dow makes napalm ingredients for use in the war.

Johnson, whose popularity is reported considerably down by both the Louis Harris and Gallup polls, spoke of the war and his own popularity at an Oct. 25 White House luncheon for labor union officials.

Senator Stuart Symington (Dem. Mo.) agreed in a St. Louis speech that the United States can win the war in Southeast Asia, but said there are more important domestic and foreign problems to deal with.

"I believe the time has now come to establish priorities as to where and how we should allocate our treasure," Symington said. He expressed skepticism there can be a political solution in Vietnam, contending the Saigon government isn't stable and has no "capacity for nationhood."

U.K. Asks Mideast UN Delay

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Britain urged today that United Nations debate on the Middle East be suspended for 24 to 48 hours to permit "a supreme effort" to reach agreement on a compromise peace plan.

Britain's appeal was made by Lord Caradon, who told the Security Council the next few days will be fateful in deciding whether the UN will start the Middle East on the road forward or permit it to "stumble back along the miserable road of hate and suffering."

Caradon has been busy in private talks on a possible compromise resolution which will meet Arab demands for a withdrawal of Israeli forces from Arab territory and at the same time meet Israel's insistence on peace negotiations.

He spoke immediately after the council had heard Syrian delegate Rafic Jouejati blast what he called Israel's expansionist policies and assail the United States for allegedly supporting and encouraging Israel.

Caradon remarked that solutions will not be found in "partisan" speeches but in sincere efforts to find common ground which could lead to agreement.

SUGGESTS ADJOURNMENT

"Before the end of this week," Caradon said, "we shall perhaps have taken the most important step ever taken by the United Nations."

He suggested that the council adjourn either until Thursday afternoon or Friday morning to permit time for urgent consultations.

He was followed by U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg who said:

"What we need is a truce in the Security Council against recrimination."

He said there had "been truly Orwellian efforts by the Communists on this council to rewrite history."

"It is ironic that those who charge us with delay have been the prime instruments of delay in our proceedings and effective council action."

Rusk Talk Marred By Violence

NEW YORK (AP) — Screaming anti-war pickets clashed with police in a sporadic running street battle Tuesday night as they protested a speech-making appearance by State Secretary Dean Rusk.

Police counted at least 46 persons arrested. They estimated the number of demonstrators at 3,000. Five policemen and an undetermined number of civilians were injured.

The violence broke out in front of the New York Hilton Hotel where Rusk was addressing a dinner meeting of the Foreign Policy Association.

Renewing his offer to the North Vietnamese government to "negotiate today without condition," Rusk said "if a representative of Hanoi would make himself available anywhere to discuss peace, I would be there."

Departing from his prepared text he took note of the demonstrators and challenged "those who carry the banner, 'Peace in Vietnam,'" to produce a representative of North Vietnam willing to negotiate.

BUT THEY'RE WELL-WRITTEN RUDE NOTES!

University education doesn't help in toting garbage, Saanich public works committee was told Tuesday night.

There was a marked increase in complaints during the summer months, said development engineer Joseph Barber-Starkey.

Calls were missed or made late, garbage collectors talked back to householders and left rude notes, he said.

He explained that Loren McNutt, the private contractor who handles municipal garbage collection, blamed the situation on university students who were hired for the summer.

He said he would never employ them again.

TELLS OF CONVERSION TO COMMUNISM IN INTERVIEW

'I'd Do It Again,' Says Defector Philby

LONDON (Reuters) — Harold (Kim) Philby, a top British intelligence official who worked for more than 30 years for the Russians, said in a newspaper interview Tuesday he would do it again if he were young.

Philby, 55 who fled to the Soviet Union in 1963, was interviewed in Moscow by a correspondent of the London Daily Express.

He told the journalist: "My purpose became the fight for communism. I was prepared to subjugate everything in pursuit of that purpose.

"That is why I did it. I would still do it if I were young again in Britain today. And I am sure there are such men."

The copyright interview, splashed on The Daily Express front page, followed a long series of disclosures in the British press crediting Philby with previously unsuspected importance as a Russian spy.

Philby, who met The Daily Express correspondent in a Moscow restaurant, said he was converted to communism after his disillusionment with British socialism in the early 1930s.

He said it was not too difficult to get into the British intelligence service—"I just arranged things so that I was invited."

Two More MPs Now for Bill

14 Out of 27 Speakers Supporting Compromise Law

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP) — Two more MPs who voted against abolition of the death penalt y18 months ago said Tuesday they will support a compromise bill now before the Commons.

Registrar - General Turner and Auguste Choquette (L—Lotbiniere) joined J. Patrick Nolan (PC—Digby-Annapolis-Kings, who spoke last Friday, in accepting the compromise move.

The three lawyers all voted against a bill April 5, 1966, that would have abolished the death penalty for murder.

The bill put before the House by Solicitor - General Pennell would reserve the gallows for murderers of working prison guards and policemen.

Among the 27 speakers so far in three days of debate on second reading, 14 have said they will support the bill and 12 have said they will oppose it.

NON-COMMITTAL

Eldon Woolliams (PC—Bow River), a retentionist in the last vote, didn't commit himself. Seven of the nine Liberals who spoke said they will support the bill.

The Conservative score is 7 to 4 against.

All Three NDP speakers have favored the bill while opposition has come from a Creditiste, a Social Credit member and an independent MP.

The last executions in Canada took place in December, 1962, when the Conservative government was in office.

There now are 17 persons facing the death sentence.

Mr. Turner said that while he voted against abolition last time, he had supported an amendment that would have restricted execution to murderers of police and prison guards.

While he now advocated abolition "intentionally and emotionally," he felt the majority of Canadians are probably retentionists.

COMPARABLE PROBLEMS

He said the questions raised by capital punishment are as difficult as those posed by divorce and abortion, other areas of probable statutory change in the present session.

In divorce, the instinct against legislating morals collided with the belief that the family unit is fundamental to Western society.

"What about abortion, where the liberal instinct in favor of individual choice runs up against the feelings for the sanctitty of human life?"

These conflicts had to be taken into account.

The bill drew opposition Tuesday from Conservatives Martial Asselin (Charlevois), Douglas Harkness (Calgary North), Douglas Alkenbrack (Prince Edward-Lennox), Jean Wadds (Grenville-Dundas), independent J. A. Mongrain (Trois-Rivieres) and Liberals Yves Forest (Stanstead) and Stanley Haidasz (Toronto Parkdale).

FAVOR EUTHANASIA?

Mr. Alkenbrack suggested that supporters of abolition also may favor "killing" unborn babies through abortion, or indiscriminate mercy killing in hospitals."

Supporters of the bill included Mr. Turner, Mr. Choquette, Stanley Knowles (NDP — Winnipeg North Centre), L. R. (Bud) Sherman (PC—Winnipeg South), and Hubert Badanai (L—Fort William).

Staffers Quit Hippie Papers

VANCOUVER (CP) — Five staff members of the underground newspaper Georgia Straight have resigned.

Advertising manager Jim Campbell, spokesman for the five, said Monday the resignations are in protest against the policies of editor-in-chief Dan McLeod.

The paper, he said, had become too sensational.

The resignations follow the first regular publication of the Straight since its business licence was suspended Sept. 28.

FIRST announced candidate for president of the U.S. is former Wisconsin governor Harold E. Stassen, who said he will be a "peace candidate" in the 1968 Republican primary in Wisconsin. Stassen, who has run for the presidential nomination every election year since 1940, with the exception of 1956, said that as a candidate he would help create a "new" UN with two Chinas, two Germanys, two Vietnams and two Koreas.

Post Office Robbed

LONDON (Reuters) — A London postmistress was kidnapped Saturday and her sub-post office robbed of £83,000 ($249,000) worth of national insurance stamps, cash, money orders and non - negotiatiable securities. Winifred Pierce, 49, was grabbed as she walked to work, shoved into a truck and forced to hand over the keys to the post office safe. She was found bound and gagged in the truck, which the robbers abandoned after the raid.

The All-Out Effort

THERE WAS MUCH ECONOMIC sense in what Prime Minister Wilson had to say at the annual Lord Mayor's banquet in London last Monday.

In effect he has put the argument for a rational development of the economic strength of Western Europe and Britain, the creation of a European technology capable of competing with the technology of the United States. Unless Europe is prepared to put together industrial units large enough to finance the research and development necessary for modern industrial growth on a scale close to the larger American corporate giants the latter will continue to swallow up the former—much as has already happened in Canada.

What Mr. Wilson seems to have done at last is to move completely into the European camp but in a way which may not be acceptable to Washington. American policy has been for a number of years, through both the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, to encourage British membership in the European Common Market. There has been a suspicion in some quarters, however, that this policy was designed to use Britain as a bridgehead for even greater participation by American capital in the European economy. That suspicion, in fact, has been the main reason given by President de Gaulle for his veto of British ECM membership.

Mr. Wilson's agreement with the Gaullist thesis on Europe's economic future seemed the more complete since he announced he would be willing to postpone Britain's entry into the Common Market until after firm technological links had been forged between British and European industrial groupings. He was endeavoring, in other words, to kill off the "American bridgehead" suspicion once and for all. What openings will be left for Mr. Wilson if even this supreme effort meets a French rebuff it is difficult to say. British embarrassment would be intensified and the Prime Minister would be the handy and obvious target.

Economy Cuts

THE REPORT THAT THE PROposed $75-millions Ottawa headquarters for the armed forces has been a victim of Finance Minister Sharp's budget trimming is not likely to bring tears to the eyes of any Canadian taxpayer.

Even with this item eliminated there is still a possibility that further cuts could be made in the defence budget which would be beneficial to the financial health of the country without undermining the operational effectiveness of the armed forces. The program to acquire 115 CF-5 aircraft at an estimated cost of $215 millions is a case in point.

It must still be satisfactorily explained how useful these aircraft would be in any military confrontation of Canada in the future. The CF-5 is a limited range craft — so much so that another $40 millions must be spent for four tankers for mid-air refueling — primarily suited to meeting the still existing conventional bomber threat. It does not appear to be well adapted to the role of world peace-keeping operations except in the event that Canada becomes involved in a war in which the opposing force would be armed with supersonic fighter aircraft.

One of the main advantages of the CF-5 is that it is available to Canada under the defence-sharing agreement with the United States, which is to say that part of the cost is offset by the benefits to this country's aircraft construction industry and its employees. But if Canadian public spending for the immediate future is to be on an emergency-essential basis, the CF-5 is another item in the defence budget which invites close scrutiny.

A Wise Decision

SAANICH COUNCIL HAS DONE well in deciding to accept the arbitration price of $1.2 millions for the McRae estate and to offer that amount to the owners. It would be a tragic loss if this valuable 132-acre property were to be subdivided or used for other than parkland. As green living-space it will be a welcome addition to the recreation areas of today; a few years from now it will be an absolute necessity in the recreational requirements of a greatly increased population.

This was a watershed decision, and not one that is likely to be presented again. There can be little doubt that the ratepayers of Saanich will tacitly approve the action of their council. The original public vote was in favor of an offer of $900,000 for the property, but the later sum, set by an arbitration board in the face of controversy, appears to be reasonable and fair.

It should be clearly understood, however, and plainly spelled out in the transaction, that this property for which so large an expenditure is to be made must be held and used for parkland only. There must be proper safeguards against nibbling or conversion to other uses—hazards to which many of our existing parklands are repeadly exposed.

If the agreement of the owners is obtained, Saanich council may consider that it has performed a laudable public service, not only for its own municipality, but for the whole community of today and tomorrow.

Land That Once Was Theirs

AN OLD DISPUTE HAS BEEN revived with new vigor in the Southwestern United States — the campaign by Spanish Americans for the return of old Spanish land-grant property which they contend was taken from them unjustly.

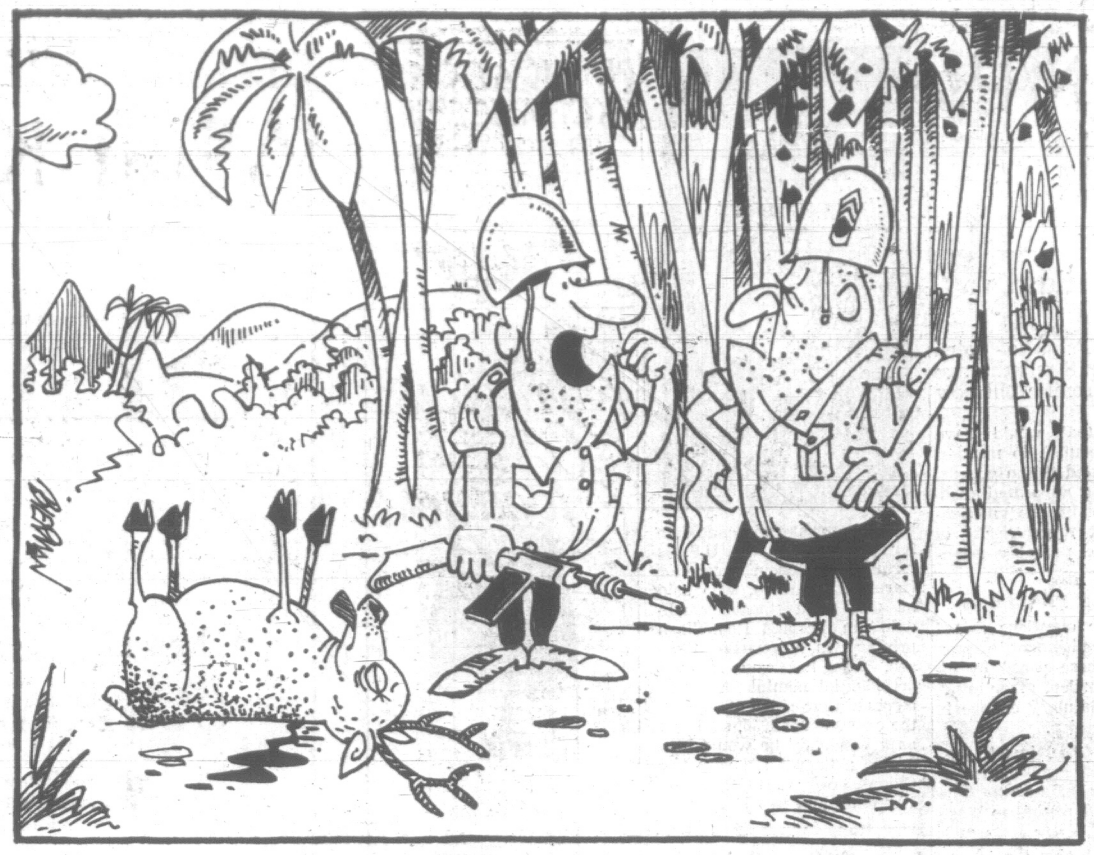

There is a distinct difference between this movement in the Southwest states and the efforts by Canadian Indians to achieve some equitable settlement of their land claims. The Canadian Indians are seeking recompense for land which, as far as history reveals, they did not take from anyone. The Spanish Americans are striving to regain what the early Spaniards took from the Indians.

The efforts, however, have had similar results. The campaigns draw public attention to the underprivileged position of the earlier occupants and they leave the more privileged citizens with a sense of guilt deriving from their neglect. There seems little chance that either Spanish Americans or Indians will regain the lands in question. If, on the other hand, the claims prompt national assistance for the dispossessed to achieve a larger share of the good life, they will have served a valuable purpose.

Graduating to the OAP

ADDING A LIGHT TOUCH TO A serious address, Dr. Malcolm Taylor the other day quoted an anonymous seer who forecast a future in which the student would spend so large a part of his life in higher education that he would graduate just in time to start collecting his old age pension.

Perhaps a further thought could round it out. The uneducated could become the essential element in that future society — needed to do the work to earn the money to pay the taxes to finance higher education to enable the intelligent to continue studies to the date of their reception of the old age pension.

LABOR WILL SET BRITAIN'S COURSE — By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Sunlight and Storm Over Unions

THE labor unions, perhaps more than any other group in British society, will determine its future, wisely or unwisely, for a long time to come. Having been told by a leading cabinet minister that the unions might soon ruin the Labor government, and having heard business men all over the country denounce the workers for ruining the nation, I naturally sought out some union leaders. The most powerful of them, the man who is mainly credited with selling last year's brutal wage freeze to the unions, amazed me.

Hutchison

In my ignorance, I had expected to meet an angry, class-conscious little cockney with a disagreeable East London accent, a rehearsed line of socialist patter and a hatred of the rich. Instead, I dined in one of London's most expensive restaurants with a charming old gentleman who ordered snails, turtle soup, the best steak, a vintage French wine and a gigantic Churchillian cigar.

He had been raised in a poor worker's tenement, spoke rather like an eccentric university professor, retained only the faintest trace of his father's diction and recalled wistfully that "my dad could afford only one cigar a year, at Christmas."

"We've Had Our Revolution"

Then, attacking the snails with gusto, he winked at me and added: "You see, we've had our revolution."

Was it true, I inquired, that the unions were wrecking the British economy with their wildcat strikes, their feather bedding and their impossible wage demands?

"Now I know you've been talking to the government," he laughed. "Governments always moan and groan when things go wrong to cover up their own mistakes and blame everybody else. Take all that with a ton of salt. No, we're not wrecking the government's income policy. Don't worry, we're going to make it stick, and we'll re-elect the government too, after a spot of trouble.

"Just remember," he went on, "what's really happened in this country. No other labor force in the free world would have accepted the wage freeze by consent—none! Inefficient, soft, lazy? Yes, in a few industries. Not as productive as American industry? True. But look at the thing whole.

"In Britain we've no resources except a little coal that's out of date and some agriculture. We haul in raw materials from all over the world and pay the foreigner's price. We're under-machined, so far, and our climate's terrible. All the same, we've got one of the world's highest living standards.

"And I'll tell you this—if the British labor force could be moved into America with all its resources we'd do far better than they're doing. Give us the chance and we'd show you."

Minority Publicized

What about the "unofficial" strikes on the railways and docks, at that moment demoralizing transportation and threatening to paralyze industry?

"You always read in the papers," he said "about the thousands of lads on strike, never about the millions at work. A happy marriage isn't news, only a divorce. The fact is that we lose proportionately less time from strikes than you do in America. The figures prove it."

(I didn't interrupt him to point out that, even if his figures were accurate, Britain could not afford the industrial warfare possibly just tolerable in affluent America.)

"Oh, yes, I hear from my American friends that this country is sick. Actually it's never been so healthy in its life. And our productivity—that sacred word—is going up quite well. Of course our standard of living won't rise much more for a while, people will be disappointed and make a fuss but they'll take it.

"I hear we're in trouble but when weren't we in trouble? What's happened in my own lifetime? The first war, the depression, the second war, then afterwards, rationing to feed the Germans, and now the balance of payments—always trouble. That's our natural environment. We thrive on it."

I asked him if he and his union followers felt any bitterness towards the rich who, despite almost confiscatory income taxes, were driving past the restaurant in their chauffeured Rolls-Royce limousines.

"Oh, we got over that long ago," he replied. "There's less class struggle in Britain than in any Western country I know. Class distinctions, the old caste system, yes—too much of it and too rigid but it's dying. Why there's no real working class any more, only a big middle class.

What about the younger generation?

Best Generation

"The best," he said, "we ever produced. You hear a lot about the go-go girls and the bearded boys in Soho but within half a mile of this restaurant, right now, a hundred thousand kids are in night school learning everything from higher mathematics to flower arrangement. The schools are jammed, the universities overflowing — with workers' children! We're turning out our first truly educated generation and, believe me, it'll make things hum when it takes charge tomorrow."

Attempting a little triangulation on this man's somewhat excessive optimism, I talked to one of his potential successors, a man in his thirties who already leads one of Britain's largest unions. His views were quite different.

Some unions, he said, were outrageous in their wage demands, their restrictive practices and their constant quarrels with other unions. Often employers were far too weak in dealing with them. The economy, he agreed, could not tolerate wage increases without corresponding growth in productivity and agreements on this necessary basis were becoming normal in most industries.

The employers, he argued to my surprise, should be tougher in resisting unrealistic wages but in fact there was more feather-bedding, slackness and plain laziness in management than in labor (a complaint repeated to me by some prominent industrialists).

Listen and Ignore

This young man regarded himself as a socialist but was not sure what the word meant nowadays. He opposed any more nationalization of industry, believed that the economy must always be based on private enterprise and remarked, with a grin, that "the old fogies" of the Labor movement, with their antique ideology and stubborn memories of the ugly past, would soon be gone. "We listen to them politely," he said, "and pay no attention."

The opinions of some employers were equally surprising.

All over the kingdom I heard businessmen complaining that the unions were making life impossible for business. "It's not the individual worker who causes the damage," said the manager of a vast industry on the border of Scotland. "All he wants, really, is to be left alone with his house, his car and his hobbies. He's doing fine, as he'll tell you privately. But when the union bosses call a strike how can he refuse to join? He can't let his side down, so he's letting the nation down."

This criticism is not confined to employers. Many workers met in my travels were just as angry with the unions. "Those lads in the Clyde shipyards," said an electrician and loyal union man in Edinburgh, "go on strike every fortnight, over a cup of tea. They've spoiled our shipbuilding good and proper. I've no time for them."

But one of the half dozen most influential company directors in Britain told me that the popular notion of idleness and inefficiency among union workers was "absolute hooey." He felt highly critical of some union leadership, said that some industries like building and services in general were ridiculously inefficient but had no quarrel with the labor force in most manufacturing areas. They worked hard, he said, and skilfully.

The behavior of the unions is Britain's central economic problem and unanswered question today.

Since their beginnings about a century ago, they have alternately plunged into politics and then, disgusted with politicians, have turned to direct action against employers. In 1964 after a long spell of opposition to the Conservative government, they helped elect a government of their own, or so they thought. But it was this so-called Labor government that enforced the wage freeze on them and obviously no other government could have risked it.

Now the unions are split between those who still rely on political action and those that despair of it. This family struggle within the Labor movement, usually overlooked in the parliamentary debate, may make or break the Wilson government, as it well knows.

If the unions refuse to support the current plan of voluntary wage restraint, now that the compulsory freeze is thawing, the government no doubt will face defeat at the next election. Long before then, however, the government will be forced by hard economic facts to apply drastic measures of control certain to alienate the unions permanently. It would depend, perhaps vainly, on the support of non-union workers and the sensible bulk of the nation.

To Punish Unions

Meanwhile the Conservative party is promising a law by which unions can be punished financially if they break wage agreements. Few if any unions have broken agreements in recent times but they have often failed to prevent "unofficial" strikes among groups of their members, with disastrous consequences to basic industries. This failure in leadership and control is the core of the unions' deepening internal crisis.

They do not believe, on the other hand, nor does the government so far, that the simple law proposed by the opposition will have any useful effect. How often, they ask, have North American unions been seriously penalized for breach of contract under such a law, or even for a breach of other laws? And reading the news from Canada, several union leaders reminded me that Canadian unions have lately won wage increases vastly exceeding the growth of productivity, with a consequent inflation unknown in Britain.

Nevertheless, when a royal commission reports next spring on the whole function and purposes of unions in a changing society the government may be compelled to legislate in some fashion against the damaging abuses of a small minority of workers. If so, the Labor party will split cleanly with its political base and convulse the whole political system.

LETTER

Disgrace to The Nation

This is to thank you for, and to congratulate you on, Mr. Loudon's recent full-page article, published in the Victoria Times of Saturday, Nov. 4, on the war-time treatment of the Japanese residents of British Columbia. Mr. Loudon's article was an admirable summary of a very distressing and in fact disgraceful event in our history.

During the years prior to the war there was an active campaign being carried on in British Columbia directed almost exclusively against the Japanese. One cannot explain this campaign without attributing motives, which is always a dangerous thing to do. But it is probably not unfair to say that some of it was honest misunderstanding, some of it the result of economic competition, and some of it a plain political campaign designed to gain electoral advantage from an appeal to racial prejudice. Regrettably, a large number of the leading politicians of the day participated in this campaign.

When the war did finally break out, the campaign against the Japanese in British Columbia reached a crescendo. I am glad to be able to say that both the military intelligence authorities and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police did their best to have the problem viewed objectively. Every one of the charges about espionage and similar acts had for years been carefully checked and in 1941 the only Japanese who were considered possible saboteurs were being kept under scrutiny.

At the time the RCMP and military intelligence officers stated repeatedly and publicly that there was no evidence of any single case of espionage or of disloyal acts. They were satisfied that even under war conditions they could handle the "Japanese problem" without any removal of the Japanese population from the B.C. coast. They emphasized that in fact it would be much easier to check any misbehavior on the part of the Japanese than it would if Germans or Italians were involved because the color of the Japanese would make them easier to identify.

As I was at that time in charge of the American and Far Eastern division of External Affairs I was, of course, following everything relative to Japanese policies and actions—both in Asia and at home—with the greatest concern. In 1937 I was chairman of a royal commission appointed to investigate charges of illegal entry of orientals into Canada. In consequence I worked for a long period in very close collaboration with the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and thus obtained a pretty clear picture of what was going on in my home province.

In 1940-42 the government in Ottawa was bombarded with demands from the Pacific Coast. Many of these were from politicians who should have known better, others were from ordinary citizens who had been frightened by what the propagandists had told them. For a time the federal government tried to deal rationally with the problem, but soon gave in and ordered the deportation.

The extremes to which the propagandists went can be evidenced, among a thousand other examples, by the accusation made in the House of Commons by Tom Reid of New Westminster that one of the most distinguished British Columbians of his day, and I, were both in the pay of the Japanese government. The atmosphere was so tense and polluted that Mackenzie King was afraid to make any real defence of either of us although no one in Ottawa, of course, believed the charge.

When it came to the disposal of the property of the Japanese I think it is fair to say that those in charge did, in general, try to do their job properly. Given the circumstances of the time, however, and the speed with which everything had to be done, it is not surprising that the Japanese were grossly cheated and in most cases obtained only a miniscule fraction of what their properties were worth.

I have always felt that the government after the war should have done something to reimburse those who suffered such gross injustice. It is worth noting that just recently the United States government has at last recognized its own misbehavior at that time and has been making payments to Japanese who had suffered at the time of the clearance from the Western States.

May I express the hope that Mr. Loudon and the Times will continue their interest in this matter.—H. L. Keenleyside.

'Victory' Pressure Mounts

By LEE LESCAZE
The Washington Post

SAIGON—White House pressure for "coonskins on the wall" in Vietnam is going to reach new levels of intensity during the next 10 months.

President Johnson has pledged repeatedly to stay the course with the administration's present policy, but in Saigon and in Vietnam's provinces, U.S. officials are aware that, no matter what the time frame of their effort in this maddeningly complicated war, results before or during the 1968 presidential campaign will be appreciated—and will be wanted.

This week, President Johnson and other administration officials will meet with the three key members of the U.S. country team—Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, Gen. William C. Westmoreland and Ambassador Robert Komer.

Vietnam has just cleared two difficult hurdles without serious accident. Quite honest elections gave the country a president and vice-president who won 34 per cent of the vote from the 75 per cent of the electorate living under government control and thus allowed to vote.

Monsoon Over

In addition, the monsoon over the southwestern part of the country is just ending and allied military forces prevented the enemy from winning any major monsoon victories.

Almost all U.S. officials are encouraged by the progress of the last year or six months. But while many top-level men in Saigon speak in terms of a quick unravelling of the war because of the enemy's recent losses and present difficulties in finding recruits and food, most men in the provinces are more cautious.

"There is no quick fix for this war," an official in the Mekong Delta said. "We're doing well and we will keep doing well but I'd hate to have to predict when we could call this thing won."

A senior province advisor in the Delta, where about 9.5 million of South Vietnam's 17 million live, recently told a reporter:

Wouldn't Lie

"Two generals asked me last week how long it would take in my province. I don't believe in lying so I told them two to three years at best."

Other Americans in other areas say three years is not nearly enough.

These men in the field are not speaking about the day when U.S. or South Vietnamese units will occupy their provinces. When they talk of winning the war they mean the time when long-established patterns of Viet Cong control (the control exerted even in areas militarily controlled by Saigon) will be ended, the time when merchants would rather inform the government than pay Viet Cong taxes and when pacification means that the people's hearts and minds have been really won, not simply that they have been protected by government guns.

Even the most pessimistic of these men, however, see that the war can be won within a time frame—whether it is three or six or more years—given the present American commitment.

The question is whether President Johnson is willing to stand for re-election on a program involving such a long commitment to this unpopular war.

Plans Given

Saturday, U.S. military officials called reporters to a background briefing at which they outlined the strategic plans of the enemy during the April through October southwest monsoon and the moves the U.S. military made to counter his thrusts.

The enemy was turned back at every point, the officials said. On hills 881 and 861 fresh North Vietnamese units were chewed up before they could fulfill their planned role as part of a major force to attack Quangtri City, capital of South Vietnam's northernmost province.

After a few sharp battles in Kontum and Pleiku provinces along the Cambodian border, the enemy withdrew in early August. His planned campaign in the coastal provinces of central Vietnam never got off the ground, officials said.

In III and IV Corps, enemy troops were able to do little except harass government outposts.

Only in the battle around Conthien which reached its peak in September did the enemy capture headlines. U.S. military officials said the enemy lost 4,883 men killed and 474 detainees in Quangtri province from May through October.

American losses in the same period were 930 dead and 6,396 wounded. Almost half of U.S. wounded in Vietnam are returned to duty without hospitalization.

During the southwest monsoon (which now gives way to the rains covering the northeastern slice of the country) U.S. officials said the enemy's plans were similar to his plans in the same period a year ago.

In the last weeks, however, the enemy has launched two unusual operations and has been more active throughout South Vietnam than at any point during the summer — with the exception of the DMZ area.

At Loc Ninh, enemy troops made repeated attacks against American and Vietnamese positions taking heavy casualties. In explaining the Loc Ninh battle, U. S. officials say that North Vietnam had sent down orders for a major victory to counterbalance South Vietnam's elections and to steal headlines from the inauguration of President Nguyen Van Thieu.

The Communists had to prove, U.S. officials said, that they were still strong and that the war is not going to fade away.

Made Good

One American source said he believed that the Communist commander had reported Loc Ninh taken in the first day of the battle and therefore had to continue the fight to make his report good.

The second unusual development has been the enemy activity around Dakto, a U.S. Special Forces camp in Kontum province. There are now ten American and Vietnamese battalions positioned in and around Dakto. They face a roughly equivalent enemy force estimated at about 8,000 men.

U.S. officias said it is uncharacteristic for the enemy to operate in Kontum province in the dry season. They suspect that Dakto may have been another point targeted by Communist commanders eager to make political capital by showing their continued strength.

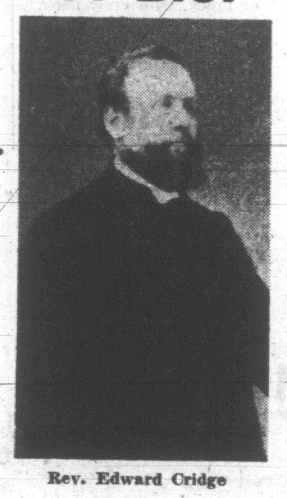

"I don't believe that he (the enemy) can maintain this pace," a U.S. military official said of the Loc Ninh, Dakto battles and the rash of enemy attacks throughtout South Vietnam in the last two weeks.

"It's wonderful for us," he added. "We don't have to search for him as much now."

Little Vietnamese boys peer out through the barbed wire of their refugee camp at Que Son, 30 miles southwest of Da Nang. They belong to the approximately 1,000 families forced to evacuate their village which was levelled and burned by United States troops as a suspected Viet Cong refuge.

Founders Of B.C.

Rev. Edward Cridge

The man who helped lay the foundations of the Church of England in the Colony of Vancouver Island eventually led a revolt and left that church.

He was Reverend Edward Cridge. Born in North Devon, December 17, 1817, he was ordained deacon in Norwich Cathedral in 1848. In 1854 he accepted the post of chaplain to the Hudson's Bay Company at Fort Victoria replacing Reverend Robert Staines who had been drowned while returning to England with a memorial from dissident colonists.

Cridge made the six-month voyage to his new post and held his first services within the palisades of the fort for the Victoria District Church, the fore-runner of Christ Church Cathedral, which was not completed until 1856.

In addition to his pastoral responsibilities Cridge was active in community affairs. He is credited with the establishment of the first general hospital in Victoria in 1858 and was instrumental in the founding of the Protestant Orphanage. In 1856 he was appointed by the Legislative Council to what may justly be called the position of inspector of Colonial schools.

●

It was in 1874 that he made his historic break with the Church of England after a rift developed when the first Bishop of Columbia, Rt. Rev. George Hills called for a greater degree of ritualism in services. Cridge was more interested in practical Christianity—in some quarters he had been critized for permitting Negroes to attend the Cathedral of which he had become dean. He was constantly fighting for the underprivileged. He railed against conditions in the local jail and became, in effect, the first social worker in Victoria.

The rift between the bishop and his dean ended in a civil court case, Cridge being charged with insubordination. The trial rocked the city and Cridge's supporters cheered him on the streets. But the court ruled against him.

Cridge left the Church of England taking with him the greater part of the congregation of the Cathedral. He joined the Reformed Episcopal Church and in 1876 became a bishop of that church. To house his flock a new church was built—the Church of Our Lord—which still stands in Victoria as a memorial to the dedicated church leader. When he died in 1913 the whole city mourned his passing.

THE PERMISSIVE SOCIETY

What Kind of Morality?

By JOHN WILSON

(A well-known columnist with The Manchester Guardian, Mr. Wilson's "Introduction to Moral Education" will be published in the spring by Penguin.)

Most people are more impressed by what they can see than by concepts, generalizations or anything that involves the hard task of thinking.

To them, phrases like "the permissive society," or "the new morality," virtually come to mean a number of things which anyone with eyes and ears can't help noticing — miniskirts, divorces, hippies, drug-taking, long hair, beat music, teenagers.

These are new things, and things that some people don't approve of, so we use phrases like "disregard of authority," "permissiveness," and so on.

In fact, it isn't clear that "authority" has less of a hold over us than it had, or that more things are "permitted."

Restrictions

We may have more licence in dress and sexual behavior, and freedom from censorship, but consider the increased restrictions (inevitable in any complex society) on such things as car-driving, building houses, schools, income tax, and so forth.

We are no less obedient; it's just that we obey in different areas of life, and perhaps that we obey different people. Nor is it true that we are freer in the moral areas of life; dress is not a moral issue, whereas drunken driving is.

The only important change is this: because of these very obvious things we can see (miniskirts), and because of the changes in the kind of authority we obey (not now parsons but perhaps civil servants), people have started to wonder how you tell what actually is right and wrong.

Because it is hard work to think about this, most of us don't wonder very long or very constructively; either we cling to some old values and authority, or else we rebel, or else we just say that the whole thing is "a matter of taste" and give it up as a bad job.

Nevertheless the question has been raised; and most people use phrases which testify to their (semiconscious) belief that it ought to have an answer. Margaret Drabble talks of "the only rational answer," Joseph Carroll of "pseudo-morality which ... is a substitute for the real thing."

Want to Know

To put it another way: at least some people today don't want an answer, in the sense of a set of ready-made values. But they do want to know how to find an answer.

Of course this is more difficult. It took several centuries to answer such questions as "What is science?" or "What methods and criteria should we use to find out truths about the world of Nature?"

The parallel questions, "What is morality?", "What kind of reasoning and evidence should we use to settle moral issues?", are just as tough. But it's no use pretending that we can sidestep them.

We can't know what actual values to have, what actual behaviour to adopt, until we know what criteria to use, what kinds of reasoning are relevant. These are philosophical questions, which we have to try to answer first.

Actually, the answers are not all that hard; the main problem lies in the communication-gap between moral philosophers and the rest of us. This may be partly their fault for being unintelligible, but it's partly ours for just not bothering.

The first talks, it seems to me, if we are really to make any progress instead of just chatting about it or expressing our own prejudices is to make people understand how moral philosophy is relevant.

Anyone who wishes can understand this, without having to be a professional philosopher or have an IQ of 200. It's not stupidity, but emotional resistance to making a job of work out of it, that stands in the way.

With some awareness of what morality is, and how in principle we can give rational answers to moral questions, we can then (but only then) turn to the psychologists and the social scientists for the facts.

These will not only be facts about sex and drug-taking, areas which at best are only on the fringes of morality.

Equality

We want to know what sort of upbringing will enable people to develop such abilities and qualities as are relevant (I would say, obviously relevant) to morality; treating others as equals, being aware of one's own and other people's feelings, being able to form one's own principles of behavior in the light of the facts, and being able to translate these principles into action.

What can the school do about these abilities? Are the relevant factors connnected with the school curriculum, the personality of the teacher, the social structure of the school, or what?

To these questions we await answers. Meanwhile, any of us can of course guess, and parents and teachers who can't avoid taking some action must do whatever they think is reasonable; but it's no good pretending we know the answers.

Here, too, a number of points have been pretty well established already; and the chief difficulty is to communicate them to teachers, parents, and other relevant people.

Psychology and sociology are, fortunately, more fashionable than philosophy, and this part of the task may not be too hard.

The chief problems, I would guess, will arise in what might be called the "soft facts" of psychology, which may be among the most significant: that is, not the crime statistics and the divorce rate in Wigan, but the kinds of unconscious beliefs, attitudes, and feelings which many people have, and which may overwhelmingly affect not only their own moral outlook but the outlook they pass on to their children.

The length of a skirt has little to do with morality although it is often considered a visible sign of moral decline.

Psychoanalytic and other techniques are available for communicating these "soft facts"; but we still know little about what such techniques are supposed to do, or about whether they actually do it. Neither psychoanalysis nor anything else can be used as a simple "answer."

If we really managed to sort this out, it would be a great leap forward, a change perhaps no less fruitful than the change from a "magical" to a scientific attitude towards the physical world. It involves a clear picture not only of morality but also of other fields which enter into discussion of the permissive society: in particular, religion and "mental health."

New Ideas

Here, too, there are lots of new ideas, new practices, new things to see and talk about; but there isn't much serious understanding of what these fields are—what sort of thinking is relevant to them; or if there is, it doesn't penetrate much outside the universities.

All this doesn't mean, of course, that people shouldn't try out new ideas in practice; but it does mean that we can't tell whether the ideas and practices are any good until we're clearer about what would count as "any good."

After this there will be the practical task of reorganizing our schools and as far as possible our society, so as to develop individuals who (to put it briefly) are rational autonomous in the moral and other spheres. This entails some kind of political action, and we may well find that our existing political and social machinery (which exists largely for economic rather than moral or educational purposes) is inadequate for the job, and needs to be changed.

Futuristic

All this sounds rather futuristic. Yet we may also see the possibility of putting ourselves in a uniquely favourable position; not so much in terms of material goods or economic competition with other countries, but by being able to offer a kind of education (in a wider sense than usual) or opportunity for personal development far in advance of any other nation.

In other words, we shall no longer need either to cling to old-fashioned authorities or collapse into a gay but ultimately boring melee of with-it fashion., swinging chicks, psychedelic Union Jacks, and so forth.

We may surmount the tedious false dichotomies between reason and emotion, conformity and rebellion, discipline and permissiveness, and win through to something like sanity.

It would be a nice change.

Outsmarted by Salmon A Man Turns to Grilse

By ART STOTT

On those recent days when a pale sun struck the grey sea and gave it a surface of smooth steel—good fishing weather in my book—I've been shore-bound, cleaning out garden debris and generally fettling up for winter. I haven't been challenging Sid Jenkins for the springs he's reportedly been catching off the point of Trial.

Stott

Perhaps it's just as well that I haven't raised the challenge. When salmon are mature, they're usually too smart for me. I have to catch them young, when they don't know any better. That diverts me to grilse, among which my success has been modest.

This causes a number of my angling friends to look sideways at me, as if somehow I have been contributing to juvenile delinquency among fish. The opprobrium is more than balanced by the delight of other friends to whom I give the grilse I catch. They tell me that grilse are more tasty than grown salmon, that they outrank trout in flavor and represent for them as fine a dish as any fish they know.

The condemnation of the grilse fisherman is largely predicated on the argument that any young fish not caught and kept has a chance to grow into a large salmon and, as such, represent a fuller return from this particular resource. Take a grilse and there is one salmon less for the fisherman, they say. No doubt this is true. The same could be said about lamb. Butcher a lamb and you lose a lot of mutton poundage. But who prefers mutton to lamb.

To protect the grilse from non-sporting fishermen, the authorities have decreed that none under 12 inches in length can be retained. They also limit catches to four fish in a day's outing, implying that a fisherman isn't very bright if he settles for the little fellows when he might be denied big ones because he had reached his limit in tiddlers. And they justify the rulings by pointing to the number of non-commercial fishermen who, if no limits were applied, might seriously deplete stocks by harvesting too large a haul of grilse.

This line of reasoning is calculated to create a sense of shame in us grilse fishermen—even extreme pain if we are caught violating limits in size or quantity and have to pay the fines that can be imposed.

The case against us becomes something less than impressive to a person who has made inquiries among men who should know about such things. I am told, on authority I accept, that net fishermen hauling in herring mash up grilse in the process equal to the complete harvest of a large grilse fishing fleet—if there were one. We, who are not adept enough to catch salmon and who settle for less, are apparently not the chief villains in the slaughter of the young.

But there is another significant study which eases our consciences. Experts tell me that grilse, even some salmon for that matter, expend so much energy, submit to such serious metabolic changes in the struggle to escape from a hook, that they are almost certain to die once boated and then released. This, the ichthylogists of my acquaintance say, applies even when the fish is not seriously wounded by the hook.

"Throw the undersized fish back," they say with certain irony. "The cormorants, gulls, seals or crabs will appreciate the gesture."

They also underscore the fact that nature anticipates a high mortality rate among fish from innumerable predators, from increasing pollution and disturbance of spawning grounds and other inescapable causes, some climatic. In the sum total of influences reducing the fish population, the non-commercial fisherman is only one factor.

It can always be argued, of course, that the effect of one more element prejudicial to the survival of fish—the fisherman—further reduces the stock of potential breeders. Let's admit that as fact, but qualify sanctions by suggesting that more serious offenders be dealt with first.

There is one other point. If grilse hauled in and then released after their fight for freedom have the high mortality rate ascribed to them, how do you keep them off your hook in the first place? The same way they're kept out of nets?

I'm boyish enough to want to catch the big ones and the regulations say that I'm allowed four in one day. Through some breakdown in communication, the salmon don't know that, or don't accept it. Nothing larger than a single jack spring in the last four months supports that conclusion. A limited number of grilse alone have justified, in the eyes of my appreciative friends, the time I've spent on the water.

OPTIMISTS SALUTE 'BOY OF THE DAY'

What's the matter with kids today?

Optimist clubs of North America say there's little wrong that a pat on the back won't fix. The Optimist motto is "Friend of the Boy".

Accordingly, clubs in Oak Bay, Victoria and the Evening Club have chosen six boys who are representative of their age groups. Each will be "Boy of the Day" during this week.

Jagir was born in 1959 in India, about 350 miles north of New Delhi. His family grew corn, wheat, sugar cane and cotton. He learned English in Grade Five and was in Grade 10 when he came to Canada to join a special class for new Canadians at George Jay School.

●

He has a morning newspaper route and has been praised for his polite manner. He bought his own bike and much of his clothing. Grass hockey was his favorite sport in India.

He came here with his family (he has two brothers and two sisters) in 1966. His father, Spooran Singh, works at Sooke Sawmills.

POLITICAL PLOY, SAYS PERRAULT

'Something Quite Tragic' In Protests by Bennett

Premiers who live in glass houses shouldn't throw stones at federal spending habits, Liberal leader Ray Perrault told a Delta constituency meeting Monday night.

Mr. Perrault's remarks followed a statement by Premier Bennett criticizing the proposed federal tax increases and accusing the provincial Liberal leader of kow-towing to Ottawa.

"Premier Bennett says this inflationary problem is all Ottawa's fault yet two-thirds of all government dollars are spent by the provinces and muncipalities and it's obviously in their power to ease the situation more than the federal government," he said.

NINE PER CENT MORE

Mr Perrault said Dominion Bureau of Statistics figures for last year show federal expenditures at $6.8 billion while the provinces and municipalities combined spent $12.7 billion.

"What's more the rate of increase in spending over the past four years has been nine per cent for the federal government while Mr. Bennett and his counterparts have increased their spending rates twice that amount — 19 per cent.

Mr Perrault said federal expenditures have dropped from 19 per cent of the gross national product in 1963 to 17 per cent of the GNP while other government levels have reached their spending proportion.

"Mr. Bennett, (Ontario Premier) Robarts and their colleagues have conveniently kept from the public the fact that they control more spending than does Ottawa and there is something quite tragic in the social credit leader's attempt to gain political advantage this way at a time when the country is in difficulty.

"The ball is squarly in Mr Bennett's court and that of all the premiers to demonstrate some statesmanship instead of partisanship."

Pacts Take Average Six Months

How long does it take to sign a contract between company and union?

In 47 per cent of 113 major contracts surveyed by the federal labor department in the first half of this year, it took four to six months of negotiations.

Twenty-three per cent of the contracts were negotiated in three months or less but 15 per cent took seven to nine months to complete while another 15 per cent lasted more than nine months.

Of the 113 major contracts, 88 per cent were concluded without a work stoppage. The other 12 per cent, covering 17 per cent of the employees, were signed after a work stoppage.

Head of Bar Backs Free Legal Aid

MONTREAL (CP) — The head of the Quebec Bar Association Monday night threw his organization's full weight behind the concept of comprehensive free legal aid.

Quebec Batonnier Francois Lajoie told the association's annual dinner that it is clear "the present system is becoming less and less adequate."

The Trois-Rivieres lawyer said there is a need to eliminate what he termed the "spiders" and the "smell of dust" from within the legal profession and noted the process had already begun.

The call for publicly-sponsored legal aid, backed by the bar associations executive committee, was originally made last month by Eme Lacroix, batonnier of the Montreal bar and vice-president of the Quebec Association.

Wife Not Left Home . . . Also Not Taken Out

MACHADADORP, South Africa (Reuters) — Johan Shacter, 65, says he never will be far from the body of the woman he married in Saskatchewan in 1929.

He arrived here with her remains last week. He plans to visit Germany and then Canada. Mrs Schacter died five years ago.

Shacter, German-born farmer who lived in British Columbia as well as Saskatchewan years ago, arrived here from Australia to visit relatives. He brought the embalmed body with him in a chest.

Contents of the chest were revealed when he told his landlady here that he was talking to his wife after the landlady discovered him conversing with the chest as she brought him morning coffee.

Indignant clergy and citizens of this country town forced him to bury the body, which he had exhumed in Australia.

WILL EXHUME AGAIN

Schacter said Saturday he plans to exhume the body again and take it with him to Canada. He met and married his wife at South Battleford, Sask., in 1929. First he would visit Pretoria, South Africa, and then Germany.

Wherever he went, the body of his wife would go with him.

Schacter said he had no one place in mind for his Canadian visit. He said he wanted to return "because I was more successful there than in any other place."

Schacter, who left Germany in 1928, farmed near Loon Lake, Sask., and later lived in Osoyoos, B.C.

The couple later lived in Osorne, Chile, in Machadadorp and finally settled in Australia, where Mrs Schacter died in 1962. She was embalmed and buried.

Shacter said the two younger of his four surviving children, Mary, 25, and Alois, 23, now are on their way to Canada by sea. He said he has no fixed intinerary, but is sure of one thing: He will take his wife's body wherever he goes, to have her always with him.

Navy Will Sport That '57-Variety' Look With New Ships

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — The navy for some years has been the only one of the three Canadian services to make major use of weapons designed or built in Canada.

Now, officials say, even the navy is losing its distinctive Canadian flavor in the weapons field.

The defence production department has announced that it will buy Italian guns for four new helicopter - carrying destroyers. The hulls will be built in Canada but the propulsion system, helicopters and surface-to-air missiles will come from the U.S.

The launcher for the missile will be made by a Canadian subsidiary of a U.S. company while its control system will come from The Netherlands.

The navy's main submarine detection gear—variable depth sonar—is a Canadian development. But its aircraft carrier, the Bonaventure, was built in Britain, its submarines were built in Britain and the U.S. and its anti-submarine planes are American-designed.

Estimated cost of the four destroyers has shot up to $192,000,000 from $142,000,000 without a hull contract yet being let and officials predict it will go still higher.

The day is long since gone when Canadian weapons came from only the U.S. or Britain if not made in Canada itself.

The army's SS-11 and Entac anti-tank missiles come from France. Its Carl Gustav anti-tank missile was made in Sweden. Even the army's rifle, the Fabrique Nationale, is Belgian designed.

All nuclear missiles in the Canadian Armed Forces are American. They are the Honest John artillery rocket, the ground-to-air Bomarc, the air-to-air Genie and the guided bomb carried by the CF-104 Starfighter, which is of American design.

Canada opted out of the major weapons field when the Arrow interceptor and Bobcat armored troop carrier were scrapped.

In place of the Arrow, the air force got the American Voodoo and in place of the Bobcat the army got the American M-113. Most of the army's howitzers come from the U.S. The new CF-5 reconnaissance plane is American-designed.

The RCAF Argus anti-submarine plane and the Yukon transport are both of the same British design.

One defence department official commented: "Well, with so many foreign weapons we should be in an ideal position to function as an international peacekeeping force."

Plumbers Sign 'Unique' Pact

A union agreement believed unique in Canada was signed Tuesday night after approval by plumbers and mechanical contractors in Greater Victoria.

Ratification of the new contract, based on productivity and cost of living, came from Local 324 of the United Association of Journeymen Plumbers and the Victoria Mechanical Industrial Relations Association.

The new agreement becomes effective Nov. 24 and runs to March 31, 1971. It replaces a five-year contract which would have expired March 31, 1969.

Transition payments will bring hourly wages to $4.65 by March 31, 1969, and this will become the basis on which the new wage formula will be applied.

IN SEVENTH PLACE

Earlier this year plumbers in Vancouver rejected the wage formula proposed by economist John de Wolf in his report Wage Movements and Wage Determinants in British Columbia.

In the last five years, plumbers have seen themselves drop from second place to seventh among trades in pay scales.

Union business agent Tom Wheatley said the new agreement "will restore our union membership to their rightful place in the hierarchy of building trades, based on training and skills."

Mike Griffin, who headed the mechanical contractors negotiating committee, said the new agreement bases all wage increases on rises in cost of living indexes and in productivity and "should not, therefore, be inflationary."

"In addition to maintaining the industrial relations stability that has characterized our industry since 1964, this agreement recognizes the increasing skills and productivity of plumbing and steamfitting tradesmen and apprentices."

The new agreement is based largely on economist de Wolf's report, in which he pointed out what every plumber knows — they have been getting smaller increases in wages than other construction tradesmen since the five-year agreement was signed in 1964.

This was due to inaccurate economic forecasts and so he suggested a transition payment to bring plumbers back into step with other skilled men.

Productivity payments of 3.5 per cent will be made April 1, 1969, and April 1, 1970, based on the increased output per worker in the construction industry in the 1951-1966 period which averaged 3.5 per cent a year.

If the cost of living rises two per cent a year between now and 1970, the 150 plumbers in Victoria benefitting from the new agreement will receive $4.92 an hour on April 1, 1969, and $5.20 at April 1, 1970.

The 40-hour week will continue until March 31, 1968, when the 37½-hour week will be introduced. Construction carpenters and wiremen already have the shorter work week.

GET-TOUGH PROPOSAL REJECTED

The Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health Tuesday rejected a get-tough proposal which would have closed the Colwood Shopping Plaza.

Esquimalt Coun. Art Mebs suggested that the board request the provincial department of highways to close off the single main culvert draining all effluent from the Plaza.

"The culvert can be blocked," said Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior metro health officer. "But I think you should all be aware that if you block the culvert you close the shopping centre."

Coun. Mebs said he regretted such harsh action but noted that the pollution problem created by the Plaza had been in existence for two years.

"We have been kicking this around for two years now," he said. "Why should this commercial firm be allowed to inconvenience the people of the district? IS think it's time we brought pressure to bear to force the owners to do something."

He coudn't find a seconder for his motion but the board did agree to request the provincial Pollution Control Board to step into the picture and take whatever steps necessary to clear up the problem.

Dr. Whitbread informed the board that there was no doubt that the effluent running from the Plaza was contaminating nearby ditches and creating a serious health hazard throughout the area.

WOULD EASE LAW

Guaranteed Annual Incomes for All Predicted

Canadians may in the future have guaranteed annual incomes and see an end to collective bargaining, according to Dr Gilbert Kennedy, B.C.'s deputy atorney-general.

Dr Kennedy was speaking on a Century of Canadian Law as part of the University of Victoria Extension Association's winter lecture series.

He told an audience of about 150 that he foresaw:

- Lowering of the legal retirement and marriage ages;
- Raising of the ages at which minors may get a driver's licence and leave school;
- Controls on pollution and "severe controls on waste."

Compensation for accident injuries, regardless of blame, is on the way, he suggested. The precedent, Dr. Kennedy said, has been set by workmen's compensation laws.

Dr Kennedy also foresaw a uniform scale of compensation for varying disabilities

Controls on automobiles are also coming, he said.

"I'm wondering how long it will be until we legislate out of existence the automobile in its present form."

Jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of Canada will be curtailed, he guessed. The court now has more work to do than it can handle, said the deputy, observing it takes three years to bring a case before the court.

He also forecast a reduction in the number of minor offences dealt with in the courts. "The stature of the courts will increase from reduction to clutter," he said.

Dr. Kennedy emphasized he was speaking personally.

He was mildly critical of the decision of the Supreme Court of Canada which gave offshore mineral rights to the federal government.

"They went out of their way to find reasons why B.C. was not the owner," he said. "They did not advance many reasons why Canada is the owner."

Air Traffic Stopped

LUSAKA (AP) — Zambia will stop all air traffic with Rhodesia, its white-ruled rebel neighbor, January 1, 1968, a transportation ministry spokesman said Tuesday. The route between the capitals, Lusaka and Salisbury, has been the busiest and most profitable in Central Africa, with 19 flights each way every week.

Dies in Bomb Shelter

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Hulbert Taft Jr., a leading broadcasting executive and member of Ohio's famous Taft family, is dead as the result of an explosion that ripped apart a bomb shelter on his suburban estate. Taft, 60-year-old board chairman of Taft Broadcasting Co., was killed Friday when the unexplained bottled gas blast wrecked the shelter in suburban Indian Hill.

'No Skimping' On Road Project

Oak Bay may not skimp on improvements to Windsor Road, council's B committee decided Tuesday.

The original estimate of $134,000 for widening the street from Newport to Victoria Avenue was revised by municipal engineer G. O. White at a saving of $10,000.

But this would have meant a 30-foot wide street instead of 36 feet—not wide enough for a major thoroughfare, councillors felt.

However, only $90,000 will be allotted in the first stage and then another look will be taken at the budget, the committee agreed.

A resident's complaint about the speeding and hazards on McNiell Avenue between Oliver and Monterey will get a reply from Chief John Green.

The chief told the committee that, in the past four years seven accidents had occurred and there was only one injury.

Radar checks on speeds at times when school children were crossing indicated little or no hazard. Average speed during the check was less than 28 miles an hour.

★ ★ ★

Chew Excavation's low tender of $5,424.76 was approved by the committee for linking Hibben's Close to the Saanich sewer system.

Committee's estimate was $9,500.

★ ★ ★

The Oak Bay Board of Trade won't get its requested marked parking spaces on Oak Bay Avenue because the committee feels many small cars are used in the village area. More space will be available if drivers are allowed to find their own spaces.

Parking bays will be marked off on Hampshire and the board will be asked to police its own members to see that there is no extended parking done by businessmen.

Don't blame the lime tree for being a drip . . . it's the fault of aphids.

That's something the committe has learned since a resident of Bowker Avenue complained about the dripping gum from a tree in front of his property.

Removal of the tree was considered. Then the committee learned aphids cause the dripping and there is a product on the market which removes them. Cost of the preparation is only $2.98 and it serves two trees for two years.

This will be tried and if it fails, council will remove the offending tree at the property owner's expense.

Get economy and performance, luxury and low price, roominess and easy handling.

New CORTINA by Ford. Add up everything you want from a sports car. Performance. Sleek styling. Easy handling.

Then think about what your family wants from a family car. Comfort. Lots of room. A smooth ride.

And you'll come up with Cortina every time. Without compromising.

As a sports car, Cortina gives you records like first place in the Shell 4000 for two years running. 25 National Championships. More than 500 first place finishes in world-wide rally and race events.

Cortina gives you a choice of transmissions. Automatic or the sporty 4 speed fully synchromesh manual. Cortina gives you a choice of three engines, all with the revolutionary bowl-in piston design. More efficient, more reliable, and much better equipped for today's driver.

The better idea engine from Ford.

Great, you say, that's the car for me. But what about the family? Ford thought about them too.

So we made the deep padded bucket seats standard in the front. Added luxurious carpeting. Enough leg room, shoulder room, and head space to seat five adults comfortably. Over 21 cubic feet of trunk space. And every Cortina comes fully equipped with all the standard Ford safety features. Plus the convenience of service at Ford or Mercury dealers across the country.

You can't beat that for an uncompromising car. Get up and go Cortina. Two-door, four-door, or extra-spacious station wagon. Or the high performance GTs.

CONTRACT EXTENSION SOUGHT BY CHRYSLER

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Chrysler workers here will be asked to give a 60-day extension to their Canadian contract in return for a company promise of parity.

George Burt, Canadian United Auto Worker director, announced Tuesday a meeting will be called Sunday to allow the 9,400 workers to vote on the proposal.

Should the vote be in favor, and the UAW expect it will, the possibility of a strike will be postponed until at least January 15.

Court Gives Westbank Green Light to Wind Up Affairs

WINNIPEG (CP) — The never-opened Bank of Western Canada has a green light to wind up its affairs.

The Manitoba Court of Appeal unanimously rejected Tuesday an appeal which would have blocked winding up proceedings.

Mr. Justice R. G. B. Dickson, while admitting that this was the first attempt to wind up a solvent Canadian bank, said he is of the opinion that since "1889 it has been open to a solvent Canadian bank to wind up voluntarily with court approval."

Mr. Justice Dickson said Mr. Justice Roy Matas was correct in deciding that Court of Queen's Bench had the right to entertain the petition of the bank to wind up.

At the same time, he said, a stay of proceedings against winding up—authorized by Mr. Justice R. D. Guy in Court of Queen's Bench—has expired and the bank could proceed with winding up.

Mr. Justice Dickson assessed costs against the appellants, Canadian Finance and Investments Ltd. of Winnipeg, Toronto financier Sinlair Stevens and Toronto shareholders John Paul Charlebois, Peter Alfred Charlebois and William Mollard.

Charles Huband, counsel for Mr. Stevens, said he had no instructions to carry the case further.

In Toronto, however, Mr. Stevens said he has retained lawyer Walter B. Williston who will seek leave to appeal the decision to the Supreme Court of Canada.

The appeal had been spearheaded by Mr. Stevens as president of CFI with counsel for CFI arguing that only an act of Parliament could wind up a solvent bank.

In his judgment Mr. Justice Dickson said that on Dec. 14, 1966, the Bank of Western Canada obtained treasury board approval to commence business "but for reasons not disclosed to this court the bank never opened its doors for business."

On Sept. 14, 1967, at a shareholders meeting, it was decided that the bank would be wound up under provisions of the Winding Up Act, with the voting 423,845 in favor and 61,787 against.

Jim Pattison Associated With Takeover of Neon

VANCOUVER (CP)—Jim Pattison, president of Jim Pattison Enterprises Ltd., confirmed Tuesday that he and a group of associates have taken control of Neon Products of Canada Ltd.

Mr. Pattision, also a Vancouver auto dealer, said his group purchased a block of 170,000 shares that went through the Toronto Stock Exchange Monday at $10.25 a share.

He identified his associates only as selected clients of Burnham and Co., a New York investment banking firm.

"They were all strongly interested in the future business growth of Canada," Mr. Pattison said.

He said his group purchased the controlling shares from Arthur B. Christopher and a group of associates.

Mr. Christopher is chairman of the Neon board of directors and said he will continue in the post "at least for the time being."

William Thomson, a Neon director and president of Pemberton Securities Ltd., said he had no prior knowledge of the transaction.

Harvey Smith, Neon president, said he understood the Pattison group was looking for a sound investment.

BUSINESS VIEWS

New Industry Developed

By AB KENT
Business Editor

Production at Greater Victoria's latest manufacturing plant will be a few weeks late due to a holdup in supplying and installing new electrical machinery.

Kennametal of Canada Ltd., with headquarters at Caledonia and Arena Way, had hoped to centre its carbide pin-making operation at a new 6,000 square foot plant in Langford on Station Road, by Dec. 1.

Kent

President Arthur Alexander said Tuesday the plant will not be ready until after Christmas, although the shell is complete.

The making of carbide pins represents a new industry in Canada and Kennametal to Mr. Alexander's knowledge is the first to produce them.

Between 1 million and 1½ million of them have been shipped from here for manufacture into tire studs.

Like the stronger, safer radial tire, studs are an idea imported from Europe and are due for a sharp spurt of promotion and retail popularity in this country, where despite the alleged damage they may cause to paved roads, there is as yet no ban in any province.

Kennametal produces the super-hard core of tungsten carbide that is fitted to steel rivets for insertion in winter tires.

Mr. Alexander said Kennametal has no part of the assembly process or of marketing the finished product.

Rivet-makers are better suited to the assembly and tire-makers to the application to snow tires.

Tire dealers introduced studded treads two years ago and last year sold something like $6 million worth in Canada. This season their effort is about double and the market is expected to absorb some $10 million of the new grippers.

★ ★ ★

Most first quality snow tires sold today already have the small holes necessary for inserting studs. Each tire will hold 90-120 studs, representing about $7 per tire extra cost. Reduced introductory prices prices are aimed at opening up the market.

Last season the installation of studs was reckoned to work out to about $10 per tire.

In this area there is no great demand for studded tires in view of mild winter conditions, but a number of cars noticed locally have been equipped, nonetheless.

About 40 per cent. of Kennametal's total production, including hard alloy tool and machinery parts, is for export. When full production of tire stud cores is under way it expected that the domestic segment of the company's production will increase by around 7 per cent.

Mr. Alexander said this would be due to most of the carbide pin production being sold in Canada, with the possibility of sales in the U.K.

The staff at Kennametal is not expected to be affected much by the plant expansion, possibly increasing by three to 83.

Kennametal is a private company operated by members of the Alexander family through patent rights to the making of tungsten-carbide alloys. It is associated with Kennametal Tool and Manufacturing Co., of Hamilton, and Kennametal Inc., Latrobe, Pa.

VMD Head Blames Ottawa for Decline

The decline in west coast shipbuilding was blamed on the federal government Tuesday.

Victoria Machinery Depot president Harold Husband said Ottawa has failed to provide a Canadian merchant marine.

It has no replacement policy for Canadian navy ships and it has taken no steps to protect the west coast bidding position against eastern yards where costs are less.

Mr. Husband's denunciation of the government came during a speech marking the launching of the last ship which ever will be built at Victoria Machinery Depot.

The vessel, the 3,000-ton Mv Doris Yorke, a train and truck ferry for the CPR service between Ladysmith and Vancouver, slid down the ways on schedule at 12:35 p.m. Mrs. Gregory Yorke, mother of the president of the owner firm F. M. Yorke and Sons, officiated at the christening. About 100 persons attended.

Mr. Husband said, "Although we are the fourth largest trading nation in the world, we have no merchant marine and the Royal Canadian Navy is not maintaining an adequate replacement policy for the ships of its fleet.

"Without the recognition in Canada that it is necessary to keep up the RCN and to maintain some nucleus of a shipbuilding organization, we are losing a priceless national asset," he added.

Mr. Husband said it is impossible for west coast yards to compete in open bidding with Quebec yards where wages are $1 per hour less and materials are readily available.

"Of the $300 million in new ships for the federal government to be called for bid over the next three years, not one ship is slated for bid on the west coast," he stated.

He compared the situation in Canada with the U.S. where the federal government maintains a huge merchant marine and naval ship-building program.

He said with the take-over of VMD by Burrard Shipyards (parent company to Yarrows of Esquimalt) there are now only two major yards on this coast and more work than is now proposed will be necessary to keep even these two yards busy.

F. M. Yorke said, "I think something should be done immediately to encourage more shipbuilding in Canada before we lose it altogether."

Butter Output Up

OTTAWA (CP) — Production of creamery butter in Canada improved 4.3 per cent in October to 28,708,000 pounds from 27,527,000 pounds a year earlier, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics has reported.

MEMBER FIRMS TO SELL OWN STOCK?

Exchange Report Thursday

NEW YORK (AP) — The governing board of the New York Stock Exchange may get a report Thursday which, if adopted, could vastly alter the financial base of brokerage firms which are exchange members.

The report, from a top-level exchange committee, deals with whether the member firms could sell securities in their own firms to the public.

Some reports say the committee will propose the firms be permitted to sell debentures, which are a form of debt, rather than stock, representing ownership.

Two of the largest U.S. brokerage firms, Bache and Co. and Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith Inc., have endorsed the idea of stock sales.

Member firms are prohibited from selling their own securities to the public. Some Wall Streeters fear control of the members firms could pass to others who aren't in the securities business through stock sales.

While the larger firms may favor stock sales, the smaller ones fear they may be swallowed up by the bigger ones.

Some brokerage firms say they need the additional funds, which could be realized either through stock or debenture sales, for expansion purposes to handle the growing number of investors and mounting paperwork. Some firms are automating.

The number of U.S. brokerage offices has increased by 65 per cent in the last 10 years to more than 3,000. By 1975, the exchange expects there will be about 5,000 offices.

The 33 member board of governors meets in its regular monthly policy session Thursday. Any move to permit public ownership of stock in the member firms would require a vote by the 1,366 exchange members.

Arthur Mayse

You know as much as I do about the Reverend Doctor Cotesworth Pinckney Lewis, of Williamsburg, Virginia, and that is very little indeed.

Monday's Associated Press piece defines Dr. Lewis as an Episcopalian, which is an Anglican with an American accent and outlook. The photograph that accompanies the story of his challenge to his country's president shows us a tough, good-humored face above the clerical round collar.

We are told further that he is a conservative Southern Democrat; but when he spoke from his pulpit last Sunday to a congregation that included Lyndon Baines Johnson, he did not deal in such terms as a minister of that political persuasion might be expected to use.

What rector Lewis delivered to the president was something mighty like an old-fashioned churching.

Though loyal to his leader, he bluntly declared himself appalled by a war in which civilian casualties run so high. Then, to cap all, he observed that most nations see the American purpose in Vietnam as "a form of neo-colonialism."

★

I doubt any American head of state from George Washington down—and, ironically, it happened to be Washington's favorite pew which the Johnsons occupied—was ever so dealt with from the pulpit.

Whether a scandalized flock will permit Dr. Lewis to continue in his post remains to be seen. But the fact remains that the rector, hitherto a stranger to controversy, probably preached the best Veterans' Day sermon delivered in all his broad land.

Whatever else may be said of the rector and his views, I prefer to remember him as a brave man who met his hour head-on and made the most of it.

I would also like to believe that at least one highly-placed Canadian churchman took advantage of our own Remembrance Day weekend to challenge the rightness of permitting the manufacture in Canada of napalm components for the cindering of men, women and children.

But if any such call to conscience was issued, it does not appear to have been recorded, and the Canadian protest is left mostly to the young in their hornets'-nest universities.

Meanwhile, the never-declared war drags on toward its second decade, and the Virginia rector's remarks to his church's visitor from the White House are but an echo of the bewilderment and dismay that has spread across the United States.

★

The hawk is still dominant down there, but the signs are plain that his feathers have taken a very severe ruffling. There have been too many escalations—too many reverses and disappointments—for the thinking American to accept the Communist organizer as the bogeyman responsible for each loud dissent from presidential policies.

Dr. Lewis, after all, is by birth, breeding and convictions about as far from Communism as a man can get.

As to where this war will end, nobody can say, although the beginning of the end may arrive with the 1968 presidential elections. We can only hope that our neighbors emerge from their tribulations firmly minded to avoid such pitfalls in future.

The lesson failed to take in Korea, but Vietnam should provide sufficient cure for the messianic complex that leads a large nation to attempt to solve a small one's internal problems by force of arms.

I am even optimistic enough to believe that the United States, strayed godfather to the United Nations, will one day accept the grand dream of international settling of non-domestic disputes, its own included.

I do not suppose we will hear much more about the Rev. Dr. Lewis, a man who, as another of his nation did long before him, fired a shot heard round the world. He may have thrown his congregation into a tizzy, but he gave voice to thoughts that badget many a concerned American and Canadian today.

NO PANIC ABOUT POWDER

An asbestos powder used by schoolchildren and described by Victoria health officials as potentially dangerous, was today dismissed as "relatively innocuous" by Vancouver's senior medical health officer.

"We have tested a sample of the powder used in Vancouver schools and find there is no justification for recalling it," Dr. Gerald Bonham said in an interview.

The Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health warned Tuesday that asbestos powder used for modelling in kindergartens and elementary schools is potentially dangerous.

Senior Medical Officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread said letters will be sent to principals of all such schools in the district pointing out that even short exposures to the powder can produce irritation and inflammation of the lungs.

FIBRES BLAMED

Dr. Whitbread said that even when the powder is moistened for modelling the fumes could be harmful to children.

"Only a very small percentage of people who use the powder might be affected by it but we have to take care of that percentage," he said.

"It is the fibres in the asbestos which cause the irritation."

Dr. Bonham said his department was warned about the possible dangers of asbestos powder a couple of weeks ago.

"We understood that this powder has been used for modelling in schools for years," he stated.

"So we sent a sample of the powder used in Vancouver schools to the city analyst and we now find it is a relatively innocuous fibre."

Cafe Owner Buys Former 'Y' Building

Victoria's old YMCA building at the corner of Blanshard and View, was bought today by Paul Arsens of Paul's Restaurants Ltd.

Mr. Arsens bid $52,500 for the 53-year-old brick building at a sheriff's sale in Victoria Law Courts. It was the highest of 24 bids made by 22 businessmen attending the public sale, directed by the B.C. Supreme Court.

"We intend to tear down the building," Mr. Arsens said, "but we have definite plans for the site. Much will depend on future plans for Blanshard Street."

"The site could be used for many purposes. It could be a restaurant, a theatre or a parking lot."

The old building, disused since the new Y building was opened at 880 Courtney, was to have been converted into a hotel by local developer Tage Borge Larsen.

But Commonwealth Trust Company held the original mortgage on the building for $60,000. The company took action through the B.C. Supreme Court, and the court directed that the property should be sold to the highest bidder at a public auction.

This morning's auction was conducted by Eric Wilkinson, sheriff of the county of Victoria, in the sheriff's office.

DEAD SILENCE

For five minutes after he called for bids there was dead silence.

"Surely, you gentlemen haven't come here for nothing," smiled Mr. Wilkinson. "Who will bid $50,000?"

Three minute's silence followed. Then Mr. Wilkinson asked for an opening bid of $25,000 and it was met. Over a period of half an hour the bidding climbed very slowly by small figures to $50,000.

Sheriff Wilkinson then consented to a five-minute adjournment, while bidders considered whether they would go any higher. After the break, $51,700, $52,000 and $52,500 were offered.

The final bid was called three times, after whch Mr. Arsens was declared the purchaser, subject to the approval of the court, which is expected later this week.

Earlier, a spokesman for Commonwealth Trust Company said the old Y building was "as solid as a rock" and he hoped whoever purchased the property would convert it into a hotel.

COLIN RUTHERFORD

Open-Liner Fouls Saanich

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Does Saanich smell?

A radio station commentator says yes, Reeve Hugh Curtis says no and council will hear all about it Monday night.

It all began when a woman telephoned the open-line program of Station CKDA and observed there is a "blue curtain" in Esquimalt and a "tweed curtain" in Oak Bay.

But how do you tell when you're in Saanich?

By the smell, said commentator Walter Connell.

He later told The Times he was referring to sewage pollution of ditches in Saanich.

'ILL-INFORMED'

The remark triggered a letter from Reeve Curtis to Keith McKenzie, executive vice-president of CKDA.

"I view an ill-informed and poorly-considered remark such as this with the strongest possible distaste," he wrote.

"I believe you would feel as strongly about this as I do if you were chief magistrate of this municipality. Other comments by your weekend moderator from time to time indicate he is sadly lacking in detailed knowledge of the Greater Victoria area and he is given to making exaggerated and generalized statements about various problems in this community.

"I cannot emphasize too strongly my objection to the statement this man made. It is not warranted, it is not accurate and it reflects not only on the program but on your radio station."

APOLOGY

Mr. McKenzie replied, saying he wanted to apologize for "any embarrassment caused you or members of your council."

He said sewage and garbage disposal are Saanich's greatest problems and the topic has been raised on many occasions.

Mr. Connell had made a "facetious remark, and after listening to the tape of the broadcast we believe it could only be taken in that context and certainly not seriously."

SUCCESSFUL SHOW

CKDA has had "great success" with its open-line show, "and I think you can readily understand that with that much conversation (40 hours weekly) on the air there are bound to be some badly-worded statements creep in."

Both letters will be read to Saanich council at its meeting Monday night, as well as a third one from Mr. Connell in which he asks to appear before council.

Mr. Connell told The Times he will tell council he is aware of local issues. He also said he has since been taken off the weekend open-line program.

He wanted a hearing before council to answer the reeve's letter and to "point out some things the people are not aware of."

CITY NONAGENARIAN GUARDIAN ANGEL TO KING HAROLD'S CHURCH

He Gave Quietly But the Secret's Out

By PETE LOUDON

An elderly Victoria man is the revered benefactor of an ancient church in the tiny English town of Waltham Abbey.

The generosity of Colin H. Rutherford, 90, of 1227 Beach Drive, was revealed today by Rev. R. H. Darby, vicar of the church built more than nine centuries ago by King Harold.

Mr. Rutherford has given $57,000 to restoration and maintenance of the church in the past seven years, said the vicar.

"What I've done there I've just done quietly. Don't write about me. Write about Waltham Abbey," Mr. Rutherford said modestly in an interview today.

But Mr. Darby, wishing to acknowledge a recent gift of $3,000 "to buy something special for the church," felt the secret donor should be known to all.

"We cannot adequately express our thanks," said the vicar.

"I am sure Mr. Rutherford knows the esteem and affection with which we hold him."

The vicar said Mr. Rutherford was born in the market town 15 miles north of London and left as a young man to seek his fortune. He became wealthy as a China coast trader before settling in Victoria 40 years ago with his wife and son, Colin P. Rutherford, who now is a city investment dealer.

Mr. Rutherford senior returned to his birthplace seven years ago. He learned that money was required to restore the old church, a project now completed. The abbey sent Mr. Rutherford a silver salver, suitably engraved, on his birthday last Sept. 16.

Mr. Rutherford says the abbey was built at the site of an ancient cross which was supposed to have healing powers.

King Harold came to it racked with disease and was cured. He built the abbey in 1060 in thanksgiving. Six years later he died with an arrow in his eye after vainly battling the Norman invasion of William the Conqueror.

The abbey was built as a Roman Catholic church and as such it was destroyed by Henry VIII when he led England away from Rome.

Rebuilt and rededicated in 1966 by Princess Margaret as an Anglican place of worship, its beauty is famous.

The people of Waltham Abbey also sent Mr. Rutherford an engraved album of photographs of the project, including a statue of King Harold, which Mr. Rutherford's gifts provided.

FLAG UNIT PROTESTS EXPULSION

The president of the Canadian Ensign and Union Jack Society said today the organization was refused permission to parade with the Royal Canadian Legion to Victoria Cenotaph on Armistice Day.

Mrs. Daisy Beckett said the society aplied to the Legion's Britannia branch and was turned down.

"No reason was given and the same thing happened last year. We are determined to fight this discrimination against our society and it will be a fight to the finish."

Mrs. Beckett said the society will ask David Groos, MP for Victoria, to raise the matter in Ottawa and will also approach Premier Bennett and Mayor Hugh Stephen of Victoria.

She said although permission to join the parade was refused, officers of the society did take part in the service at Victoria Cenotaph.

Mrs. Beckett's son, Robert, who is mascot of the society, placed a wreath, as he has done for three years past, and there were two flag-bearers, Reuben Bott and George Babcock, carrying the Red Ensign and the Union Jack.

Mrs. Beckett attended as president of the society with Mrs. Margaret Derbyshire, vice-president.

A spokesman for the zone council of the Royal Canadian Legion said today:

"No veteran is refused permission to join our parade. All are welcome. But we do stipulate that the Canadian Ensign cannot be carried in the parade. This is because the Legion now recognizes the Maple Leaf as the official flag of Canada."

Saanich Meeting To Hear Expert From California

A California man is being flown to Victoria to speak at a public meeting tonight on sewage disposal.

He is Albert Marino, chief of the division of environmental health of Placer County near Lake Tahoe in the northern part of the state.

Announcement was made by Roy Ralfs, president of the Saanich Action Committee, the ratepayers group sponsoring tonight's meeting at 8 at Mount View High School.

REAR-ADMIRAL STIRLING
. . . 'exciting prospects'

FULL-TIME

Foundation Names Stirling

Retired Rear-Admiral Michael G. Stirling of Victoria has been appointed director of the University of Victoria Foundation, it was announced today.

Announcement of his appointment as the foundation's first full-time offical was made by chairman Tom Denny, also of Victoria.

The foundation was established by provincial statute 13 years ago to receive and administer funds and properties donated to what was then Victoria College for scholarships and other similar purposes.

The foundation's investment holdings now stand at $140,500.

As director Admiral Stirling will develop contacts with members of the community who have a special interest in the development of higher education in Victoria and who wish to contribute to further advancement.

"I am excited about the possibilities for the future of the University of Victoria," Admiral Stirling said. "It obviously should become one of the great universities of Western Canada."

HELP NEEDED

But, he said, to achieve this status it is obvious that the interest and help of private citizens as well as corporations is a necessity.

"The more interest, initiative and contributions that can be mobilized, the faster the progress will be."

Admiral Stirling retired in 1966 after two years as Maritime Commander (Pacific) at Esquimalt. Born in Kelowna in 1915, he joined the navy as a cadet at 18.

Over a 33-year career he held a wartime destroyer command, was director of naval communications in Ottawa and served two years at NATO headquarters in Norfolk, Virginia. From 1962 to 1962 he was Chief of Naval Personnel in Ottawa.

21 Offices Hit; Doors Shattered

Burglars ransacked numerous offices in the Union Centre building on Quadra Street in an overnight break-in.

Close to $1,000 was stolen and about $1,000 property damage occurred, mainly to office doors which were forced open with a crowbar.

Damage was being cleaned up this morning as city detectives investigated.

Two safes, one in the United Brotherhood of Carpenters office and the other in the Victoria Labour Council, were forced open.

Burglars appeared to have swung a sledgehammer against a corner, slightly lifting it, and then prying the door open with a bar.

INSURED

The carpenters union was checking losses, but president John Schibli said the maximum possible loss was between $500 and $600. He believed insurance covered the loss.

Thirty dollars was stolen from the safe in the labor council office.

Other losses included $81 from the B.C. Ferry Employees Union, $40 from a cigarette machine and $20 from a coffee fund.

Twenty-one of the 22 offices in the building were broken into. The only exception was the International Union of Operating Engineers.

Several unions, including the painters, typographical and laborers, had no money on hand but the burglars ripped out a wall cabinet and pulled filing cabinets apart before finding this out.

The Victoria Labour Council Credit Union office was among those broken into, but no money was stolen.

Union Centre caretaker Earle Allen said a check was being made to see if insurance on the building covers the broken doors.

BROKE WINDOW

The burglars gained entry by smashing a window at the top of the main auditorium towards the rear of the building and dropping a rope to the floor.

It was presumed they methodically broke into each office except one over a period of several hours including forcing open the two safes.

Mr. Allen said there was a break-in three years ago at the Union Centre but little was stolen.

Uvic Students May Protest Dow Recruiters

Uvic students appear likely to follow the lead of UBC students who Tuesday staged a sit-in to protest a Canadian chemical company's recruitment program.

About 300 UBC students protested the appearance of two representatives of the Dow Chemical Co. of Canada Ltd., on campus to interview job applicants.

The protestors alleged the company makes a chemical used in napalm fire bombs geing dropped in Vietnam.

Dow representatives are due on campus here Nov. 29.

Hidden Jar Nets Thief $1,050 Cash

A 78-year-old women who put $1,050 in a jar in her bedroom has reported the money stolen.

Mrs. Anna Johansen, 1472 Stroud, told police she had planned to take a trip and had paid in advance.

She later changed her mind and went to the Silver Threads Service, administrators of the trip, and received a refund in the form of a cheque for $1050.

She said she took the cheque to a bank, cashed it in denominations of 50s and 20s, and put the money in a jar which she hid in a return air vent in her room.

According to police, sometime later she checked and the jar was empty. City detectives are investigating.

'ONE OF THE BEST'

Baird Rapped Hard For Manager Attack

Ald. Robert Baird ran into heavy crossfire from fellow aldermen today for his Tuesday attack on city manager Dennis Young.

Ald. Baird, seeking re-election to city council in December, said the city manager was not fulfilling his duties and was farming out to independent research firms work he should be doing himself.

"Ridiculous," snapped Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow. "Mr. Young is, as far as I am concerned, one of the smartest and best informed city managers in this country.

"And that is not just my opinion. He has just been elected general chairman of the Institute of Public Administration of Canada, he was the main speaker at their Montreal convention earlier this year, he is a member of the national executive of that group, a member of the standing committee on municipal financing of the Candian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, and goodness knows what else.

'ENDLESS ACCOLADES'

"The list of accolades paid this man appears endless."

Ald. Edgelow said he not only disagreed with Ald. Baird's accusation but also the method he chose to launch it.

"I think it a pretty poor way to open an election campaign, selecting an employee who can't enter the forum of public debate.

"Apart from my general disappointment at the attitude of Ald. Baird I also think he is guilty of a serious breach of confidence. The meeting in the mayor's office took the form of a preliminary discussion on department head salaries. We do the same thing every year, going over the problem in a confidential way before debating the final conclusions in open council.

'RIDICULOUS'

"I can only repeat that the entire attitude of Ald. Baird on this matter is ridiculous."

The usually mild-mannered Ald. Cecil Parrott also took exception to Ald. Baird's criticism.

"It was completely uncalled for," Ald. Parrott said.

"What surprises me is that after sitting on council for four years Ald. Baird suddenly comes out with a statement like this. If he feels this way he must have felt like it for some time. How come he's never made the charge before in council?

'EXCELLENT JOB'

"Mr. Young, in my opinion, is doing an excellent job. And anyone who is around city hall every day, as I am, will confirm that.

"Ald. Baird's attack cannot be justified and it is most unfortunate that he chose the few weeks before the election to make it."

Ald. Percy Frampton said he did not always see eye to eye with Mr. Young, "but that in no way reflects on his competency."

"I have to say that although I may disagree with him from time to time he is definitely a competent man. I do not think we would be able to replace him very easily."

Ald. Hugh Ramsay also criticized Ald. Baird's action.

"Launching an attack of this kind at a time like this takes a civic election campaign to a pretty poor level," he said.

"I heartily concur with the comments of my colleagues. The comments of Ald. Baird were unprovoked and unjustified."

Ask The Times

Q. How does the height of the Husky Tower in Calgary compare to the space needle in Seattle? W.G.D.D.

A. The Husky Tower is 610 feet to the tip of the needle. The Seattle tower is 606 feet according to the official World Fair 1962 guide. The Times' figure of 210 feet for the Calgary tower under a picture in the Nov. 14 issue was a typographical error.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

GEORGE BONHAM
. . . recognition at last

Kiwi Veteran Receives Medal 52 Years After Gallipoli

Fifty-two years after an historic First World War campaign, a Victorian has received a medallion to mark his role in it.

At 75, George Bonham of 845 Burdett can still recall the bloody days of the Gallipoli landing in the Dardanelles campaign.

And so at last has the New Zealand government.

Last week Mr. Bonham received by mail a bronze medallion, a lapel pin and a certificate paying tribute to his part as a trooper in the army of New Zealand.

On one side of the heavy dark medal is a strange picture—a donkey carrying a slumping soldier.

But it touches the memory of any who were there in April of 1915 when thousands died in battle with Turkish and German troops.

"When we landed on Gallipoli we lost almost all our stretcher bearers," Mr. Bonham explained. "But there was a donkey wandering on the beach and a private named Simpson, a stretcher bearer, used the donkey to help carry the wounded.

"Everyone knew him. He and the donkey were up and down the mountainside picking up the wounded."

Both Simpson and the donkey were killed. The medallion is in part a tribute to them too.

Mr. Bonham was visiting in New Zealand when the First World War broke out. He was one of the first to join up and in a matter of months was training in Egypt before fighting in the canal campaign and then at Gallipoli.

He was wounded twice there and sent to Gibraltar to recuperate.

A sheet metal worker, he was a member of the Canadian Corps of Commissionaires until retiring four years ago.

Mob Scene Mars Finish Of Exciting Cup Series

SPORTS

DOUG PEDEN, Sports Editor

Hornets Capture Crown With Overtime Triumph

Mount View Hornets ascended the high school soccer throne Tuesday.

They did it with a penalty kick and only after participation in one of the most exciting and dramatic series in Inter-High School League history.

But sweetness of victory and the drama of Mount View's extraordinary series with Victoria High Tyees was soured by a group of senseless students. They tarnished Mount View's moment of glory.

The happy moment came, not unexpectedly, in overtime. Forced to resort to penalty kicks to decide the burning issue, Hornets captured the Colonist Cup and the Greater Victoria area championship with a 3-2 victory over the defending-champion Tyees at Topaz Park.

The unhappy moment occured minutes earlier when a group of students, objecting to a linesman's call, touched off a mob scene that cast a dark shadow on school sports.

Getting their bravado from numbers, they berated game officials for a few ugly minutes after referee Jack Adams allowed a Tyee goal—in the final seconds of regulation time—that sent the match into overtime.

Tuesday's incident also sparked an emergency meeting today of the Greater Victoria Senior Secondary Athletic Association.

Stan Gill, chairman of the association's soccer committee, said today's meeting "basically will hear the referees' reports" and discuss Tuesday's fan flare-up.

Action Easier on School Grounds

"Chances are," said Gill, "the association will seek to take steps to make sure that this does not happen again."

Gill said, "it would be very diffieult" to take any action against students who caused Tuesday's outburst because the game was played at Topaz. Had it been staged on school grounds, he added, it "would have been easier" to reprimand the irresponsible few.

Victoria's tying goal, credited to Stu Wallace, was scored just before the end of regulation time. Hornet goalie Graham Lee made the save, but momentum carried him and the ball back across the goal line.

Linesman Eric Remes indicated a goal, and Adams upheld the call.

FOURTH STRAIGHT TIE

A group of student fans promptly descended on Remes, Adams and linesman Tom Westwater.

All three later said the fans' conduct was "deplorable" and "nauseating."

Tyees' goal—which marked the fourth straight time the two teams had played to a draw in their four meetings this season—set up the penalty-kick finish to decide a winner.

Goaltender Kjeld Brodsgaard, who was four-for-four from the spot in games earlier this year, missed Tyees' shot after Dennis Somner had made good on Mount View's chance. Brodsgaard's blast sailed over the cross-bar and Hornets celebrated their first championship since 1960.

INTO ISLAND FINAL

Victory also sent Mount View into the Island final for The Daily Times Trophy, to be played Friday against the up-Island champions.

Somner and Bill Walker scored Mount View's other goals while Wallace and Steve Carroll counted Tyees' earlier goals.

Mount View coach Brian Cornell deplored the fans' actions but felt "it wasn't entirely the work of Mount View students."

"I moved in to help clear the fans from the field," said Cornell. "Westwater, who was being given a bad time of it, asked me if these were my students.

"He indicated a group of about 17 or 20 students—who I believe were the ones who led the charge onto the field.

"I looked at the group indicated by Westwater, but didn't notice anyone I knew. You don't walk down the halls day in and day out without getting to know almost every face in the school.

"I'm not saying there were no Mount View students involved. There were, I'm sure.

"It was most unfortunate because the series against Victoria High was an outstanding one."

Workman Feud With Montreal Is Finally Over

By AL McNEIL

MONTREAL (CP) — Ted Workman's long and futile fight with this city's football fandom is at an end.

The feud, that sputtered and blazed intermittently since Workman took over control of Montreal Alouettes after the team's 26-25 Grey Cup loss to Edmonton Eskimos in 1954, ended abruptly this week. The demise came in the form of a four-minute announcement by club president Joe Atwell of the Alouettes.

Atwell, a former director of Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Eastern Football Conference and co-owner of the Als with Workman since December, 1965, said he was buying out his partner's share of the club and that Workman would resign as vice-president as of Dec. 5.

Atwell had originally held 46 per cent of club stock and Workman 42 per cent with the remaining 12 per cent spread out among the board of directors.

The transaction, for a reported $400,000 cash, now gives Atwell 88 per cent and an opportunity to bring in other partners.

Fortunes of the team on the field hit their lowest ebb this season, as the Als won only two of 14 games and fan support dropped accordingly.

●

The fans and news media were at war with Workman as the losses mounted to nine in a row.

"Forces beyond my control have caused me to become an increasingly negative focal point in the Alouettes, providing a public crutch on which to hand all blame, and people in football an excuse to be half-hearted." Workman said in a statement issued after the ownership announcement.

"Furthermore I find it no longer sane or sensible to be identified with a game in which a man's character can be assassinated publicly by a few misinformed and prejudiced among the news media."

Workman, now 37, purchased the Als at age 24 for a reported $250,000. He was visibly shaken by the turn of events, but refused to elaborate on the mimeographed remarks that revealed some of his resentment and some belief he has been falsely accused of mismanagement by the fans and the press.

Workman had served as the club's general manager since coach Jim Trimble was fired after the 1965 season.

The fans particularly blamed him for the poor deals the Als have concocted in the player field throughout the years.

Workman divorced much of the Als following as early as 1960 when he traded quarterback Sam Etcheverry and end Hal Patterson to the Ticats for quarterback Bernie Faloney and Don Paquette.

Etcheverry and Faloney didn't make the switch. Through a loophole in his contract, Sam the Rifle, not only failed to report to Hamilton but managed to jump to St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League. Faloney stayed in Hamilton until 1965 when Workman decided on another way to get him to Montreal.

He got Faloney at a reported $37,000 annually for three years, along with Ralph Goldston and Jackie Simpson. He sent Billy Ray Locklin, Ted Page, Billy Wayte and Chuck Walton to Hamilton in return.

Faloney was traded to B.C. Lions last spring, Goldston remains with the club as defensive backfield coach and Simpson has long departed.

There was another uproar when he allowed flanker Terry Evanshen, this season's Schenley award winner as top Canadian player, to escape to Calgary Stampeders in exchange for lineman Tony Pajaczkowski.

ED SHACK
. . . goes all out

Fans May Not Love Ed When He Decks a Leaf

By The Canadian Press

Fast Edide will be back in Maple Leaf Gardens tonight and the fans will probably love him — at least until he decks his first Toronto Maple Leaf.

Even when he was feuding with Toronto manager-coach Punch Imlach, Maple Leaf fans last year continued calling "We want Shack! We want Shack!"

But this year as Toronto and Boston Bruins battle for the lead in the National Hockey League, Shack is with Boston and apparently more subdued than when he "only had a couple of minutes (a game) to show myself."

Eddie has been playing on a line with rookie Derek Sanderson and veteran Tom Williams and so far has managed four goals and an assist in 12 games.

BRUINS CLOSING IN

The Bruins are a point behind Toronto, New York Rangers and Detroit Red Wings—all tied for first with 17 points. But the Beantowners have three games in hand on the Leafs.

In other games tonight, Montreal Canadiens visit Minnesota North Stars, Chicago Black Hawks are in St. Louis against the Blues, Philadelphia is in Pittsburgh to play the Penguins and Los Angeles Kings are in Oakland.

At the end of last season, when the Bruins got Shack in a trade for Murray Oliver who has four goals and nine assists in 15 games for Toronto, Boston general-manager Milt Schmidt passed off a remark about the crowd loving Eddie.

"We didn't get him to entertain the fans. He's a pretty fair hockey player."

What Schmidt got was the man Boston has been looking for for a long time to lift the team when it's down.

Tuesday, watching Shack cut fancy circles and entertain Toronto faithful who went to see him practice at Maple Leaf Gardens, Schmidt observed:

"He hasn't stopped skating all out since the first day he arrived at spring training.

"He led the guys around the rink the first day and it's been like that ever since."

MOST VALUABLE

Yaz Was Picked By All But One

NEW YORK (AP)—Carl Yastrzemski of Boston Red Sox, coming within a single first-place vote of unanimous selection, was named the American League's Most Valuable Player for the 1967 baseball season today.

The 28-year-old outfielder, winner of the circuit's Triple Crown while leading the Red Sox to their first pennant since 1946, drew 19 votes for first place and one for second in the balloting by 20 members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Cesar Tovar, a Minnesota sparkplug while playing second base, third base and centre field, drew the other first-place vote, but finished in a seventh-place tie in the over-all balloting. Tovar batted .267 last season.

Yastrzemski thus failed to match the unanimity achieved by Orlando Cepeda of St. Louis Cardinals in capturing the National League's MVP award last week.

Yastrzemski collected 275 points in becoming the first Red Sox player since Jackie Jensen in 1958 to take the MVP prize. The voting by two baseball writers from each city was on a basis of 14 points for a first-place vote, nine for second, eight for third down to one for each 10th place vote.

KILLEBREW TRAILS

Twins' slugger Harmon Killebrew placed second with 161 points followed by catcher Bill Freehan of Detroit Tigers, 137 points; pitcher Joe Horlen of Chicago White Sox, 91; outfielder Al Kaline of Detroit, 88 and pitcher Jim Lonborg of Boston, 82.

Pro Hoop Star Goes Under Knife

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Jay Miller, forward with the St. Louis Hawks, underwent surgery Tuesday for an acute appendicitis and will miss three to four weeks of action in the National Basketball Association.

The former Notre Dame University player entered the hospital Monday. Dr. Stan London, the Hawks' team physician, performed the surgery.

Victoria Boxers Enter Tourney

Four punchers from Victoria's London Boxing Club will compete in the annual Bronze Gloves Tournament at Vancouver on Friday and Saturday.

Entered in the tourney are Doug Andrews, Craig Sequin, John Craverio and Jim Willott.

They will be accompanied by coach Harry Morris and Gary Van Buskirk, winner of Bronze and Emerald Gloves' titles last year, who will act as a second.

Nicklaus Named Golf Pro of Year

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Beating arch-rival Arnold Palmer by a landslide, Jack Nicklaus was named the professional golfer of the year Tuesday. It was one of few honors that had eluded the 27-year-old Golden Bear Nicklaus during a meteoric six-year-old career.

The award was announced at the annual meeting of the Professional Golfers' Association.

TO HALL OF FAME

The occasion also marked the induction of Wee Bobby Cruikshank as the 38th member of golf's hall of fame.

Nicklaus, who teamed with Palmer last week to win the World Cup matches at Mexico City, beat Palmer by better than 2-1 in the balloting by PGA members and golf writers.

Don January, 1966 PGA champion was a remote third among 32 players drawing votes.

Nicklaus, youngest player to win the Masters, the PGA championship and the U.S. Open, has already smashed all money-winning records on the 1967 tour.

HAS WON $214,320

His official earnings for the year—in tournaments sanctioned by the PGA—stand at $188,998, surpassing his own mark of $140,752 set in 1965. He has amassed an additional $72,568 in unofficial tournaments and the World Series of Golf.

His official total since he turned pro in 1961 places him second behind Palmer on the lifetime money-winning list—and Palmer was a pro when Nicklaus was a high school sophomore. Winning six major titles this year, Nicklaus moved ahead of Billy Casper, another veteran.

Casper, playing in five more tournaments, edged him out for the top spot last year.

Nicklaus has captured three Masters titles, two U.S. Open championships, the PGA championship, the British Open and 24 official PGA tournaments.

He took the Masters in 1965 and 1966 to become the only player to score back-to-back victories.

The 73-year-old Cruikshank was voted into the hall of fame by its 27 living members.

He was twice runner-up in the U.S. Open, losing to Bobby Jones in a playoff in 1923 and finishing second to Gene Sarazen in 1932.

Dineen Sets Pace For Totem Victory

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Bill Dineen scored the tying and winning goals Tuesday night as Seattle Totems drilled three third-period goals to defeat the Phoenix Roadrunners 4-2 in Western Hockey League play.

The come-from-behind effort got the league-leading Totems back on the winning track after dropping their first game of the year earlier this week to Portland.

Phoenix got a pair of early goals by Doug Dunville and Dick Lamoureux and led 2-1 at the end of the first period, but the Runners never could crack goalkeeper Don Head again, even with six men forward in the final minute of the game.

That was when Cleland Mortson picked up a loose puck and rammed it in the unprotected Phoenix net for Seattle's fourth goal.

Each of Dineen's goals came when Phoenix was a man short.

Top Sale Price For Swaps Mare

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Twill, a 3-year-old Swaps mare in foal to Kentucky Derby winner Northern Dancer, brought the top price of $60,000 Tuesday afternoon at the Keeneland fall sale of bloodstock.

In all, the afternoon session saw 119 head sold for $630,000, an average of $5,301. After the first three sessions, a total of 351 horses had been auctioned for $2,291,000.

Nominator Quits Post In Protest

HAMILTON (CP) — Perc Allen, sports director of radio station CHML, resigned Tuesday as a nominator of Canada's outstanding football players.

He said his resignation was prompted by the "completely unjustified" selection of Ed McQuarters of Saskatchewan Roughriders instead of John Barrow of Hamilton Tiger-Cats as the outstanding lineman.

Western players won all three 1967 awards, announced Monday. Players are nominated by sports broadcasters and newspaper sports writers.

Allen said in a broadcast that he feels western nominators vote a straight western ticket almost every year.

He suggested that selection of award winners be turned over to the nine Canadian Football League coaches.

BRAZILIAN CLUBS . . . . . SEEK SERVICES

Witch Doctor in Demand

RECIFE, Brazil (AP)—Nautico's resident witch doctor wants to retire from soccer but rival clubs are bidding for his services.

And if Edu, the black magician behind Nautico's state championship, decides to stay in sports, he can triple his pay just by signing on the dotted line.

The clubs bidding for his services are Esporte and Santa Cruz, each offering a monthly salary of $180 plus bonuses. Nautico has been paying Edu $57 monthly.

Recife soccer teams traditionally have relied on witch doctors to help them out.

Santa Cruz hopes Edu will join the team when his unwritten contract with Nautico runs out at the end of the season, bringing his bottles, powders, herbs, candles and talismans to its clubhouse.

But Edu says being a resident witch doctor for Nautico has been "a bitter experience," and he wants to go back to more conventional magic.

Nautico's manager Duque isn't worried.

His own contract with Nautico also runs out at the end of the season.

But, in the meantime, he's taking no chances and follows one of Edu's more bizarre pieces of advice—he always wears a red sock on the left foot and a white one on the right when Nautico plays.

UNPREDICTABLE JOHN ISENBARGER DRIVES COACH CRAZY . . . . . . AS INDIANA BIDS FOR ROSE BOWL BERTH

Punt, Johnny, Punt . . . Please Punt for Johnny Pont!

By UP INTERNATIONAL

Back home in Indiana, the world's proudest mother doesn't care a lick whether her son punts or not, she still loves him.

She readily understands why people keep hollering at him, "punt, John, punt!" and occasionally feels like joining in herself, but she draws the line when any one calls him contrary or ungovernable.

"He's a good boy and generally listens to what you tell him," says Mrs Jean Isenbarger at her Muncie, Ind., home where the telephone keeps jangling off the hook because everybody wants to talk to her about her incredible son.

John Isenbarger, 19, plays halfback for the unbeaten and unbelievable Indiana and has the world by the shoulder pads.

He runs, passes and punts—when he feels like — for the Hoosiers and as if he wasn't celebrated enough already, he scored a touchdown Saturday with less than three minutes left for a 14-13 victory over Michigan State at East Lansing, Mich.

The win was the eighth straight for the Hoosiers, left them and Wyoming the only major unbeaten college teams in the nation, kept them in the running for a new year's date in the Rose Bowl and furthered the amazing legend of John Isenbarger.

John behaved himself against Michigan State. In other words he punted when he said he would. He doesn't always do that.

Three times so far this season sophomore John Isenbarger has driven coach Johnny Pont half out of his skull by suddenly deciding to run on fourth down from punt formation instead of kicking like they called it in the huddle.

He failed twice and it hurt the Hoosiers, but he remembers best the one time he succeeded.

Indiana rooters, who can't ever recall when one of their teams won as many as four games in one season much less eight, have been bitten by the Rose Bowl bug — Minnesota is still a contender — and hope John Isenbarger will help them get there.

They have taken to wearing buttons which say, "Punt, John, Punt."

A couple of weeks ago before the Arizona game, Isenbarger's mother wired him:

"Dear John. Please Punt for John Pont.

Mrs Isenbarger can't see where her son has done anything so dreadful. Even if he did run when he was supposed to punt.

"Other boys on the team are a little unorthodox, too," she says. "I think it's because they're trying to win so badly.

"I hold my breath when John goes back to punt. If he runs and is successful, I give him credit for trying something different. I understand a boy at Purdue tried the same thing and was suspended.

"I'm not sure, but I think John occasionally has been given the option of either punting or running. The times he did run when he was supposed to punt, I think he was only thinking in terms of ball possession. He was only trying to hang on to the ball for the Hoosiers.

"I'll say this much. This all comes as a big surprise to us. He never did this in high school. And I certainly wouldn't call him a rebel. We instruct him to be in at midnight and maybe he's a few minutes late, but he generally listens to his father and me."

John is one of three boys in the Isenbarger household. The other two are Tom, 14, and Philip, 9, and they think their big brother is greater than John Unitas and Joe Namath put together.

Mrs Isenbarger feels pretty much the same way.

"He's my boy," she says proudly, "and I love him whether he runs or punts."

Basketball's Rich Still Eat Heartily

ALLISON DAYSMITH
. . . best in Canada

It was another "milk-and-honey" meal for the rich Tuesday. The poor stayed on the bread line in the Senior Men's Basketball League.

Labatts and Colony Inn both stayed on the heels of front-running Independents after comparatively easy victories over the league trailers, Red Lions and Farmer Construction.

The Labs, showing good depth, rambled to a 65-40 victory over Lions while Colony mowed down Farmers 66-42 in games at Oak Bay High.

Joe Patterson, Gordie Jones and John Devlin led the scoring parade as Labs handed Lions a ninth straight setback. Patterson and Jones each checked in with 18 points while Devlin, in double figures for a second straight game, dropped 11.

SHARP SHOOTERS

Helping Labatts make it easy was their accuracy from the foul line. They hit for 21 out of 30 points from the free-throw spot while Lions managed only six free shots.

Colony managed only four foul shots in the "tamer" second game, but proved sharper afield with 31 baskets. Leading the attack were Jim Cunningham, with 14 points, and Bill Wilson and Wayne Allen, each with 10.

Fred Gubbels was the game's high man with 18 in a losing cause.

Former Victorians Dominate Ratings

They're living elsewhere now, but three Victoria-reared players dominate the Canadian Badminton Association's women's rankings.

Allison Daysmith, former Canadian junior champion now attending University of British Columbia, draws the coveted first seed. Next in line are two other players who also blossomed at the old Victoria Racquets Club.

Sharon Whittaker, now living in Toronto, and Judy Humber Rollick, residing in Vancouver, are ranked second and third, respectively.

And, hardly a surprise, Vancouver's Wayne Macdonnell continues as top-rated male performer.

Following Mcdonnell, in order, are Bruce Rollick of Vancouver, Jamie Paulson of Calgary, Yves Pare of Montreal, Roe Riley of Calgary and John Holehouse of Toronto.

Fourth in the women's rankings is Sherie Boyse of Calgary, followed by Dorothy Tinline of Toronto and Sandra Kolb of Calgary.

Miss Boyse and Paulson are ranked tops in the junior division, ahead of Calgary's Miss Kolb and Bob Dick.

JERRY WOLMAN

Wolman Asks for Time To Save Sports Empire

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Jerry Wolman once said it took friendly creditors and friendly banks to raise him from a bankrupt grocer to a multimillionnaire sportsman and financier. Tuesday, he called on both to keep his diversified empire from tottering.

Wolman sold his interest in Philadelphia Flyers of The National Hockey League several weeks ago, but still owns the new $12,000,000 Spectrum where the club plays.

The owner of Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League confirmed at a news conference he was in financial trouble because of a cash shortage and time.

★ ★ ★

Surrounded by his lawyers and business manager, the chain-smoking Wolman said:

"My assets are many, many, many dollars more than my liabilities. I can get the cash if I get the time."

A report accountants prepared for Wolman listed his total assets at $92,182,946 and liabilities at $85,321,440. He said he sent the report to his three creditors, asking them to wait for their money.

Wolman said a turndown by three creditors could force him into court for a reorganization. Then, he said, it would take three to five years for anyone to get a dime, and in the end they would receive less than two cents on the dollar. Under his proposal, he would pay two per cent now and the balance within 18 months.

"I am submitting a plan for your consideration," his letter said. "I assure you it is my personal pledge that I will devote all my time and energy to obtain proper financing and selling certain assets as outlined."

★ ★ ★

He said all his assets but the Eagles were for sale, including the new $12,000,000 Spectrum.

He said only bankruptcy would force sale of the Eagles, valued by Wolman at $15,000,000.

Listed among Wolman's assets are the Eagles, the Spectrum, Philadelphia's Connie Mack Stadium, valued at $1,200,000; The Yellow Cab companies of Philadelphia and Camden, N.J., $8,500,000; loans and notes receivable of $1,600,000, stocks and bonds at $29,570, and his home in Chevy Chase, Md., at $20,000.

Liabilities show $25,062,534 first mortgages on real estate, secured creditors $38,151,047, unpaid taxes, $314,670 and unsecured creditors, $21,793,193.

Belkin Springs Upset Triumph

BRISBANE (Reuters) — Canada's Mike Belkin reached the men's singles quarter-finals of the Queensland tennis championships by scoring a surprise 9-7, 6-4 victory over eighth-seeded Australian Tony Addison here today.

Belkin, a native of Montreal, took advantage of Addison's poor form in the early stages of their third-round match and kept the pressure on in the second set.

Claremont Girls Win

Chris Pearson finished in first place Tuesday at Mount Douglas to pace Claremont to a team victory in a girls' cross country race.

Miss Pearson completed the 1.6-mile course in 11 minutes, one second, 10 seconds ahead of Wendy Thompson, the lone Victoria High entry.

Under the reverse system of scoring, Claremont finished with 10 points and runner-up Mount Douglas had 19.

Ann Longdale of Mount Doug was third, followed by Claremont runners Mona McMillan, Elizabeth Lax and Karen Bellavance.

LION CLAN GOBBLES CUP DUCATS

VANCOUVER (CP)—Denny Veitch, general manager of the British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League, said Monday his club's allotment of Grey Cup tickets was sold out within hours of going on sale.

"We offered our 600 tickets to club members, and they were snapped up immediately," he said. "I guess everybody's going to the game."

$100 Award To Woman For Snapshot

One of the 1,000 entries in the Times Amateur Snapshot Contest has won a $100 national award.

Mrs. A. A. Derbyshire, 2090 Penzance, took the Canadian cash award with a snapshot of her grandson, caught with lathered face and razor as he imitated his father.

Seven $100 prizes were given to Canadians for merit and Mrs. Derbyshire was the only B.C. winner.

TRIP TO MEXICO

One Canadian was among the winners of the five top travel prizes. Claude Chamberlain, 24-year-old Laval University student, won a $2,700 trip to Mexico.

The contest ran in the Victoria Times for seven weeks this summer and four top pictures, chosen from the weekly winners, were sent to Rochester, New York, for judging.

In addition to Mrs. Derbyshire, merit certificates were awarded Felix Klardie, 2753 Strathmore; Sandra Seivert, 8452 Lawrence, and Robin Spear, 103 View Royal.

They were among more than a quarter of a million entered in the awards. More than 650 reached the finals in Rochester.

India Wants Time To Repay Big Debts

PARIS (Reuters) — India has reported progress in its fight against food shortages and in its export drive, but asked creditor nations for a delay in repaying $400,000,000 in debts.

India's finance ministry secretary, Govindan Nair, surveyed his country's economic situation at the opening session of an international aid-to-India constortium.

Bells by the Ton For House Start

Five tons of bells will ring in the opening round of the next provincial political battle.

Works Minister W. N. Chant today said the 49 bells should be in place and tuned in their museum-archives site tower in time for the opening of the legislative session Jan. 25.

He said he had hoped the carillon, donated to the province by The Netherlands Centennial Committee, would have been ready a month earlier so it could peal a Christmas Day concert.

"However, there have been a number of delays which couldn't be avoided and we will have to have an expert tuner work on them after installation," he said.

"I am sorry to say they won't be ready for Christmas but our objective now is the opening of the House."

The bells will be mounted in a new tower of concrete pylons about 88 feet above ground.

They weigh a total of 10,613 pounds. The heaviest—traditionally referred to as the "bourdon"—will weigh 1,910 pounds while the smallest will weigh 20 pounds.

The bells are being manufactured by Petit and Fritsen in Holland and one of their experts will accompany them to tune the carillon after installation.

HONORED for neurosurgical work is Dr. Wilder Penfield, 76, of Montreal, who receives science award from The Society for the Family of Man. Group presents awards in various categories to experts in more than 100 countries.

'Ban the Napalm, Not 4-Letter Words'

MONTREAL (CP) — Paul Krassner, editor of the U.S. magazine The Realist, said Monday censorship is "silly" and napalm, not four-letter words, should be banned.

Krassner's magazine published a fictional article purporting to deal with events following the assassination of U.S. President John Kennedy. Reprints of the article in the McGill Daily and a partial reprinting by the University of Toronto's undergraduate newspaper Varsity have sparked a furore on both campuses.

Speaking to students at Sir George Williams University, Krassner said censorship is silly and "obscene because it violates the whole concept of education which is to teach students to think for themselves."

Krassner conceded his article has been "very outrageous," and while many people understand the story as satire and laughed at it, "a lot of intelligent people believe it."

He said he felt reactions to his article have been more important than the article itself. "I'm concerned more about the events to which it was a catalyst."

His motives, and apparently those of McGill daily columnist John Fekete who reprinted the article, had been to "stir people up and make them think."

Formosa Agents Die

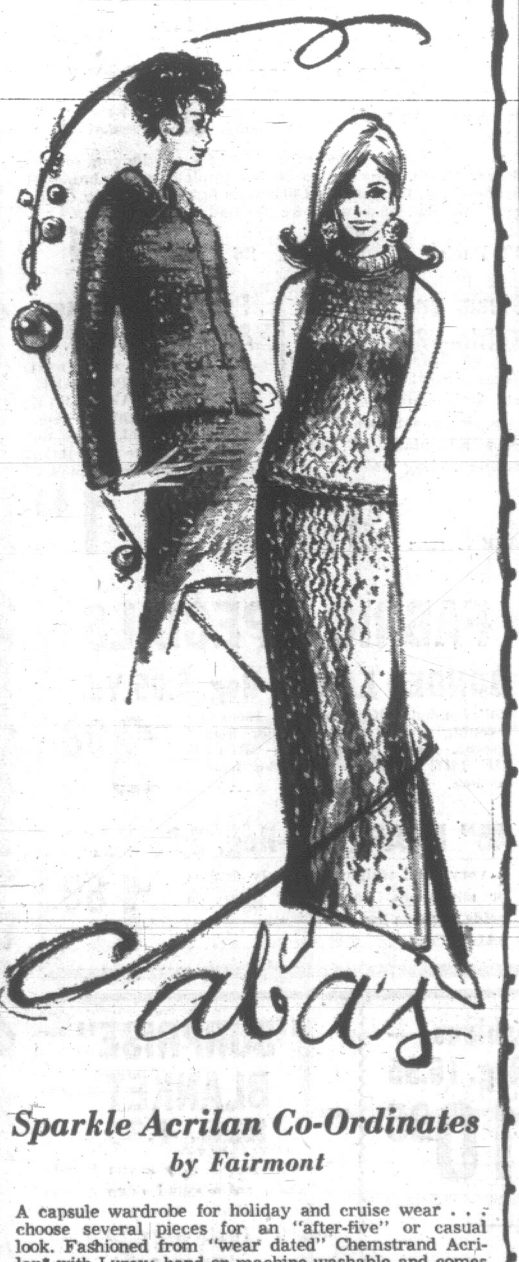

TAIPEI (AP) — Nationalist China's Defence Minister Chiang Ching-kuo acknowledged in a report published Sunday that many Nationalist agents from Formosa had been killed by Chinese Communists in mainland China during the last three months. He did not disclose how many, saying only they had been caught during intensified underground activities.

Pay: Miserable Work: Difficult Bonus: Satisfaction

By DON VIPOND
Education Reporter

If you want a job with a difference, have a taste for travel and an urge to contribute in a way hard to put a name to, you might qualify:

If you are a mechanic or a manager, a secretary or an agriculturalist, a doctor or a computer technician, you might be the man or woman to fit the bill.

The term of employment is two years.

The place may be Singapore, Thailand, India, Malaysia or Brunei on Borneo.

The work—teaching people what you know best.

The pay?

By Canadian standards, probably miserable. But it will be enough to live on. And you may find a bonus in satisfaction it's hard to put a dollar value to.

CUSO is on its annual recruiting drive.

●

Don't let the name Canadian University Service Overseas put you off. It's people with skills, not just degrees, that are needed.

Almost 1,000 Canadians from all walks of life are working overseas right now as a result of this organization. CUSO finds them, trains them, pays their travel expenses and gives them a $500 resettlement grant when they return to Canada.

But while abroad they are employed by the government of the country they are in and paid the same scale as a citizen of that country doing the same job.

Les Johnson, 23, of Minnedosa, Man., graduated from Brandon College in English and Political Science in 1965. He has spent the past two years teaching in India.

His salary was about $25 a month. It was enough, he says, to get by. He didn't suffer.

●

Now he is interim director of Asian programs for CUSO, in Victoria to help in the annual search for more skilled volunteers.

"I don't think idealism is the monopoly of young people," he said Tuesday. "And certainly the majority of skills needed in these countries are found in people over 25."

One volunteer for example is an engineer, formerly a Maritime civil servant, who is now helping build bridges in Uganda. He is 80.

"What we need are people who can do the job, whatever the job may be."

The job in general is passing along skills to countries which need to learn swiftly in the gap between the haves and have-nots is not going to fracture into something more serious than social distress.

●

Particular jobs?

CUSO has openings for three tugboat captains. There is a need for two commercial fishermen.

There is always a need for the obvious categories—nurses, teachers, technicians.

CUSO sometimes sends married couples but both must be able to contribute.

A total of 13 persons from Victoria took on jobs with a difference last year. Now the local committee wants to hear from people who would go abroad next spring.

They are asked to contact Mrs. Shirley Baker or Dr. Peter Smith at 477-6911 or Stephen Bigsby at 477-3611.

Carrier Fire Kills Crewmen

PORTSMOUTH, England (AP) — Fire raged for nearly six hours below deck on the British aircraft carrier Victorious in drydock Saturday and the defence minister said one crew member was killed.

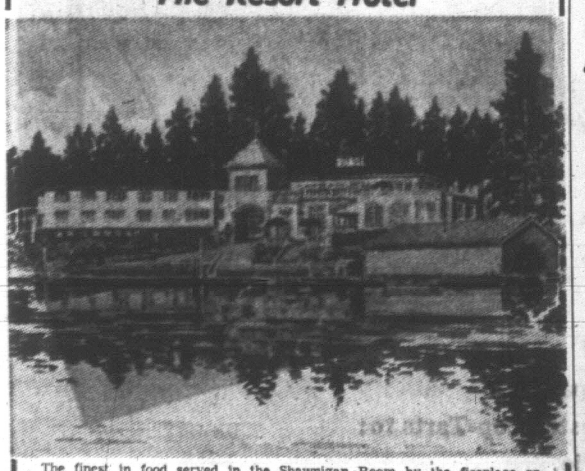

The 30,500-ton vessel was being refitted and half her normal 2,000-man crew was aboard.

Soviet Best Friend

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet leader said Monday North Vietnam receives 80 to 85 per cent of all its military and economic aid from the Soviet Union, informed sources reported.

Heart Of School Is Library

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Like most educators, H. A. Batey, principal of the Institute of Adult Studies and J. G. Darling, an English teacher who doubles as librarian there, believe that the heart of a place of learning is in its library.

Forbes

That is why they are keen to see a good selection of books made available to the students in their school.

Already they have a start. With a modest budget made up of some dollars found by the Greater Victoria School Board and money donations from interested friends, they have been able to buy a small number of needed books.

★ ★ ★

A drive organized soon after the institute opened last year added others. Gifts from organizations and individuals who believe the institute is meeting an urgent need in the community increased the tally.

Outside of this however, they are up against a blank wall. There is no money available from any recognized source (capital grants, for instance) for a library in a school for adults.

Right now the institute has 468 students registered in its day classes . . . In all age groups. There are 900 in the evening classes.

According to Mr. Darling, a library should have on its shelves an average of 10 books to a student. At present he has only about 3,600.

★ ★ ★

The room assigned for library use was a stack room when the Ewing Building (in which the institute is located) was a part of the University of Victoria Lansdowne Campus. It is big and airy and shelved on three sides. At present more than half those shelves are empty.

This means that more often than not Principal Batey and Librarian Darling must urge their students to "go out and search" in other libraries for the books they need to supplement their studies.

"No matter how easy it is to locate the information it is somewhat short of an ideal situation," Mr. Batey points out. "Especially when a student must spend several bus fares and many hours in that search instead of being able to get on with the job right in the institute building."

★ ★ ★

What the institute seeks, he says, is an adequate minimal library. "We're not asking for stars or for pie in the sky. All we'd like to see is a library that covers our courses efficiently . . . and with enough resource material so our students don't have to spend hours in other places hunting for it."

What type of books are most needed? Naturally there are priorities especially when money from the budget is being used. Mr. Darling lists the humanities as being high on the list. And he includes anything from the main stream of English literature modern world history and up-to-date Canadian history.

He adds good quality fiction, too and the better magazines, especially those that could be useful in the various courses. He does stress, however, that these be current copies . . . not months old.

★ ★ ★

Money is needed of course. Donations do swell the modest budget and allow Mr. Darling to purchase one or two more books he is eager to see on the shelves.

Whether these books are added now or next year, the library as it stands today, while small, is being avidly used. When I visited there the other morning, every table in the long room was filled with students, some in their late teens and others in their adult years.

"There are many problems still to be overcome," Mr. Batey told me. "But we do although it is under relatively library to fit our needs and have the nucleus now for a Spartan conditions, it is helping our students to get on with the job."

September Start For New School Of Social Work

A new school of social work will open at the University of Victoria next September.

Such a school was described as "urgently necessary" by provincial social workers in their brief to the university's investigating committee.

The board of governors has authorized immediate hiring of a director who will be involved in development of the academic program.

Courses will lead to the degree of master of social work and the possibility of undergraduate offerings is being considered.

STAYED AT HOME FOR 18 MONTHS

U.S. Soldier Just Waiting for Orders

PTE. SMITH
. . . not kidding

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The soldier the U.S. Army forgot insisted Tuesday he was following orders when he stood by at home for 18 months until time for his discharge.

"I just followed my last orders," Pte. Joe Smith, 23, of Brownsville, Calif., said at a news conference.

The orders came in a telegram from Fort Hood, Tex., where draftee Smith received engineering training. That was in November, 1965, and Smith was spending 30 days leave at home. Stand by for special orders, said the wire of which Smith holds a photostat copy.

Smith stood by, but finally took a logging job in Yuba City, near Brownsville, at $130 a week to support himself and his wife, Glenda, 23. He told his employer, he said, that he was awaiting orders.

The army sent Mrs. Smith $95.20 a-month allotment, and Smith himself an $18.50 savings bond every three months. The service is still dutifully remitting both, although he did not get his regular private's pay since he wasn't at a post to sign for it.

"I feel I put my normal time in service," Smith said.

TOOK DIM VIEW

The army took a different view when Smith figured his tour of duty was up June 13, donned his almost new uniform and went to Oakland for his discharge.

"You've got to be kidding," Smith quoted an interviewing officer.

"I said, 'No, Sir'," Smith answered.

Smith wants out, and has obtained the services of Ernest Besig, American Civil Liberties Union lawyer, to help him get his discharge. Smith is working as a runner for the army, meanwhile, and has been promoted to private, first class. He has drawn two $10 payments for incidentals from the army.

The army wants him to pay back the allotments sent his wife and maybe serve another 18 months to make up for the time spent at home.

Smith said the army first was going to charge him with desertion, then dropped that because of insufficient evidence. The private said he was told last week he would be getting an administrative discharge "on account of administrative error."

RACE GHETTO FEAR HELD

LONDON (Reuters) — Dr. Martin Luther King said Tuesday he sees the beginning of race ghettoes in Britain.

The situation could get out of hand if there is not "eternal vigilance," the U.S. civil rights leader told a press conference.

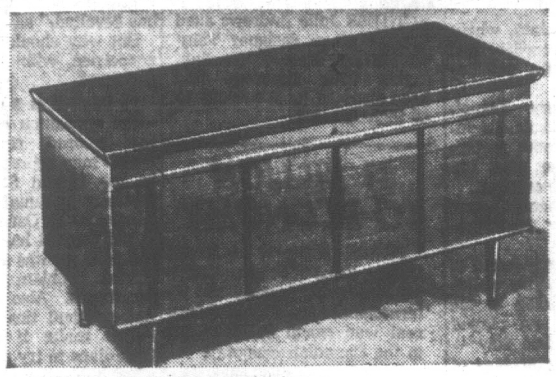

Strong laws and an aggressive program of education against discrimination are one answer, he said.

King said he has no personal experience of prejudice during his visit to Britain, but he had been told of it by persons living here.

Skilled Hands Make Music With Antique Instruments

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Probably the most unique of the University of Victoria School of Fine Arts series of evening recitals took place Tuesday night in the Education-Arts auditorium.

The recitalists were the Manitoba Consort, an ensemble of six musicians from the University of Manitoba who have become noted for their performance and medieval and baroque music using antique instruments.

For the student of musical history and those who cherish the rare and delicate in art, the recital was of supreme interest.

For many in the audience the interest could have been heightened, however, by a few words of commentary now and then with regard to such unfamiliar instruments as crumhorns, rauschpfeiffen and psalterys.

A lecture-recital had been given at noon but this was not available to the public.

The ensemble is well directed by its founder, Christine Mather, who plays a wide variety of the instruments, and happily served by an exceptional harpsichordist in Douglas Bodle.

Mr Bodle's skill at the keyboard instrument was immediately apparent in the opening, Buxtehude Sonata for violin, viol de gamba and continuo.

But I felt that the lid of the big harpsichord might have been closed to bring its dynamics into better balance with the reedy alto of the viol de gamba (an ancestor of the modern cello).

The group's soprano vocalist, Phyliss Thomson, possesses a rich and delightfully flexible voice. She phrases elegantly and sings with warmth and taste but her dynamics are not always properly proportioned to the ensemble.

In the Handel Cantata, where she sang with recorder and harpsichord, this was particularly noticeable.

Four 16th century French songs in which the whole ensemble joined were almost perfection and among the most enchanting items of the evening.

All the instruments were superbly handled by this talented group.

The tiny, thin, burry sound of the rebec — a miniature violin-like instrument cradled in the crook of the arm and played with an antique arched bow — the sometimes comic accents of the crumhorns, the soft swell of the little portative organ, these could only make music to our modern ears in the hands of such polished and deeply sensitive musicians.

ACTRESS Julie Andrews sued English stage designer Tony Walton for divorce Tuesday, saying their marriage had been strained by the demands of their careers.

$1 BILLION TO ECONOMY

PARIS (Reuters) — Pierre Dupuy, Expo 67 commissioner-general, said Tuesday the international exposition in Montreal was worth $1,000,000,000 to the Canadian economy.

He told a press conference that, in addition to the sale of entry tickets to the world's fair, exhibiting countries paid $250,000,000. There were also taxes levied by the Canadian government in connection with the fair since the Expo program was launched in 1963 and money earned from tourists.

UVIC TO PRESENT 'IN WHITE AMERICA'

'Colored Revolution Is Our Revolution'

What has it meant for two centuries to be black man in white America?

The University of Victoria's third Reader's Theatre will attempt to answer this question when it presents a production of Martin Duberman's off-Broadway success, "In White America."

Frederick Edell of Uvic's theatre division will direct the production to be presented at the Workshop Theatre November 22 to 24 at 8:30 p.m.

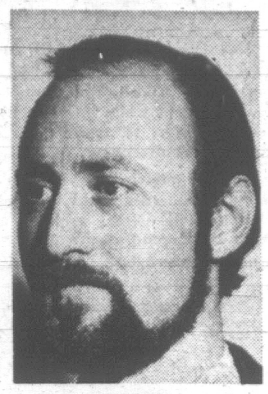

"In White America" is a documentary play—it tells the history of the Negro in the United States through historical documents written by people directly involved.

"It is an attempt by a man very much committed to Civil Rights to show why the Negro has revolted," says Mr. Edell.

But why should Canadians be concerned with this American problem?

"I think it is a world problem—the revolution of our time is the colored revolution. The Negro may represent a minority in the United States but that minority is equal to the entire population of Canada.

And Canada has discovered in the past months that there is a Negro problem here—in the Maritimes. Also its economic and political ties to the United States make it necessary for Canadians to try and understand what is happening there.

EDELL
. . . director

Mr. Edell feels it is impossible to remain complacent anymore. "National boundaries don't destroy the connections between people. We can't afford to sit back in our middle-class comfort.

"A whole body of playwrights writing political plays using the documentary form have arisen. The play is indicative of its time and the local audience should be aware of this kind of theatre.

The original cast of six had three Negro actors but these parts are being played by whites in the Uvic production.

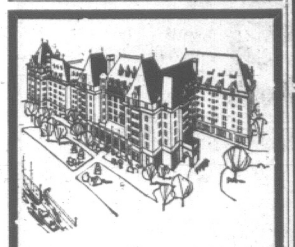

"I think the documents are so strong that what is necessary in the play is a human not a colored committment. It is made quite clear who is Negro and who is white—the emphasis is on the words, not the actors."

Whooper Cranes Multiply; Get Bigger Home

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whooping cranes, who never really have had to worry about overcrowding, are going to get a bigger winter home.

A straggler arriving at Aransas National Wildlife Refuge in southeast Texas from Canada sent the whooping crane count Tuesday to a record 48.

Interior Secretary Stewart Udall announced at the same time that the refuge was being enlarged by 7,162 acres through a gift from Mr. and Mrs. J. Meredith Tatton, Texas ranchers.

The first 47 cranes flew into the winter home 11 days ago. The flock is at its largest since the rare birds were threatened with extinction in 1938 when only 14 survivors were known.

Recipe of the Week

Leg of Lamb with Honey-Soy Sauce

Start heating oven to 450°F. Meanwhile trim as much as possible from:
6 to 7 lb. leg of lamb.
Place lamb on rack in shallow roasting pan. Sprinkle on and rub into lamb:
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
With pastry brush, smear whole leg with:
½ cup honey
Then pour into bottom of pan:
About 1 quart water, or just enough to make water ¾ inches deep in pan. Put lamb in oven and roast ½ hour. Then reduce oven temperature to 350°F and pour over lamb:
2 tablespoons soy sauce
Roast lamb 3 to 3½ hours longer (this is about 35 minutes per pound). While lamb roasts, baste it about every half hour. At second basting, pour over lamb:
2 tablespoons soy sauce
When lamb is done, remove it to platter and pour juice into bowl; let lamb stand a minute; then spoon off as much of the fat that comes to the surface as possible. Serve the juice over lamb as is, or thicken some of it with cornstarch or flour. Save the clear leftover juice to serve next day on pancakes or rice. If desired, garnish with pineapple slices, clusters or green grapes, and cooked baby carrots.

B.C. Red Spartans

Kissin' cousins to the famous B.C. McIntosh Reds.

Perhaps only once in a lifetime a NEW apple appears that captures the fancy of old and young alike!

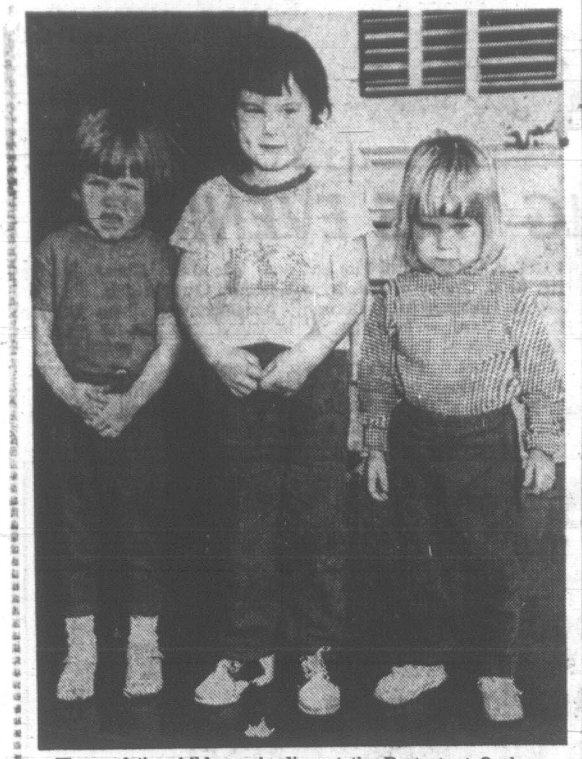

The B.C. Red Spartan has been developed in British Columbia's sunny Okanagan Valley, by crossing the famous McIntosh and Newtown apples . . . and Nature has blessed it with the best qualities of both.

The flavor of the Spartan is distinctive and sweet, and yet reminiscent of the McIntosh . . . the flesh is an appetizing clear white . . . and the core is unusually small. The Spartan is a superb all-purpose apple, rich and juicy for fresh eating . . . tempting and flavorful in your favorite desserts.

For a new apple treat —
'discover' B.C. Spartans.

Three of the children who live at the Protestant Orphanage, Angie, Shari-May and Dolly, take time out from play to remind Victorians of the Home's Junior Auxiliary's Holly Bazaar, to be held at the home this Saturday at 2 p.m. Tea and refreshments will be served and guests will be greeted by auxiliary president Mrs. B. Romain, convener Mrs. T. Allen and the Home's matron, Mrs. A. Ludgate. Stalls will offer a variety of Christmas items, aprons, home cooking, a children's fishpond and holiday decorations.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Ease Travel Troubles With Set of Checkers

By PENNY SAVER

The holiday season means a lot of travelling and if you have ever travelled with a family of small or even not-so-small, children, you will know that the getting there can take a lot of fun out of the arriving. Reading is impossible in a car because of the motion, and sign-spotting games can be a bit hard on Dad's nerves. There are no signs to watch at sea, and while you may be able to read on a boat, the younger members of the group who cannot read may not allow such a luxury. Sleep is the obvious answer, but no child I know will consent to sleep on cue.

However, almost every child I know can play checkers and a back-seat checkers tournament will ease the longest journey. Magnetic checkers, designed to keep their place despite the most violent use, are ideal for travelling. Compact enough to fit in a purse, a set sells for $1.75.

Speaking of games, I have found just the thing for my teen-age son. It is the "really good" chess set he has always talked about. Made of ivory, this set features delicate pieces in their own box. The price is $24.95.

My favorite tea service became short one tea-pot recently and I went in search of a suitable substitute. Torn between elegance and economy, I at last settled for an all-white set for $5.95. This includes a good-sized pot with a heat-proof handle of bamboo and six plain Oriental-style cups. Sure to match any of the leftover pieces of china, this set appeals to the sensible side of my nature.

To carry my new tea-pot to the table in style, I bought a bamboo tray. An Oriental design sets off the pale wood tones of the varnished wood. The price is only $1.95.

For serving cakes or cookies bamboo plates make an attractive show. All painted like my tray, these plates range in size from saucers to dinner plates. The price on these items is 39 cents for a bamboo saucer, 69 cents for a side plate and $1.49 for a dinner plate.

If you would like to know where I found these items, please phone me at 382-3131.

DEAR ABBY . . .

No Way to Make A Good 'Match'

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Did I do a stupid thing? A very handsome middle-aged physician has just moved into my apartment building. And glory be! He is a bachelor, and I am single, too, and am just about the right age for him. He gives me a nice hello when he sees me, but because of his profession he is always in a hurry.

I wanted to get to know him better, so I called his office and made an appointment for a routine physical.

When I appeared I must say that he was most professional about it, and was in every sense of the word "routine." He hasn't called me, as I had hoped he would.

How can I get this doctor interested in me? He sees beautiful women all day long and the competition is terrific.

I don't want to scare him off by inviting him to something like a cocktail party, dinner or concert, as I understand he runs a mile from the aggressive-type woman.

Maybe if I could come up with some rare and interesting disease he would take a special interest in me. But how can I get one?

PLAIN JANE.

DEAR JANE: Forget the disease. That would only make you more of a "clinical specimen." As it is, when you lined up that "physical" you probably killed your chances. (Ethical doctors do not cavort with their patients.)

DEAR ABBY: Our 21-year-old daughter is a senior at college. She has written several times asking us if she can bring her boy friend home with her for the weekend.

My husband and I have discussed this a number of times, and we do not feel that it is the proper thing for her to do. We have nothing against the boy, as we have never even met him.

Our daughter says that all her college friends take their boy friends home for weekends.

What is your feeling in the matter?

WORRIED MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER: If your daughter wants to spend the weekend with her boy friend, I can't think of a better place for them to be than in your home.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"I'm in pretty good physical shape, actually . . . there's just that perforated eardrum from you shouting 'yes' when I asked you to marry me."

NEW VOLUNTEER BUREAU IN CITY

Miss Elizabeth Riddell, executive director of the Victorian Order of Nurses, reported the formation of a Volunteer Bureau in Victoria when the VON board met for its monthly meeting with J. B. Barnum presiding.

The volunteers take patients to see their doctors, treat them to drives and help in other ways. The bureau has its office at First United Church.

Miss Riddell reported an increase of nearly 200 bedside nursing visits to figures of a year ago, 2,019 visits having been made in the past month. These included 13 night calls.

She reported that Miss Betty Short had given a class to student nurses of St. Joseph's Hospital as an orientation prior to their observation of VON services.

J. C. Cox reported that all VON cars were in good order with running costs averaging 4.5 cents a mile.

Two senior nurses gave short reports. Mrs. A. Lassen told of two days she had spent at St. Joseph's Hospital, observing modern methods of nursing care and studying new equipment. Miss Short reported on a two-day course in obstetrics which she had attended at the University of British Columbia.

D. Green gave a financial report and the minutes were read by honorary secretary, Mrs. G. A. Jones.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

What Method Is Best When Removing Superfluous Hair?

The reader's letter before me says, "There are so many methods of removing superfluous hair that I am confused as to which is best. Should I shave, use tweezers, a depilatory or cosmetic wax? What about electrolysis?"

Lowman

To begin with electrolysis is the only method which removes hair permanently. The others simply remove the hair but the root remains and therefore, a new hair will grow back.

If you have a few hairs on your chin (which most women do from middle age on), it is a simple matter to remove them with tweezers. When you do this, make it a smooth pull. Do not jerk them out.

Of course, these can be removed with electrolysis if you prefer. It would be difficult to remove the finer hairs over the upper lip with tweezers. Electrolysis is best for this.

I think that a depilatory is best for hair on the arms because it leaves them smoother than shaving. This is true because a depilatory melts the hair while shaving leaves a blunter end.

You can use cosmetic wax if you prefer, but I think this is more trouble than a depilatory. If you use the wax be sure to apply powder to the area first.

Certainly, shaving is the simplest way to banish hair from the legs. I am sure I will receive letters following this column saying that this causes the hair to grow in thicker and coarser. However, I will remain unconvinced.

Almost every woman I know including myself has used this method for years. Also, I have been unable to discover any scientific evidence that this is true.

Isn't it wonderful that there are so many methods from which to choose? I think every woman is aware today that banishing superfluous hair is an essential part of good grooming.

BY VANCOUVER COUNCIL

Rent Controls Sought

VANCOUVER (CP)—Aldermen sought city authority Tuesday to control rent increases and prevent landlords from discriminating against children.

But corporation counsel Russell Baker and Mayor Tom Campbell told city council the city does not have the power to enforce either control.

"We may not have power but we may have to seek some solution to control the situation," said Alderman Halford Wilson.

Ald. Wilson said a few unscrupulous landlords trying to take advantage of the housing shortage were to blame for exorbitant rent increases. He absolved the majority of apartment owners.

Ald Hugh Bird asked if it was possible to prevent landlords from evicting mothers with children, but the mayor said it was not.

Aldermen finally called for the mayor to report on a housing registry he was authorized to conduct three months ago.

Complexion Beauty

The secret of beautifying the complexion is said to lie in the saturation of the skin with a new type of tropical moist oil. The skin takes on an immediate healthy bloom as the tiny lines and blemishes are gently smoothed away. This saturation treatment with the moist oil of Olay is recommended by skin care consultants, who advise its daily use as a powder base to give the complexion day-long beauty. Your druggist will help you to obtain a supply for your personal needs.

... Margaret Merril.

FORMER diplomatic envoy to Canada, Sir Archibald Nye, 72, has died in London. He was British high commissioner in Canada from 1952 to 1956 and in India from 1948 to 1952. During the Second World War he was deputy chief of the British imperial staff.

RED FACES FOR HYDRO OFFICIALS

POWELL RIVER, B.C. (CP)—It was a great night Tuesday for a British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority seminar on the convenience of electrical living.

A hydro substation failed midway through the seminar, plunging this coastal community 60 miles northwest of Vancouver into darkness for 2½ hours.

It was not known if the municipal council was talking about electrification, but its regular meeting was by candlelight.

The MacMillan Bloedel pulp mill continued to run at near full capacity by using its own auxiliary power.

MORE IMPORTANT THAN FEW DEATHS

Contributions 'Hold Back Law'

WINNIPEG (CP) — Government reluctance to effectively tackle the problem of drinking and driving is linked to the contributions made by distilleries and breweries to the major political parties, Dr. Morton Shulman said Tuesday.

Dr. Shulman, former city coroner of Toronto and a New Democratic Party member of the Ontario legislature, was speaking to 400 people at the Greater Winnipeg Safety Council's annual traffic seminar.

He said governments believe financial political contributions from the liquor industry are "more important than a few highway deaths."

This is one reason why stronger laws against drinking drivers have not been introduced by the governments, Dr. Shulman said.

Stewart Molean, Manitoba public utilities minister later during a panel discussion, rejected Dr. Shulman's charge.

"I would reject any suggestion that any of our decisions are made with an eye on the profits or the fortunes of the liquor companies," Mr Melean said.

He said while Manitoba had no plans to introduce breath tests, the federal government should make such tests compulsory under the criminal code.

Dr Shulman replied that his experience on a federal car safety committee indicated there was "absolutly not a chance in hell" of having the breath tests written into the criminal code.

He urged voters to exert pressure on provincial governments for stricter laws governing drinking and driving.

Governments are more interested in votes than in political contributions, he said, particularly "before elections or before leadership conventions."

Dr. Shulman said of the three factors in automobile accidents, the car, the road and the driver, the driver usually "produces the accident."

He said all the accidents begin through driver error and new safety innovations in automobiles will reduce accidents by less than one per cent.

Statistics indicate 50 per cent of car occupant deaths in automobile accidents were caused by a drinking driver and drinking drivers make up 10 per cent of the driving population, Dr Shulman said.

Routine spot checks on highways with a breath testing machine should be made and drivers with more than .08 blood alcohol content should have their licences suspended.

Dr Shulman said if convicted of driving while suspended, the driver's car should be confiscated and he should be jailed automatically. These drivers now are rarely sent to jail. They simply pay a fine, "a raised licence fee," he said.

3 very superior wines to add an extra measure of pleasure to every special occasion.

You'll appreciate the champagne quality of Calona Crackling Wines... they're vinted exactly the same as champagne for extra fine flavor, life, and appearance.

Start with our suggested uses, but be sure to try all three, and then decide for yourself when you like each the best.

Crackling Rosé	A delightful medium dry, full-bodied pink wine. Particularly enjoyable with meals but suitable and proper at any time and for any occasion.
Crackling Burgundy	A lively fully dry, full-bodied red wine. Specially appreciated with roasts, steaks, game, and for special occasions. Serve well chilled.
Crackling White	A fine medium sweet, full-bodied white wine. Light and bright in the Italian Spumante tradition. An outstanding sweeter wine for entertaining. Serve well chilled.

Calona Crackling Wines are best, and most fun, when served in champagne type stemmed glasses. Store in a cool, dry place, out of direct sunlight, upright or on the side.

Why are the bubbles so fine?

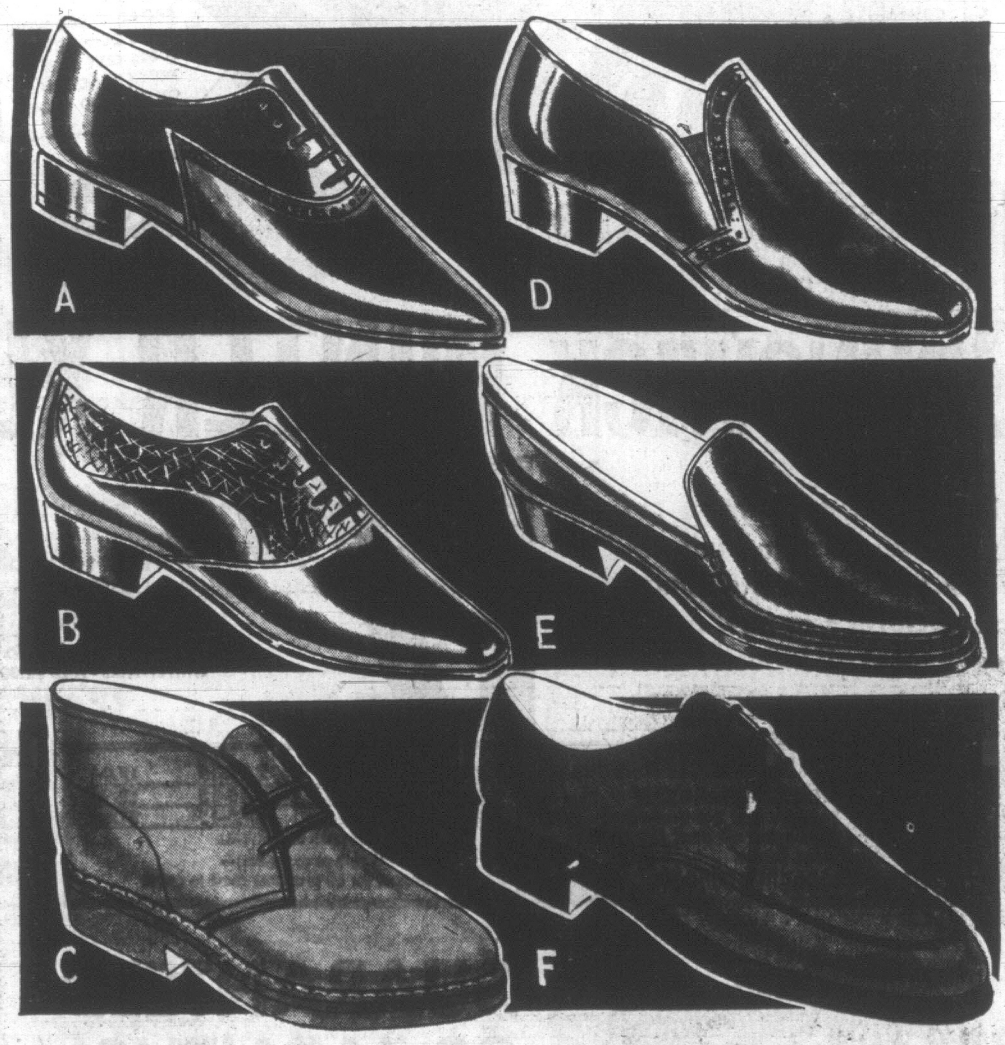

The bubbles in Calona Crackling Wines are nature's own bubbles, the result of the wholly natural process by which Calona Crackling Wines are produced.

44-CENT PAY HIKE

Northern IWA Dispute Settled

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Province says a tentative settlement agreement has been reached in the Northern Interior woodworkers' strike that began five weeks ago.

The newspaper says details of the agreement will not be disclosed until terms have been put before the memberships of the International Woodworkers of America and the Northern Interior Lumbermen's Association.

It says reliable sources report that the agreement calls for pay increases amounting to 44 cents an hour plus an increase negotiated in the 1969 coast woodworkers agreement.

It says the 600 men involved in the strike will get 22 cents retroactive to Sept. 1, 12 cents next May, 10 cents next September and the coast increase in September, 1969.

The terms also provide a 10-cent-an-hour night differential and improvements in statuatory holidays and vacation, the newspaper says.

Five major operations were struck. In 13 other plants, workers voted against striking.

In the Southern Interior, talks have broken down after two days of secret meetings between the IWA and the employers. No new talks have been scheduled.

The IWA demanded parity with coast woodworkers, which would have meant an immediate 50-cent-an-hour pay increase on the pre-strike base rate of $2.26 an hour.

Meanwhile, in Castlegar where the IWA went on strike separately from the northern and southern groups, talks are to resume between the union and Celgar Ltd.

The resumption of negotiation was announced Tuesday by the mayors of Castlegar and Kinnaird, who complained the strike was adversely affecting the economies of the two communities.

Soviet Plane Leased

MOSCOW (AP)—Air France agreed Monday to lease the giant new Soviet Ilyushin-62 long-range jet for its Paris-Moscow service next summer, an official announcement said. The 168-seat airliner is expected to begin service on the route in May, the announcement said.

PRINCESS Maria Beatrice, 23, daughter of former King Umberto II of Italy, flew into London hours after her family had moved in a Rome court to block her marriage in Italy to actor Maurizio Arena. She is under summons to appear in court Dec. 21 for a hearing on a claim by her parents that she is unstable.

CANADA ON UN DRAFTING COMMITTEE

New Definition for Continental Shelf Sought

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—The continental shelf may have to be redefined in order to further peaceful international exploitation of the ocean floors, France told the United Nations Monday.

France and 21 other delegations were named Monday to a working group to draft a resolution in the general assembly's main political committee on the seabeds and ocean floor question.

The list included the United States, the Soviet Union, France, Britain, Canada, the Netherlands, Norway Yugoslavia, the Ukraine, Malta, Brazil, Chile, Peru, Venezuela, Senegal, Tanzania, Liberia, Kenya, the United Arab Republic, India, Pakistan, Bulgaria, Australia, Ecuador, Trinidad-Tobago and Japan. Poland volunteered itself as a 23rd member during the debate.

At issue is a proposal by Malta that the world organization should declare the bottom of the seas—beyond present national jurisdictions—out of bounds to military uses and reserved for the benefit of all mankind.

French delegate Jean-Paul Palewski applauded inclusion of the item on this year's agenda because it invites a more precise formulation of international law of the seas.

He said it may require a fresh look at the elastic definition of the continental shelf spelled out in a 1958 Geneva convention—challenged by France at the time—which permits coastal states to claim subsoil rights beyond their territorial waters as far as technology permits.

HOME GARDEN

Heating Question Difficult to Answer

By HILDA BEASTALL

The owner of a home garden type of greenhouse has a difficult decision to make about heating, especially at the beginning of his first winter.

Hilda

To heat, or not to heat? The decision must rest with the kind of plants in the greenhouse and what is expected from them during winter.

Many half hardy plants such as geraniums, fuchsias, tibouchinas, dracaenas, hibiscus and oleanders will winter successfully in an unheated greenhouse.

They will gradually become practically dormant, and if outdoor temperatures do not drop lower than 28 deg F. or so, the plants inside will not be damaged.

However, with the vagaries of our climate, we should never assume that winter will be kind enough to let us off so lightly.

Every home gardener with plants in his greenhouse over winter should have some means of providing heat sufficient to maintain a minimum of 30 deg. F. at night, or to keep out frost.

Sections of newspaper, opened out cardboard cartons and inverted wooden flats are all good for additional plant protection in the greenhouse on nights of hard frost.

If the half hardy plants in this list are wanted in bloom during winter, higher minimum temperatures will need to be maintained.

Good lighting in the home gardener's greenhouse is an asset, for it makes a pleasant routine of a late visit to check all conditions.

Retraining Expands

OTTAWA (CP)—The number of adults in job retraining courses will top 200,000 in the year ahead, triple the 1966 level, Manpower Minister Marchand told the Commons Monday night.

BUY PORTABLE CLASSROOMS

'Money Walk' Can Start A Mammoth Traffic Jam

A mammoth traffic jam predicted for downtown Victoria November 25 may frustrate drivers but it will have the opposite effect for children in faraway lands.

Thousands are expected to turn out for the "Miles for Millions" march, a youth Centennial project to buy portable classrooms for developing nations in other parts of the Commonwealth.

"The public will have to be very tolerant," Mayor Hugh Stephen said today. "You can't march three or four thousand people through downtown Victoria without creating a certain amount of confusion. Drivers will have to drive very carefully."

The 26-mile walk is a fund-raising effort for Project 100, a drive to raise $100,000 to purchase the classrooms in Malaysia, Africa and other parts of the Commonwealth.

The march works this way:

Volunteers do the marching and their sponsors pledge to pay an amount for each mile they cover. The walk will start at 8.30 a.m. in front of the Legislature and the 26-mile route includes stops at every municipal hall in Greater Victoria.

Old and young are invited to find sponsors and join in.

Apart from the worthiness of the project this is one of the features which appeals to Victoria's mayor.

"It gives young and older people a chance to walk and talk together. Everyone's talking about the necessity for dialogue. Here's a chance for older people to mix with the kids."

Mayor Stephen said the city's police department has promised full co-operation in helping to minimize crowd and traffic problems.

He will be joining walkers as will Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis. The mayor last week challenged Reeve Curtis to walk the first mile with him and Mr. Curtis said Monday he will match Mayor Stephen mile for mile and entertain him with chatter along the way.

"He's 20 years younger. I think he should give me something for that," was the mayor's comment today.

Student organizers at Uvic suggest as many as 10,000 may participate. Each volunteer walk can have as many sponsors as he or she can enlist.

Organizers have decided to split proceeds from the project with 80 per cent. going to the purchase of portable classrooms and 20 per cent. to Oxfam, the Oxford Committee for Famine Relief.

Anyone wanting information on the walk is invited to call 477-1808 or 477-1809.

LSD 'Helps Some To Show Warmth'

ST. LOUIS (AP) — LSD, the potentially dangerous drug, may have accidentally uncovered a cause of considerable mental illness—the inability to express warmth toward one's fellow man—a Mayo Clinic psychiatrist says.

Dr. M. Robert Wilson Jr. said studies of a group of emotionally-ill adolescents who were given the drug during treatment had revealed a common underlying emotional effect.

He told a seminar for science writers Tuesday that the common theme was expressed by one of the patients who said that during his LSD "trip" he suddenly "felt free to be compassionate and warm towards my fellow man."

Evidence from the study, he said, indicates that at least some emotionally-disturbed persons need "freedom to be warm or close" to another person, or perhaps even to express suppressed warmth for an experience they are undergoing, such as attending college.

He said some of the patients had been drop-outs from college, but that after their LSD experience they returned.

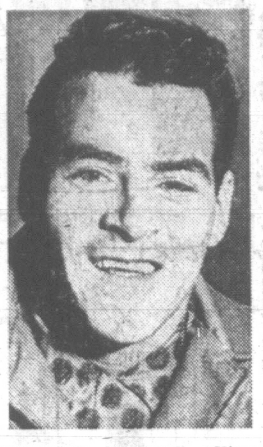

Wilson spoke at a science seminar at Washington University.

Taps Run Dry

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — The temperature rose to 95 degrees in Sydney Monday, and hotels and clubs in the city and in other parts of New South Wales ran out of draught beer. The beer shortage was caused by a strike of 2,300 brewery workers demanding a salary increase, a 35-hour week and other benefits. Most of the 2,000 hotels and 1,400 clubs in the state are serving bottled and canned beer.

ROLLER SKATER Clinton Shaw, 26, of Vancouver, has decided to give up his Centennial project of skating from coast to coast because of bad weather and lack of funds. He began his trip in Victoria April 2 and has skated 3,546 miles in 116 days. He made his decision after arriving at Riviere du Loup, 90 miles northeast of Quebec City.

Accused Protected

TORONTO (CP) — Radio station CHIN says it no longer will include in news stories the identity of accused persons appearing in court until there has been a conviction. A CHIN spokesman said last week many accused persons whose names are included in news stories are later acquitted of the charges against them but suffer from the experience.

RESTORATION BEGINS MONDAY

Wedding to Close 'New' Manor

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Workmen move into historic Craigflower Manor on Monday to develop it as a public museum.

But before the joint federal-provincial $300,000 restoration project starts, there will be one last "fling" Friday in the 114-year-old manor off the Island Highway.

The occasion will be a wedding reception for David Paul Thompson and his bride Connie Maria Cardin.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Thompson, former owners of the manor, who sold it to the two senior governments to preserve the building and property as a historic site.

Since the purchase last January, Mrs. Thompson has been allowed to continue using the manor as a family home pending completion of plans for its restoration by architect Peter N. Cotton.

She ran it as a museum for the provincial government.

But Friday the role of the manor as a private home comes to an end with a gay party—like many others held within its walls in the past century.

When it is re-opened as a public museum next spring, it will look as it did when built in 1853. It was then the home of Kenneth McKenzie, bailiff of the Puget Sound Agricultural Company, a subsidiary of the Hudson's Bay Co.

It has changed over the years and considerable restoration work is required.

The scullery, which is quite inconsistent with the original one, will be re-made.

An annex built in 1930 will be demolished.

Fireplaces will be restored and repaired.

Six bathrooms, built when the manor was used as a motel, have to be torn out and the bedrooms restored to their original sizes.

Work also starts next week on demolishing Discovery Inn.

The property and building were purchased earlier this year to provide the manor with as much land as possible.

The B.C. government plans to build a private home for a curator on the property.

Marijuana Penalties Too Harsh

By Dr. WALTER ALVAREZ

I was just reading about the big effort that is being made in some places, trying to put some sense into the campaign against marijuana. As a good many experts at a recent big trial pointed out, legislators have become somewhat hysterical over marijuana which is not definitely an addicting drug. Probably, in most cases it doesn't do any harm. At any rate, as a number of the experts said, most drug experts are opposed to the harsh penalties (for possession of the drug) imposed under recent U.S. laws.

Alvarez

I just read that in one U.S. state, the death penalty can be imposed for a second conviction of selling or giving marijuana to a minor. What bothers some people is in many places a man who commits murder and has a good lawyer may get off either entirely, or may be sent to jail for only a few years.

As Dr. James L. Goddard, commissioner of the U.S. Federal Food and Drug Administration is reported to have said, "My personal feeling is that the severity of the penalties is inconsistent with the nature of the drug."

Dr. Lewis Lasagna, the eminent pharmacologist at Johns Hopkins Hospital said, "The penalties are out of all proportions." The only good thing about silly laws is that usually juries refuse to convict; they have too good sense.

★ ★ ★

Many people write asking what is lupus erythematosus and what can be done to cure it. Because this is such a difficult disease to treat; because the manifestations in different patients are so different, and the manifestations can change from month to month, or from year to year, a physician at a distance cannot say much, and the patient ought to be under the care of a good internist. If the skin is much inflamed, the patient should see a skin specialist.

Lupus erythematosus is one of the auto-immune, or "collagen" diseases, now being much studied. In an auto-immune disease one part of the person's body seems to have become allergic to the rest of the body. Then the main part of the body tries to destroy some small part, like a joint or a patch of skin, or part of the blood, or the thyroid gland.

In these cases, one or more of the new cortico-steroids of the cortisone type can usually help the person over a crisis.

Fewer Persons Seeking Work

The number of persons seeking full-time work in Greater Victoria is less than this time last year and a little below the average for the past eight years.

This was stated Tuesday by an official of the Canada Manpower Centre when he released figures.

They show 3,470 persons—2,190 men and 1,280 women — were seeking fulltime work at Oct. 31 compared with 4,130—2,565 men and 1,565 women—at the same date last year.

The manpower official pointed out that in six years the labor force in Greater Victoria has increased from 55,450 to 69,000.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Rebecca Langel, age 12, of Le Mars, Iowa, for her question:

Is the earth's magnetic field a shield against cosmic rays?

This question is a major topic of our research in the conquest of space. Long ago, scientists learned that the earth itself is a giant magnet. They also discovered cosmic rays. But the relationship between the two facts still is in the probing stage.

The Space Age is full of surprises, most of them pleasant. We hear of new substances and devices that were created for our space program. Many of these items, such as heat resistant plastics and miniature batteries, have added improvements to our everyday lives. We can expect more of them, for almost every spacecraft launched aloft carries improved equipment of some kind. Much of this equipment is designed to gather scientific data to advance the conquest of space. The useful new items added to our lives are merely by-products of this basic objective.

From time to time, we can expect blunders and set-backs and perhaps doubt the possibility of future success. One shocking bit of news arrived in 1958, when the Space Age was but a year old. Orbiting satellites carrying detecting instruments relayed reports of vast belts of radiation surrounding the earth. This huge danger zone stood between us and the ocean of outer space. Voyages to other worlds seemed doomed forever. But this gloomy viewpoint was soon dispelled.

Satellites carrying more sensitive equipment gathered and sent back more data on the blanketing radiation. We now know that it is related to the earth's magnetic fields and to bombarding particles of matter from space. Some of these dramatic bullets were known as cosmic rays. And almost at once, some experts suspected that cosmic rays, or some of them, were trapped and held in the earth's magnetic field. Most experts still feel that there is some truth in this theory.

Bombarded by Rays

We need much more data to explain the details and with the help of probing spacecraft, research is still going on. On the basis of present information, most experts suspect that some cosmic rays are deflected by the earth's magnetic field and trapped aloft in the belt of radiation. However, the magnetic field is not a hole-proof umbrella. Many cosmic rays do come plunging through it. They collide with particles in the upper atmosphere, more than 10 miles above our heads. The so-called cosmic rays that strike the earth are fragments from these collisions.

Cosmic rays are speeding space travelers bombarding us from the sun and from sources far across the galaxy. Most of them are nuclei of hydrogen and helium atoms. These positive particles could be deflected by the mighty magnetic field that surrounds the earth. It is almost certain that some of them are. But we have an additional protective shield in the upper layers of our atmosphere.

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Rhonda Roberts, age 11, of Muncie, Indiana, for her question:

Why are there no women astronauts?

Andy discussed this very good question with some of his friends working in our space program. These experts have nothing against the idea of women astronauts. In fact, they are all for it. The reason we have no lady spacewomen at the moment goes back to the very start of the program. The astronauting job was brand new and nobody knew what training would be needed. Nobody had been into space, but we had a number of expertly trained test pilots.

The experts in flying planes through the air seemed likely candidates for space training. This idea, as we all know, was an excellent one. The project at the time was very hush—hush and it seemed wise to select reliable, trained and true test pilots from the armed services. All of these pilots were and still are men. In the future, we plan to train women astronauts and everyone concerned expects them to do just as well, if not better than the men. By the time you reach the right age, you will not be rejected for astronaut training merely because you are a woman.

9 IN MEMORIAM

BELFRY—In loving memory of our nephew, James Belfry, whose life on earth ended Nov. 15, 1966.

He did but float a little way,
Adown the stream of time.
With dreamy eyes watching the ripples play,
Or harkening their fairy chime;
His slender sail,
Ne'er felt the gale.
He did but float a little way,
And putting to the shore.
While yet 'twas early day,
Went calmly on his way,
To dwell with us no more.

—Ever remembered by Uncle David and Auntie Merle.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

Negroes have gained increasing prominence in television's regular series.

The barrier to Negroes was broken down with NBC's I Spy series which features Robert Culp and Bill Cosby in the main roles. Since then, the talented actors and actresses have made great inroads.

Stephen

Viewers see Negro regulars in shows like Mission: Impossible, Daktari, Ironside, Star Trek, Cowboy in Africa and N.Y.P.D.

Others make guest appearances. Terri Harper is a prime example. Miss Harper will soon be seen in episodes of CBS's Lucy Show and He and She.

A test film is being prepared for a possible comedy series in which Diahann Carroll will play a widow with a six-year-old son.

Production sources also report there are plans in the works for a possible daytime game show with a Negro master of ceremonies.

There is also another series possibility, The Outcasts, a western, has been testing Negro actors to co-star with Don Murray.

It shows that times have changed progressively from the days when series were pretty much all white in major roles.

One of the most talented producers in the industry is NBC's Lucy Jarvis. Mrs. Jarvis has won critical acclaim for many of her special programs, among them "Who Shall Live?" "The Kremlin," and "Khruschev in Exile—His Opinions and Revelations."

Major awards won by her include the Emmy Award, the Peabody Award, Television's Golden Mike award, the Thomas Alva Edison Award and many journalism awards.

Last week, Mrs. Jarvis added to her long list of awards with the acceptance of France's "Chevalier" award in order of "Arts et Lettres."

She was honored for her specials "Museum Without Walls," (1963), "The Louvre," (1964) and "Brave Picasso!" (1967) The trio lent better understanding to France's history, culture and sense of values.

Toronto's 63rd annual Santa Claus parade will be seen on CBC-TV Saturday with the Friendly Giant (Bob Homme) and his puppet characters as hosts. Meanwhile, Arthur Godfrey and actress Beth Brickell will videotape their commentary of the parade for presentation on CBS-TV's Thanksgiving Day Parade Thursday, November 23.

SHE FLEW THROUGH THE AIR

BIG TIMBER, Mont. (UPI) —The search for the driver of a demolished convertible ended here Tuesday when she fell from the sky at the feet of a startled state trooper.

Montana highway patrolman Ken Thorne arrived at the scene moments after a late convertible went off the road rolled over and burned.

He found passenger Antoinette Lnude, of Billings, Mont., who had been thrown clear and was uninjured. But there was no sign of the driver, Patty Kennan of Billings.

As Thorne stod wondering, Miss Kennan dropped to the ground at his feet. She suffered only minor injuriees.

The impact of the accident had thrown her 25 feet up in the air and she came to rest unconscious, on the cross arm of a utility pole. She fell to the ground when she regained consciousness.

Seven City Investors Tell of Loss

Seven investors in the multi-million dollar Chateau Victoria complex told an extradition hearing in magistrate's court Tuesday of thousands of dollars lost.

The witnesses are among 32 crown counsels Lloyd McKenzie and Kenneth Murphy plan to call in an attempt to extradite Charles Warren Beeler, an American now living in San Francisco, charged here with nine counts of fraud.

Beeler was a key figure in the financial wrangling the crown says surrounded the ambitious residential complex for old people that was to be built near the Esquimalt lagoon.

All investors had similar stories to tell.

Dr. Peter Banks, a specialist in internal medicine, testified he lost $22,000 after Beeler convinced him to invest. Neurologist Dr. Robert Peet told the hearing he lost $12,500.

Leonard Glinz, former manager of the Colony Motel, told the court he bought one share for $5,000. He said his wife worked seven months in the office of BHP Investments, the company behind the project, and is still owed for salary.

Montague Collins, former owner of the Sidney Taxi, testified that he lost his business over the deal.

He said Beeler persuaded him to sign a note for purchase of four $5,000 shares and assured him he would have exclusive taxi rights to the complex.

Collins said although Beeler stated he would be responsible for the note, it wound up endorsed in the hands of a mortgage company and Collins was forced to pay it off.

Kenneth Nordal of C & C Taxi, said Beeler also offered his firm exclusive transportation rights and as a result he bought a share.

Capt. William Holmes and Dr. Ralph Shepherd testified they each purchased two of the $5,000 Shares. Dr. Shepherd said he was told contracts had been let for construction of the Chateau.

Deputy Sheriff William Lee told the court many claims against Beeler were setled when Mrs. Beeler's goods and chattels were seized, but no money ever came from Beeler himself.

The hearing was continuing today before Magistrate William Ostler. The testimony will be forwarded to an American judge who will decide whether or not the offences are extradictable.

$2 MILLION LOSS

Airlines Suffer Bird Headache

MONTREAL (CP) — A member of the National Research Council says Canada's major commercial airlines have lost $2,000,000 in the last five years because of birds striking aircraft.

Harrison F. Lewis of Ottawa, a member of the council's associate committee on bird hazards to aircraft, says in a report in the International Civil Aviation Organization's magazine that airlines lost that sum as a direct result of more than 1,000 bird-aircraft collisions.

He says that if a jet travelling 600 miles an hour struck a four-pound eider duck the effect on the aircraft would be that of a blow from an object weighing 54 tons.

Apart from obvious damage to the plane's structure, damage costs when a bird is sucked into a jet engine can reach $250,000.

Most strikes occur in the area of airports. Research into ways of preventing such accidents include defoliating entire areas surrounding airports.

Information received from ICAO member countries shows that gulls are most often involved in strikes in western countries and that two-thirds of all strikes reported occurred at altitudes below 500 feet.

DECREASING

Air Canada had 147 bird strikes in 1966. Annual strike rates per 100,000 plane movements show, however, that despite an increase in gull population the number of strikes is decreasing. Plane movements are takeoffs and landings.

The 1966 rate of 4.35 per 100,000 movements is down from the 1964 rate of 5.98 and the 1963 rate of 6.18. The 1965 rate was 4.18.

An indication of the costly damage such collisions bring is a 1961 incident in which an Air Canada DC-8 hit a pheasant as it took off from Vancouver International Airport. Damage was $200,000.

The RCAF attributed $2,000,000 worth of damage to bird strikes between 1961 and 1963 and increases in strikes since that time were believed to be caused by an increase in low-level flying and an increase in the number of flying hours.

Methods of beating the problem already in use include tape-recorded bird-distress calls, shotgun blasts and falcons which keep gulls away.

A space-age solution being investigated by the National Research Council is the projection of microwave radiation a mile ahead of the plane. If this could be done it might disorient birds so they would fall clear of the path of the aircraft.

To be effective, it would have to affect the birds' nervous systems within the six seconds it takes a jet to cover a mile travelling at 600 miles an hour.

Drug Ring Believed Shattered

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police said Tuesday they believe they have broken the major marijuana distributing ring in the Pacific Northwest.

Two weekend raids — one in Vancouver and the second in Seattle — netted a total of 114 pounds of the drug, which police estimate is worth $146,000 on the illicit market.

The first seizure of seven kilograms of marijuana—15 pounds—was made in Vancouver Sunday, and led city police to contact Seattle narcotics experts.

As a result 45 kilograms—99 pounds—were seized in a Seattle motel.

Investigators said the narcotics were destined for illicit markets in B.C. and Washington State.

LEGER DISCOURAGES FUND RAISING BIDS

MONTREAL (CP) — Paul Emile Cardinal Leger said Tuesday he wants "to be as inconspicuous as possible" when he leaves Montreal in mid-December for his new role as a missionary-priest among lepers in Africa.

For this reason, he said, he is discouraging public appeals to raise money on his behalf for his new work. However, he would accept private donations.

In a statement, the cardinal said he wants to leave for Africa without fanfare "and it is my wish that the decision I made might preserve its original meaning."

"Many . . . are sending me offerings and I accept them gratefully. But I am afraid that public appeals, such as those that are being organized, risk creating confusion."

"While I appreciate the generosity that inspired them, may I therefore request that such appeals not be organized and that, where their implementation has already begun, such projects be abandoned."

NO HOLIDAY SIT-IN

Students Must Make Up Time Lost During Protest

PARKSVILLE—Four Qualicum high school students must make up the time they lost Monday when they organized a "no holiday" protest at Parksville Junior High School.

J. L. Nicholls, Qualicum principal, said parents have been interviewed and the students disciplined.

Four students registered at school Monday then left to go to Parksville where more than 50 junior high school students stayed away from school in the afternoon as a protest against not having a Remembrance Day holiday on Monday.

Norman Trim, Parksville Junior High principal, said a number of his students tried a sit-in at school Monday morning but went to classes when told to do so.

More than half the afternoon absentees returned to school before the afternoon was over and apologized for their absence, said Mr. Trim.

One of the organizers of the protest said the students held their own memorial service at the cenotaph.

Earlier Mr. Trim said that few students attended the official service Nov. 11.

Six Homeless After Fire Near Nanaimo

NANAIMO — Silver and crystal family heirlooms were destroyed along with Christmas presents in a house fire which left a family of six homeless Tuesday.

The house was partly insured.

The blaze started in the attic of the Alex Thompson home, Minetown Road, seven miles south of here.

The fire was noticed by Robert, the eldest Thompson boy, as the family sat down to supper.

Fire fighters from four local departments answered the call including volunteer firewomen from Cranberry.

●

NANAIMO — Co-operation with the International Woodworkers of America has been under discussion, the annual convention of the Pulp and Paper Workers was told Tuesday.

Del Pratt, an IWA vice-president, told PPWC delegates that co-operation would be mutually beneficial in 1968 contract negotiations.

Such co-operation, he said, would result in industry-wide bargaining.

●

NANAIMO — Work started Tuesday on a $3,400,000 apartment and town house project that is to take three years to complete.

The 250-unit project is located on a 17-acre tract outside Nanaimo.

●

CAMPBELL RIVER — A two-year suspended sentence on a $1,000 bond was imposed Tuesday on John Francis Upward, 20, found guilty of theft by conversion of union funds.

Involved was $3,000 belonging to the Buttle Lake local of the Mine Mill and Smelter Workers which Upward said he had used to buy a car to be used for union business.

●

DUNCAN — Penni Shaw of Duncan has been awarded a $100 scholarship by the B.C. Association of Teachers of Classics.

The University of Victoria student earned a Latin mark of 91 per cent at Queen Margaret's School last term.

She is continuing the language study at university.

●

DUNCAN — Colored lights will decorate Duncan streets this Christmas.

In the past white lights have been used in order to get maximum street lighting from the decorations, but the lack of color has been criticized.

●

LADYSMITH — Construction here is running at an all-time high and should hit $1,000,000 this year, it was reported Tuesday.

The total so far mainly in a residential building boom, has reached $992,728.

MECHANICS TESTIFY AT INQUEST

Broken Spring Blamed in Fatality

DUNCAN—John Grocott of Duncan was probably unable to avoid a fatal head-on highway collision because a front spring in his pickup truck was broken.

This evidence was given here Tuesday by two mechanics during an inquest into the Oct. 20 death of barber William Hille, 35, of Cobble Hill.

Service manager Murray Rayworth, of Duncan, testified: "In my opinion the spring broke completely before the impact of the accident.

HARD TO SEE

"This could have caused the vehicle to veer sharply to the left and the truck would be almost impossible to control, even at 30 miles an hour."

He added the spring was broken in a place which could be difficult to notice during a routine checkup.

Frederick Fidler, head mechanic at the same garage, said the spring must have been at least partially broken before the accident.

James English of Campbell River stated he was driving behind Hille and had Hille's young son with him.

"As we approached the intersection (at Allenby Road) I saw the half-ton truck which looked to be stopped on the shoulder.

"It pulled out and looked like it was going into the flow of traffic but just as it came abreast of Hille it made an abrupt left-hand turn in front of Hille's car."

Grocott, 54, who testified under the protection of the Canada Evidence Act, told the jury he remembered nothing of the accident.

"I left my engineering shop at Cobble Hill and that's all I remember. I woke up in hospital some time the next morning."

He said he is a non-drinker.

The jury deliberated only 20 minutes before declaring the accident was caused by the pickup leaving the travel portion of the highway to pass a vehicle on the right hand side and then turning sharply to the left into the Hille vehicle."

School District To Explain Bylaw

A public hearing will be held at North Saanich Junior High School at 8 tonight to hear a report on the forthcoming $554,800 supplementary school construction referedum in Rural School District 63.

Ratepayers will vote on the issue Dec. 9.

Crackdown Set On Meter Fudgers

Victoria is launching a pre-Christmas crackdown on parking meter violators who sneak the last hour of paid-parking for free.

Ald. Cecil Parrott, chairman of the city's traffic committee, said Tuesday a recent survey had revealed the majority of downtown on-street parkers are ignoring the meters between the hours of 5 p.m. and 6 p.m.

"We made a check last week and around 5:30 some 45 per cent of the meters were in violation," he said. "Starting immediately we shall be making sure that meters are checked right up until six o'clock."

Ald. Parrott said no tickets were issued during last week's check because it was felt unfair to start ticketing without first issuing a warning.

The crackdown is one of a half-dozen pre-Christmas traffic control suggestions to be advanced by traffic engineer Dave Campbell.

Others to be announced later this week will include total ban on parking on the downtown blocks of View Street, plus temporary one-way traffic to facilitate easy movement during the Christmas rush.

Japan Police Hunt U.S. Pacifist Seamen

TOKYO (AP) — Japanese police are hunting — at U.S. request—for four missing American navy men who criticized U.S. policies in Vietnam and said they wanted to defect to a country not involved in the conflict.

There was speculation the quartet might have taken refuge in a foreign embassy.

Authorities concentrated their search in Tokyo's bookstore district near the headquarters of the Japan Peace fo Vietnam Committee which was believed sheltering the Americans.

The four sailors from the aircraft carrier Intrepid, which is operating off Vietnam, were presented by the committee in a filmed interview Monday. They said they sought "political asylum in Japan or any other country not engaged in the war."

The navy said the sailors had been absent since Oct. 23, two days before the Intrepid left Yokosuka after an eight-day recreational visit.

TWO MEN DIE IN MOLTEN STEEL SPRAY

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Tons of white hot molten steel spewed over 21 men at a foundry Monday, claiming two lives and setting off screams of anguish in what a survivor called a scene of hell.

John Jetton, 39, a metallurgical engineer, and Jerry Copeland, 30, died as a result of the injuries.

Six others were listed in critical condition, three in serious condition and 10 received first aid treatment after the unexplained blast sent 17,000 pounds of liquid steel flying out the end of a large centrifugal molding machine.

Services Industry Next Step?

VANCOUVER (CP) — Registrar-General John Turner said last week he plans to recommend to Parliament the extension of combines legislation to cover service industries.

Mr. Turner said in an interview that service industries represent 35 per cent of the gross national product but are not covered by the Combines Act, which covers trade and commerce.

Mr. Turner, head of the newly-formed federal department of corporate and consumer affairs, said he plans to introduce the necessary amendments to combines legislation but will have to wait until the Economic Council of Canada reports in about a year.

The council is studying the subject of restraints of trade and the need for encouraging more competitive forces in the economy.

The registrar-general also said his department is actively pursuing a policy of enforcing combines legislation. The department has recommended courts set stiffer fines for offences.

"We're going for more meaningful fines, not what they used to be," he said. "They used to be a joke. We're going for fines that reflect the damage done to the public."

Kidnappers Rob Victim Of $50,000

CHICAGO (Reuters) — The wealthy former mayor of a Chicago suburb was kidnapped, held captive for almost a month and robbed of $50,000 worth of negotiable bonds, police announced here.

John M. Hart, 75, former mayor of Blue Island who disappeared Oct. 13, reached his home late last week "bedraggled and incoherent," Police Chief Arthur Schaller said.

Hart is in hospital undergoing treatment for "mild heart failure," police added.

The police chief said Hart, reputed to be worth more than $1,000,000, said he was adequately fed.

But he could give no description of his captors, who never allowed him to get a good look at them and disguised their voices by talking in falsetto tones.

At first, Hart said, he was handcuffed and his legs bound. But later his bonds were removed with a warning to behave himself.

His disappearance sparked a country-wide search by police and the FBI.

OPTIMISTS SALUTE 'BOY OF THE DAY'

What's the matter with kids today?

Optimist clubs of North America say there's little wrong that a pat on the back won't fix. The Optimist motto is "Friend of the Boy".

Accordingly, clubs in Oak Bay, Victoria and the Evening Club have chosen six boys who are representative of their age groups. Each will be "Boy of the Day" during this week.

Jagir was born in 1959 in India, about 350 miles north of New Delhi. His family grew corn, wheat, sugar cane and cotton. He learned English in Grade Five and was in Grade 10 when he came to Canada to join a special class for new Canadians at George Jay School.

●

He has a morning newspaper route and has been praised for his polite manner. He bought his own bike and much of his clothing. Grass hockey was his favorite sport in India.

He came here with his family (he has two brothers and two sisters) in 1966. His father, Spooran Singh, works at Sooke Sawmills.

POLITICAL PLOY, SAYS PERRAULT

'Something Quite Tragic' In Protests by Bennett

Premiers who live in glass houses shouldn't throw stones at federal spending habits, Liberal leader Ray Perrault told a Delta constituency meeting Monday night.

Mr. Perrault's remarks followed a statement by Premier Bennett criticizing the proposed federal tax increases and accusing the provincial Liberal leader of kow-towing to Ottawa.

"Premier Bennett says this inflationary problem is all Ottawa's fault yet two-thirds of all government dollars are spent by the provinces and muncipalities and it's obviously in their power to ease the situation more than the federal government," he said.

NINE PER CENT MORE

Mr Perrault said Dominion Bureau of Statistics figures for last year show federal expenditures at $6.8 billion while the provinces and municipalities combined spent $12.7 billion.

"What's more the rate of increase in spending over the past four years has been nine per cent for the federal government while Mr. Bennett and his counterparts have increased their spending rates twice that amount — 19 per cent.

Mr Perrault said federal expenditures have dropped from 19 per cent of the gross national product in 1963 to 17 per cent of the GNP while other government levels have reached their spending proportion.

"Mr. Bennett, (Ontario Premier) Robarts and their colleagues have conveniently kept from the public the fact that they control more spending than does Ottawa and there is something quite tragic in the social credit leader's attempt to gain political advantage this way at a time when the country is in difficulty.

"The ball is squarly in Mr Bennett's court and that of all the premiers to demonstrate some statesmanship instead of partisanship."

Pacts Take Average Six Months

How long does it take to sign a contract between company and union?

In 47 per cent of 113 major contracts surveyed by the federal labor department in the first half of this year, it took four to six months of negotiations.

Twenty-three per cent of the contracts were negotiated in three months or less but 15 per cent took seven to nine months to complete while another 15 per cent lasted more than nine months.

Of the 113 major contracts, 88 per cent were concluded without a work stoppage. The other 12 per cent, covering 17 per cent of the employees, were signed after a work stoppage.

Head of Bar Backs Free Legal Aid

MONTREAL (CP) — The head of the Quebec Bar Association Monday night threw his organization's full weight behind the concept of comprehensive free legal aid.

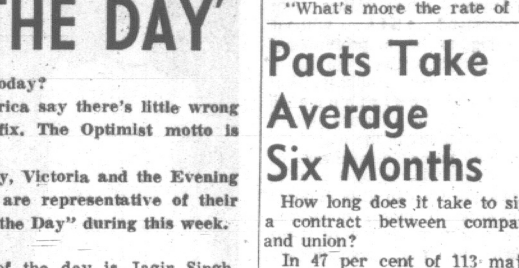

Quebec Batonnier Francois Lajoie told the association's annual dinner that it is clear "the present system is becoming less and less adequate."

The Trois-Rivieres lawyer said there is a need to eliminate what he termed the "spiders" and the "smell of dust" from within the legal profession and noted the process had already begun.

The call for publicly-sponsored legal aid, backed by the bar associations executive committee, was originally made last month by Eme Lacroix, batonnier of the Montreal bar and vice-president of the Quebec Association.

Ottawa, B.C. Will Join To Discuss Super-Port

B.C. SHIP PILOTS IN WORK STOPPAGE

VANCOUVER (CP)—A work stoppage by British Columbia ship's pilots slowed ship traffic through the ports of Vancouver, Victoria and other coastal points today.

Seventy-four pilots, members of the Canadian Merchant Service Guild, refused to guide ships in and out harbors. They said they were awaiting the outcome of grievance discussions between the union and the federal government in Ottawa.

National Harbors Board officials here have granted the captains of ships entering or leaving coastal ports permission to pilot their vessels themselves pending the outcome of the dispute.

Union officials indicated that the pilots plan to return to work Thursday morning. They declined to elaborate on issues involved in the grievance discussions in Ottawa.

Tories Set To Oust Liberals

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, who took his Commons seat for the first time today, says his party will seize any opportunity to defeat the government and thus force an election.

It would be an "act of patriotism" if the Conservatives could oust the Liberals, who had lost the confidence of Canadians, the 53-year-old former Nova Scotia premier said in an interview.

The government now holds exactly half the occupied Commons seats.

Standing in the Commons: Liberals 132, Conservatives, 95, NDP 22, Creditistes 8, Social Credit, 4; Independent 3, vacant 1—total 265.

Mr. Stanfield said the Conservatives will apply the most pressure on the government on the issue of the administration's "mismanagement" of its financial operations.

The major concern for Canadians in the next month or so would be inflation and the government's proposed tax increase, as yet unspecified, he said.

CONSERVATIVE LEADER Robert Stanfield, right, is sworn in today as Member of Parliament for Colchester-Hants in ceremony presided over by Commons clerk Alistair Fraser, in Ottawa today. Mr. Fraser remarked that his father, a former lientenant-governor of Nova Scotia, had sworn in Mr. Stanfield as premier of the province 11 years ago.

Bonner Hails Hellyer Plan

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

The federal and provincial governments today appeared to take a major step towards ending their war of words over the proposed Roberts Bank super-port.

Commercial Transport Minister Robert Bonner this morning welcomed a proposal from Federal Transport Minister Paul Hellyer that the two governments set up a liaison committee and begin serious talks on development of the port.

Mr. Bonner said he would phone Premier Bennett, who is in Ottawa today for a finance ministers' conference, in case the premier wished to start the ball rolling immediately through an informal contact.

He also suggested that he (Bonner) may arrange to meet Mr. Hellyer either before or after the Ontario government's "Confederation for Tomorrow" conference next week at which the attorney-general will represent B.C.

Few Withering Observations

But, the apparently growing spirit of co-operation between the two governments didn't quite reach full bloom as both sides exchanged a few withering observations left over from recent arguments in public.

Mr. Hellyer, noting that Mr. Bonner had accused him of having "tongue in cheek or holes in his head" when the federal minister first proposed co-operation last month, gave notice in his letter that he would release it to the press in order to demonstrate his sincerity to the public.

Unfortunately, although the letter was dated last Friday, Mr. Bonner's office still had not received it this morning and the attorney-general based his welcoming comments on a quick reading of the text obtained by reporters.

"I'm glad Mr. Hellyer has taken the precaution against poor mail delivery by releasing the contents of his letter to the press before I have seen it," he said.

Later Mr. Bonner added that he still didn't know what Mr Hellyer intends because "it's a mode of communications just as unusual as his initial statement was."

But, by the end of the interview, Mr Bonner obviously had second thoughts and asked reporters not to make him appear too acrimonious in his reaction.

"I, of course, welcome the invitation to talk," he replied when asked for his personal response.

"As a result (of the letter) I

SHARP SAYS:

U.S. Economy Must Be Stable

By JAMES NELSON

NEW YORK (CP)—Finance Minister Sharp, on a confidence-restoring visit to this centre of the Western world's financiers, said Tuesday he prays every night for stability in the American economy.

He dismissed as an unequal partnership any idea of a Canada-U.S. economic union, but said a wider free trade area involving North America with Britain and Western Europe might well be studied.

And he told American businessmen that Canada is able to live within the restrictions it accepted on its foreign exchange reserves, in return for exemption for new Canadian securities issues from the U.S. interest equalization tax, which is designed to deter Americans from investing abroad.

These views were expressed by Sharp during a question period following an major address to the Economic Club of New York. In it, he said Canada is moving to restore good health to its inflation-stricken economy, it will continue to need and welcome foreign investment, and it is not going to break up on the issue of Quebec separatism.

Robert V. Roosa, former undersecretary of the U.S. treasury for international affairs and now a partner in the prestige investment firm of Brown Brothers Harriman and Co., describe Sharp's speech as "reassuring to us here."

Roosa fired the questions of the audience of businessmen at the finance minister, saying Americans were "somewhat envious of the forthrightness with which your government has moved towards a temporary tax increase." A request by President Johnson for a 10-per-cent surtax on income tax is bogged down in Congress.

He asked whether the measures he is planning would actually control inflation in Canada, if it isn't stopped in the U.S. He said Canada can't isolate itself. Its economy is so closely bound with the U.S. that "I pray for the stability of the American economy."

Sharp told the financiers frankly: "Wages and prices have been rising at too rapid a rate."

Mueller Held In Panama

BERLIN (Reuters) — A man identified by witnesses as Heinrich Mueller, former head of Hitler's Gestapo and one of the most wanted Nazi war criminals still at large, is under arrest in Panama, a West Berlin justice department spokesman said today.

The announcement said West German authorities were responsible for bringing about the arrest.

Trains Collide

DRUMMONDVILLE, Que. (CP) — Five passengers and four CNR train crew members were taken to hospital today after a head-on collision between a passenger and freight train near this town, 60 miles east of Montreal. CNR officials said two of the crew members, a steward and a fireman, were seriously injured.

PILOT KILLED IN X-15 CRASH

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI) — Air force Maj. Michael J. Adams was killed today when the record-holding X15 rocket ship crashed in the desert after a malfunction of controls at an altitude of 50 miles.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the veteran pilot was not able to eject himself from the stricken craft although it has escape capabilities. It was his 11th flight in an X15.

"We're not sure what happened," said a NASA spokesman. "He just plunged back in."

Adams had taken off in a nearly routine flight of the No. 3 experimental ship. He was launched from beneath the wing of a huge eight-jet B52 bomber high over Delamar Lake northwest of Las Vegas, Nev.

The ship smashed into the desert about 50 miles north of this desert base. There was no fire, the spokesman said.

It was the first fatal accident involving the X15 program in its eight years of existence.

Labor Supports Tax Proposals

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Labour Congress today threw its support behind recommendations of the Carter royal commission on taxation, and expressed concern about the "organized hostility" other groups have shown to the Carter report.

"We are disturbed by the extraordinary lengths to which the report's detractors have gone," the CLC said in 9,500-word brief to Finance Minister Sharp.

Carter's ability-to-pay principle for taxation is wholly appropriate, the brief says.

If the government follows the commission's approach in tax reform next year "it is inconceivable that the majority of taxpayers would be dissatisfied with the outcome."

"We believe that the Carter proposal to tax capital gains is neither unfair nor the harbinger of the death blow to initiative as some critics would have us believe," says the brief.

Without this measure, working people would continue to bear a disproportionately large share of the nation's tax burden.

The CLC favored integration of personal and corporate income taxes for a trial period and supported taxation of the family unit with some changes.

It expressed reservations about proposals to tax fringe benefits and to treat co-operatives like other business enterprises for tax purposes.

Top-Level Talks Called by LBJ

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has summoned his military and diplomatic leaders to a White House meeting on the Vietnam war—a war he says could cut even deeper into his public support.

"I may wind up with a poll of one per cent before it's over with," he is reported to have said recently.

But underlining his determination to pursue his stated goal of peace with honor in Vietnam regardless of public opinion, he used this quote from Lincoln during his toast Tuesday night at a White House reception for Premier Eisaku Sato of Japan:

"Let us have faith that right makes might, and let us . . . dare to do our duty as we understand it."

Johnson said: "It is taking time and patience to win peace in the world. But it will be won if we have the faith to uphold Lincoln's first principle."

George Christian, White House press secretary, said the top-level meeting today was expected to include discussion of whether there should be a U.S. halt in bombing of North Vietnam during the year-end holidays.

BIG BOOST PUTS APPEAL AT 89.6 PER CENT

United Red Feather Red Cross Appeal today got a boost from the Hudson's Bay Company.

Its donation of $14,052 made up of $8,052 from employees and $6,000 from the company, brought the appeal total to $537,644, or 89.6 per cent of the target.

Campaign chairman G. F. Auchinleck and divisional chairmen are now making a special effort to bring in the remaining $62,356.

Repeat calls are being made to the business divisions and an appeal has gone out to householders who have not been contacted to phone 385-6708 or 384-3501 to have donations collected.

MEDICAL BREAKTHROUGH DEMONSTRATED IN TORONTO

Spinal Cord Mend Lets Paraplegics Move

TORONTO (CP) — With a dramatic demonstration at a Toronto hotel Tuesday night, a surgeon unveiled a technique that allows persons paralyzed from spinal-cord injuries to regain the use of their limbs.

Dr. Gordon Murray, 73, of Toronto, speaking at the annual dinner of the Toronto East General and Orthopedic Hospital Research Foundation, had attendants wheel in on a bed a 24-year-old accident victim paralysed from the shoulders down since October, 1963.

Before the operation, Dr. Murray said, the victim, Bertram Proulx of St. Jean de Cherbourg, Que., "was utterly hopeless—in hopeless despair." He could not move his hands or elbows and he breathed with his diaphragm, unable to expand his chest.

Mr. Proulx then lifted himself to a sitting position, unassisted, by pulling on slings attached to a bar over the bed. After resting, he then, with the aid of nurses, moved off the bed to a standing position on the floor, supporting himself by his elbows on a walker, a mobile device used for support.

"He hasn't moved a joint for three years," Dr. Murray said.

The patient moved one arm above his head at the bidding of a nurse and later heaved himself into a comfortable position in bed and took a drink from a glass.

Dr. Murray, honored for pioneering work in open heart surgery and development of the artificial kidney, said his research to disprove the textbook theory that the spinal cord could not be mended began eight years ago.

He and his associates cut the spinal cords of animals while they were under anesthetics to emulate the human condition, then tried to bring the ends together exactly opposite each other.

"My theory was that the reason the cord doesn't regenerate is that the ends are not in apposition," Dr. Murray said.

The difficulty was in bringing this about, he said. The spinal cord is made up of more than 30,000,000 axons or nerve cells and forms a soft tissue which cannot be sewn.

He said he cut through the spinal cord, removed the damaged portion, cut through the surrounding bone to shorten the cord and brought the ends together. This required special tools to bore a curved hole through the bone so it could be wired together.

Dr. Murray showed pictures of rabbits used in his research experiments. One, with its spinal cord cut through, was on its feet after three months and was energetic and active after five months.

He said improvement in humans begins to show about the third month after surgery.

The thing that encouraged him and his associates to try the operation on humans was the hopelessness of paraplegics and quadriplegics, Dr. Murray said.

Other methods have been tried in an attempt to get spinal cords to regenerate, including the use of saliva of mice, snake venom, extract of cancer of mice—all without success. The secret is shown to be bringing the ends of the cord into apposition.

He said later that two of the seven patients operated on by him to date had not shown improvement. They suffered from a spinal cord lesion in which the cells were destroyed.

GENERAL ENCOURAGED BY PROGRESS OF WAR

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gen. William Westmoreland arrived from Saigon today "very, very encouraged" over progress of the Vietnam war effort but unhappy about the prospect of any year-end bombing pause.

The United States war commander also denied he was under administration pressure to score major military victories before the 1968 elections.

Arthur Mayse

You know as much as I do about the Reverend Doctor Cotesworth Pinckney Lewis, of Williamsburg, Virginia, and that is very little indeed.

Monday's Associated Press piece defines Dr. Lewis as an Episcopalian, which is an Anglican with an American accent and outlook. The photograph that accompanies the story of his challenge to his country's president shows us a tough, good-humored face above the clerical round collar.

We are told further that he is a conservative Southern Democrat; but when he spoke from his pulpit last Sunday to a congregation that included Lyndon Baines Johnson, he did not deal in such terms as a minister of that political persuasion might be expected to use.

What rector Lewis delivered to the president was something mighty like an old-fashioned churching.

Though loyal to his leader, he bluntly declared himself appalled by a war in which civilian casualties run so high. Then, to cap all, he observed that most nations see the American purpose in Vietnam as "a form of neo-colonialism."

★

I doubt any American head of state from George Washington down—and, ironically, it happened to be Washington's favorite pew which the Johnsons occupied—was ever so dealt with from the pulpit.

Whether a scandalized flock will permit Dr. Lewis to continue in his post remains to be seen. But the fact remains that the rector, hitherto a stranger to controversy, probably preached the best Veterans' Day sermon delivered in all his broad land.

Whatever else may be said of the rector and his views, I prefer to remember him as a brave man who met his hour head-on and made the most of it.

I would also like to believe that at least one highly-placed Canadian churchman took advantage of our own Remembrance Day weekend to challenge the rightness of permitting the manufacture in Canada of napalm components for the cindering of men, women and children.

But if any such call to conscience was issued, it does not appear to have been recorded, and the Canadian protest is left mostly to the young in their hornets'-nest universities.

Meanwhile, the never-declared war drags on toward its second decade, and the Virginia rector's remarks to his church's visitor from the White House are but an echo of the bewilderment and dismay that has spread across the United States.

★

The hawk is still dominant down there, but the signs are plain that his feathers have taken a very severe ruffling. There have been too many escalations—too many reverses and disappointments—for the thinking American to accept the Communist organizer as the bogeyman responsible for each loud dissent from presidential policies.

Dr. Lewis, after all, is by birth, breeding and convictions about as far from Communism as a man can get.

As to where this war will end, nobody can say, although the beginning of the end may arrive with the 1968 presidential elections. We can only hope that our neighbors emerge from their tribulations firmly minded to avoid such pitfalls in future.

The lesson failed to take in Korea, but Vietnam should provide sufficient cure for the messianic complex that leads a large nation to attempt to solve a small one's internal problems by force of arms.

I am even optimistic enough to believe that the United States, strayed godfather to the United Nations, will one day accept the grand dream of international settling of non-domestic disputes, its own included.

I do not suppose we will hear much more about the Rev. Dr. Lewis, a man who, as another of his nation did long before him, fired a shot heard round the world. He may have thrown his congregation into a tizzy, but he gave voice to thoughts that badger many a concerned American and Canadian today.

NO PANIC ABOUT POWDER

An asbestos powder used by schoolchildren and described by Victoria health officials as potentially dangerous, was today dismissed as "relatively innocuous" by Vancouver's senior medical health officer.

"We have tested a sample of the powder used in Vancouver schools and find there is no justification for recalling it," Dr. Gerald Bonham said in an interview.

The Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health warned Tuesday that asbestos powder used for modelling in kindergartens and elementary schools is potentially dangerous.

Senior Medical Officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread said letters will be sent to principals of all such schools in the district pointing out that even short exposures to the powder can produce irritation and inflammation of the lungs.

FIBRES BLAMED

Dr. Whitbread said that even when the powder is moistened for modelling the fumes could be harmful to children.

"Only a very small percentage of people who use the powder might be affected by it but we have to take care of that percentage," he said.

"It is the fibres in the asbestos which cause the irritation."

Dr. Bonham said his department was warned about the possible dangers of asbestos powder a couple of weeks ago.

"We understood that this powder has been used for modelling in schools for years," he stated.

"So we sent a sample of the powder used in Vancouver schools to the city analyst and we now find it is a relatively innocuous fibre."

Cafe Owner Buys Former 'Y' Building

Victoria's old YMCA building at the corner of Blanshard and View, was bought today by Paul Arsens of Paul's Restaurants Ltd.

Mr. Arsens bid $52,500 for the 53-year-old brick building at a sheriff's sale in Victoria Law Courts. It was the highest of 24 bids made by 22 businessmen attending the public sale, directed by the B.C. Supreme Court.

"We intend to tear down the building," Mr. Arsens said, "but we have definite plans for the site. Much will depend on future plans for Blanshard Street."

"The site could be used for many purposes. It could be a restaurant, a theatre or a parking lot."

The old building, disused since the new Y building was opened at 880 Courtney, was to have been converted into a hotel by local developer Tage Borge Larsen.

But Commonwealth Trust Company held the original mortgage on the building for $60,000. The company took action through the B.C. Supreme Court, and the court directed that the property should be sold to the highest bidder at a public auction.

This morning's auction was conducted by Eric Wilkinson, sheriff of the county of Victoria, in the sheriff's office.

DEAD SILENCE

For five minutes after he called for bids there was dead silence.

"Surely, you gentlemen haven't come here for nothing," smiled Mr. Wilkinson. "Who will bid $50,000?"

Three minute's silence followed. Then Mr. Wilkinson asked for an opening bid of $25,000 and it was met. Over a period of half an hour the bidding climbed very slowly by small figures to $50,000.

Sheriff Wilkinson then consented to a five-minute adjournment, while bidders considered whether they would go any higher. After the break, $51,700, $52,000 and $52,500 were offered.

The final bid was called three times, after whch Mr. Arsens was declared the purchaser, subject to the approval of the court, which is expected later this week.

Earlier, a spokesman for Commonwealth Trust Company said the old Y building was "as solid as a rock" and he hoped whoever purchased the property would convert it into a hotel.

Woman Fined $100 For Shoplifting

A 59-year-old woman today was fined $100 for shoplifting.

Ann Minos, 915 Oliver, was charged in central court with stealing several small articles from Hudson's Bay Co. Nov. 7. The total value of the loot was $4.96.

COLIN RUTHERFORD
. . . 'don't write about me'

Open-Liner Fouls Saanich

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Does Saanich smell?

A radio station commentator says yes, Reeve Hugh Curtis says no and council will hear all about it Monday night.

It all began when a woman telephoned the open-line program of Station CKDA and observed there is a "blue curtain" in Esquimalt and a "tweed curtain" in Oak Bay.

But how do you tell when you're in Saanich?

By the smell, said commentator Walter Connell.

He later told The Times he was referring to sewage pollution of ditches in Saanich.

'ILL-INFORMED'

The remark triggered a letter from Reeve Curtis to Keith McKenzie, executive vice-president of CKDA.

"I view an ill-informed and poorly-considered remark such as this with the strongest possible distaste," he wrote.

"I believe you would feel as strongly about this as I do if you were chief magistrate of this municipality. Other comments by your weekend moderator from time to time indicate he is sadly lacking in detailed knowledge of the Greater Victoria area and he is given to making exaggerated and generalized statements about various problems in this community.

"I cannot emphasize too strongly my objection to the statement this man made. It is not warranted, it is not accurate and it reflects not only on the program but on your radio station."

APOLOGY

Mr. McKenzie replied, saying he wanted to apologize for "any embarrassment caused you or members of your council."

He said sewage and garbage disposal are Saanich's greatest problems and the topic has been raised on many occasions.

Mr. Connell had made a "facetious remark, and after listening to the tape of the broadcast we believe it could only be taken in that context and certainly not seriously."

SUCCESSFUL SHOW

CKDA has had "great success" with its open-line show, "and I think you can readily understand that with that much conversation (40 hours weekly) on the air there are bound to be some badly-worded statements creep in."

Both letters will be read to Saanich council at its meeting Monday night, as well as a third one from Mr. Connell in which he asks to appear before council.

Mr. Connell told The Times he will tell council he is aware of local issues. He also said he has since been taken off the weekend open-line program.

He wanted a hearing before council to answer the reeve's letter and to "point out some things the people are not aware of."

FLAG UNIT PROTESTS EXPULSION

The president of the Canadian Ensign and Union Jack Society said today the organization was refused permission to parade with the Royal Canadian Legion to Victoria Cenotaph on Armistice Day.

Mrs. Daisy Beckett said the society aplied to the Legion's Britannia branch and was turned down.

"No reason was given and the same thing happened last year. We are determined to fight this discrimination against our society and it will be a fight to the finish."

Mrs. Beckett said the society will ask David Groos, MP for Victoria, to raise the matter in Ottawa and will also approach Premier Bennett and Mayor Hugh Stephen of Victoria.

She said although permission to join the parade was refused, officers of the society did take part in the service at Victoria Cenotaph.

Mrs. Beckett's son, Robert, who is mascot of the society, placed a wreath, as he has done for three years past, and there were two flag-bearers, Reuben Bott and George Babcock, carrying the Red Ensign and the Union Jack.

Mrs. Beckett attended as president of the society with Mrs. Margaret Derbyshire, vice-president.

A spokesman for the zone council of the Royal Canadian Legion said today:

"No veteran is refused permission to join our parade. All are welcome. But we do stipulate that the Canadian Ensign cannot be carried in the parade. This is because the Legion now recognizes the Maple Leaf as the official flag of Canada."

Saanich Meeting To Hear Expert From California

A California man is being flown to Victoria to speak at a public meeting tonight on sewage disposal.

He is Albert Marino, chief of the division of environmental health of Placer County near Lake Tahoe in the northern part of the state.

Announcement was made by Roy Ralfs, president of the Saanich Action Committee, the ratepayers group sponsoring tonight's meeting at 8 at Mount View High School.

CITY NONAGENARIAN GUARDIAN ANGEL TO KING HAROLD'S CHURCH

He Gave Quietly But the Secret's Out

By PETE LOUDON

An elderly Victoria man is the revered benefactor of an ancient church in the tiny English town of Waltham Abbey.

The generosity of Colin H. Rutherford, 90, of 1227 Beach Drive, was revealed today by Rev. R. H. Darby, vicar of the church built more than nine centuries ago by King Harold.

Mr. Rutherford has given $57,000 to restoration and maintenance of the church in the past seven years, said the vicar.

"What I've done there I've just done quietly. Don't write about me. Write about Waltham Abbey," Mr. Rutherford said modestly in an interview today.

But Mr. Darby, wishing to acknowledge a recent gift of $3,000 "to buy something special for the church," felt the secret donor should be known to all.

"We cannot adequately express our thanks," said the vicar.

"I am sure Mr. Rutherford knows the esteem and affection with which we hold him."

The vicar said Mr. Rutherford was born in the market town 15 miles north of London and left as a young man to seek his fortune. He became wealthy as a China coast trader before settling in Victoria 40 years ago with his wife and son, Colin P. Rutherford, who now is a city investment dealer.

Mr. Rutherford senior returned to his birthplace seven years ago. He learned that money was required to restore the old church, a project now completed. The abbey sent Mr. Rutherford a silver salver, suitably engraved, on his birthday last Sept. 16.

Mr. Rutherford says the abbey was built at the site of an ancient cross which was supposed to have healing powers.

King Harold came to it racked with disease and was cured. He built the abbey in 1060 in thanksgiving. Six years later he died with an arrow in his eye after vainly battling the Norman invasion of William the Conqueror.

The abbey was built as a Roman Catholic church and as such it was destroyed by Henry VIII when he led England away from Rome.

Rebuilt and rededicated in 1966 by Princess Margaret as an Anglican place of worship, its beauty is famous.

The people of Waltham Abbey also sent Mr. Rutherford an engraved album of photographs of the project, including a statue of King Harold, which Mr. Rutherford's gifts provided.

Thieves Get $1,000 In Union Centre Raid

21 Offices Hit; Doors Shattered

Burglars ransacked numerous offices in the Union Centre building on Quadra Street in an overnight break-in.

Close to $1,000 was stolen and about $1,000 property damage occurred, mainly to office doors which were forced open with a crowbar.

Damage was being cleaned up this morning as city detectives investigated.

Two safes, one in the United Brotherhood of Carpenters office and the other in the Victoria Labour Council, were forced open.

Burglars appeared to have swung a sledgehammer against a corner, slightly lifting it, and then prying the door open with a bar.

INSURED

The carpenters union was checking losses, but president John Schibli said the maximum possible loss was between $500 and $600. He believed insurance covered the loss.

Thirty dollars was stolen from the safe in the labor council office.

Other losses included $81 from the B.C. Ferry Employees Union, $40 from a cigarette machine and $20 from a coffee fund.

Twenty-one of the 22 offices in the building were broken into. The only exception was the International Union of Operating Engineers.

Several unions, including the painters, typographical and laborers, had no money on hand but the burglars ripped out a wall cabinet and pulled filing cabinets apart before finding this out.

The Victoria Labour Council Credit Union office was among those broken into, but no money was stolen.

Union Centre caretaker Earle Allen said a check was being made to see if insurance on the building covers the broken doors.

BROKE WINDOW

The burglars gained entry by smashing a window at the top of the main auditorium towards the rear of the building and dropping a rope to the floor.

It was presumed they methodically broke into each office except one over a period of several hours including forcing open the two safes.

Mr. Allen said there was a break-in three years ago at the Union Centre but little was stolen.

REAR-ADMIRAL STIRLING
. . . 'exciting prospects'

FULL-TIME

Foundation Names Stirling

Retired Rear-Admiral Michael G. Stirling of Victoria has been appointed director of the University of Victoria Foundation, it was announced today.

Announcement of his appointment as the foundation's first full-time offical was made by chairman Tom Denny, also of Victoria.

The foundation was established by provincial statute 13 years ago to receive and administer funds and properties donated to what was then Victoria College for scholarships and other similar purposes.

The foundation's investment holdings now stand at $140,500.

As director Admiral Stirling will develop contacts with members of the community who have a special interest in the development of higher education in Victoria and who wish to contribute to further advancement.

"I am excited about the possibilities for the future of the University of Victoria," Admiral Stirling said. "It obviously should become one of the great universities of Western Canada."

HELP NEEDED

But, he said, to achieve this status it is obvious that the interest and help of private citizens as well as corporations is a necessity.

"The more interest, initiative and contributions that can be mobilized, the faster the progress will be."

Admiral Stirling retired in 1966 after two years as Maritime Commander (Pacific) at Esquimalt. Born in Kelowna in 1915, he joined the navy as a cadet at 18.

Over a 33-year career he held a wartime destroyer command, was director of naval communications in Ottawa and served two years at NATO headquarters in Norfolk, Virginia. From 1962 to 1962 he was Chief of Naval Personnel in Ottawa.

Hidden Jar Nets Thief $1,050 Cash

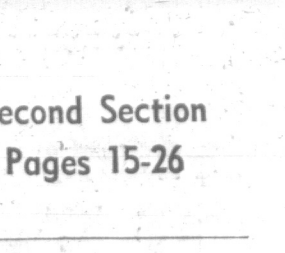

A 78-year-old women who put $1,050 in a jar in her bedroom has reported the money stolen.

Mrs. Anna Johansen, 1472 Stroud, told police she had planned to take a trip and had paid in advance.

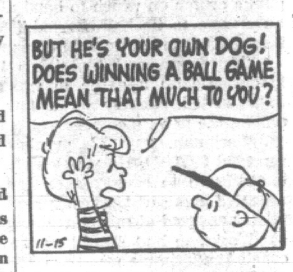

She later changed her mind and went to the Silver Threads Service, administrators of the trip, and received a refund in the form of a cheque for $1050.

She said she took the cheque to a bank, cashed it in denominations of 50s and 20s, and put the money in a jar which she hid in a return air vent in her room.

According to police, sometime later she checked and the jar was empty. City detectives are investigating.

'ONE OF THE BEST'

Baird Rapped Hard For Manager Attack

Ald. Robert Baird ran into heavy crossfire from fellow aldermen today for his Tuesday attack on city manager Dennis Young.

Ald. Baird, seeking re-election to city council in December, said the city manager was not fulfilling his duties and was farming out to independent research firms work he should be doing himself.

"Ridiculous," snapped Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow. "Mr. Young is, as far as I am concerned, one of the smartest and best informed city managers in this country.

"And that is not just my opinion. He has just been elected general chairman of the Institute of Public Administration of Canada, he was the main speaker at their Montreal convention earlier this year, he is a member of the national executive of that group, a member of the standing committee on municipal financing of the Candian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, and goodness knows what else.

'ENDLESS ACCOLADES'

"The list of accolades paid this man appears endless."

Ald. Edgelow said he not only disagreed with Ald. Baird's accusation but also the method he chose to launch it.

"I think it a pretty poor way to open an election campaign, selecting an employee who can't enter the forum of public debate.

"Apart from my general disappointment at the attitude of Ald. Baird I also think he is guilty of a serious breach of confidence. The meeting in the mayor's office took the form of a preliminary discussion on department head salaries. We do the same thing every year, going over the problem in a confidential way before debating the final conclusions in open council.

'RIDICULOUS'

"I can only repeat that the entire attitude of Ald. Baird on this matter is ridiculous."

The usually mild-mannered Ald. Cecil Parrott also took exception to Ald. Baird's criticism.

"It was completely uncalled for," Ald. Parrott said.

"What surprises me is that after sitting on council for four years Ald. Baird suddenly comes out with a statement like this. If he feels this way he must have felt like it for some time. How come he's never made the charge before in council?

'EXCELLENT JOB'

"Mr. Young, in my opinion, is doing an excellent job. And anyone who is around city hall every day, as I am, will confirm that.

"Ald. Baird's attack cannot be justified and it is most unfortunate that he chose the few weeks before the election to make it."

Ald. Percy Frampton said he did not always see eye to eye with Mr. Young, "but that in no way reflects on his competency."

"I have to say that although I may disagree with him from time to time he is definitely a competent man. I do not think we would be able to replace him very easily."

Ald. Hugh Ramsay also criticized Ald. Baird's action.

"Launching an attack of this kind at a time like this takes a civic election campaign to a pretty poor level," he said.

"I heartily concur with the comments of my colleagues. The comments of Ald. Baird were unprovoked and unjustified."

Uvic Students May Protest Dow Recruiters

Uvic students appear likely to follow the lead of UBC students who Tuesday staged a sit-in to protest a Canadian chemical company's recruitment program.

About 300 UBC students protested the appearance of two representatives of the Dow Chemical Co. of Canada Ltd., on campus to interview job applicants.

The protestors alleged the company makes a chemical used in napalm fire bombs geing dropped in Vietnam.

Dow representatives are due on campus here Nov. 29.

Ask The Times

Q. How does the height of the Husky Tower in Calgary compare to the space needle in Seattle? W.G.D.D.

A. The Husky Tower is 610 feet to the tip of the needle. The Seattle tower is 606 feet according to the official World Fair 1962 guide. The Times' figure of 210 feet for the Calgary tower under a picture in the Nov. 14 issue was a typographical error.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Kiwi Veteran Receives Medal 52 Years After Gallipoli

GEORGE BONHAM
. . . recognition at last

Fifty-two years after an historic First World War campaign, a Victorian has received a medallion to mark his role in it.

At 75, George Bonham of 845 Burdett can still recall the bloody days of the Gallipoli landing in the Dardanelles campaign.

And so at last has the New Zealand government.

Last week Mr. Bonham received by mail a bronze medallion, a lapel pin and a certificate paying tribute to his part as a trooper in the army of New Zealand.

On one side of the heavy dark medal is a strange picture—a donkey carrying a slumping soldier.

But it touches the memory of any who were there in April of 1915 when thousands died in battle with Turkish and German troops.

"When we landed on Gallipoli we lost almost all our stretcher bearers," Mr. Bonham explained. "But there was a donkey wandering on the beach and a private named Simpson, a stretcher bearer, used the donkey to help carry the wounded.

"Everyone knew him. He and the donkey were up and down the mountainside picking up the wounded."

Both Simpson and the donkey were killed. The medallion is in part a tribute to them too.

Mr. Bonham was visiting in New Zealand when the First World War broke out. He was one of the first to join up and in a matter of months was training in Egypt before fighting in the canal campaign and then at Gallipoli.

He was wounded twice there and sent to Gibraltar to recuperate.

A sheet metal worker, he was a member of the Canadian Corps of Commissionaires until retiring four years ago.

'I Will Be Back,' Says Shirley As Anti-Viet Candidate Wins

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — Shirley Temple Black, former child movie star attempting a political debut, was defeated Tuesday for the Republican nomination for Congress by Paul N. McCloskey, Korean war hero who advocates American disengagement from the Vietnam war.

McCloskey, 40, Navy Cross and Silver Star winner, faces Democrat Roy A. Archibald, 47, in a Dec. 12 runoff election for San Mateo County's 11th District seat, vacated through the death of J. Arthur Younger, a Republican.

Mrs. Black told her supporters: "I will be back. This was my first race and now I know how the game is played. I plan to dedicate my life and energies to public service because I think my country needs it now more than ever."

With all of San Mateo County's 575 precincts counted today, McCloskey rolled up 52,878 votes to 34,521 for Mrs. Black.

Archibald polled 15,069 votes against 8,813 for Edward M. Keating, his nearest Democratic rival.

The campaign confrontation between McCloskey and Mrs. Black, 39, now a housewife and mother of three, was mainly on the Vietnam issue.

She urged leaving conduct of the war to the joint chiefs of staff, "the experienced military leaders of the United States."

In a victory statement, McCloskey declared voters had endorsed his ideas "for pressing for negotiations to gradually disengage U.S. forces from Vietnam."

Archibald, the Democratic nominee, also is a critic of present Vietnam policy.

SHE FLEW THROUGH THE AIR

BIG TIMBER, Mont. (UPI) —The search for the driver of a demolished convertible ended here Tuesday when she fell from the sky at the feet of a startled state trooper.

Montana highway patrolman Ken Thorne arrived at the scene moments after a late convertible went off the road rolled over and burned.

He found passenger Antoinette Lnude, of Billings, Mont., who had been thrown clear and was uninjured. But there was no sign of the driver, Patty Kennan of Billings.

As Thorne stod wondering, Miss Kennan dropped to the ground at his feet. She suffered only minor injuriees.

The impact of the accident had thrown her 25 feet up in the air and she came to rest unconscious, on the cross arm of a utility pole. She fell to the ground when she regained consciousness.

Seven City Investors Tell of Loss

Seven investors in the multi-million dollar Chateau Victoria complex told an extradition hearing in magistrate's court Tuesday of thousands of dollars lost.

The witnesses are among 32 crown counsels Lloyd McKenzie and Kenneth Murphy plan to call in an attempt to extradite Charles Warren Beeler, an American now living in San Francisco, charged here with nine counts of fraud.

Beeler was a key figure in the financial wrangling the crown says surrounded the ambitious residential complex for old people that was to be built near the Esquimalt lagoon.

All investors had similar stories to tell.

Dr. Peter Banks, a specialist in internal medicine, testified he lost $22,000 after Beeler convinced him to invest. Neurologist Dr. Robert Peet told the hearing he lost $12,500.

Leonard Glinz, former manager of the Colony Motel, told the court he bought one share for $5,000. He said his wife worked seven months in the office of BHP Investments, the company behind the project, and is still owed for salary.

Montague Collins, former owner of the Sidney Taxi, testified that he lost his business over the deal.

He said Beeler persuaded him to sign a note for purchase of four $5,000 shares and assured him he would have exclusive taxi rights to the complex.

Collins said although Beeler stated he would be responsible for the note, it wound up endorsed in the hands of a mortgage company and Collins was forced to pay it off.

Kenneth Nordal of C & C Taxi, said Beeler also offered his firm exclusive transportation rights and as a result he bought a share.

Capt. William Holmes and Dr. Ralph Shepherd testified they each purchased two of the $5,000 Shares. Dr. Shepherd said he was told contracts had been let for construction of the Chateau.

Deputy Sheriff William Lee told the court many claims against Beeler were setled when Mrs. Beeler's goods and chattels were seized, but no money ever came from Beeler himself.

The hearing was continuing today before Magistrate William Ostler. The testimony will be forwarded to an American judge who will decide whether or not the offences are extradictable.

Drug Ring Believed Shattered

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police said Tuesday they believe they have broken the major marijuana distributing ring in the Pacific Northwest.

Two weekend raids — one in Vancouver and the second in Seattle — netted a total of 114 pounds of the drug, which police estimate is worth $146,000 on the illicit market.

The first seizure of seven kilograms of marijuana—15 pounds—was made in Vancouver Sunday, and led city police to contact Seattle narcotics experts.

As a result 45 kilograms—99 pounds—were seized in a Seattle motel.

Investigators said the narcotics were destined for illicit markets in B.C. and Washington State.

LEGER DISCOURAGES FUND RAISING BIDS

MONTREAL (CP) — Paul Emile Cardinal Leger said Tuesday he wants "to be as inconspicuous as possible" when he leaves Montreal in mid-December for his new role as a missionary-priest among lepers in Africa.

For this reason, he said, he is discouraging public appeals to raise money on his behalf for his new work. However, he would accept private donations.

In a statement, the cardinal said he wants to leave for Africa without fanfare "and it is my wish that the decision I made might preserve its original meaning."

"Many . . . are sending me offerings and I accept them gratefully. But I am afraid that public appeals, such as those that are being organized, risk creating confusion."

"While I appreciate the generosity that inspired them, may I therefore request that such appeals not be organized and that, where their implementation has already begun, such projects be abandoned."

CONSERVATIVE LEADER Robert Stanfield, right, is sworn in today as Member of Parliament for Colchester-Hants in ceremony presided over by Commons clerk Alistair Fraser, in Ottawa today. Mr. Fraser remarked that his father, a former lientenant-governor of Nova Scotia, had sworn in Mr. Stanfield as premier of the province 11 years ago.

STANFIELD:

Tories Set To Oust Liberals

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, who took his Commons seat for the first time today, says his party will seize any opportunity to defeat the government and thus force an election.

It would be an "act of patriotism" if the Conservatives could oust the Liberals, who had lost the confidence of Canadians, the 53-year-old former Nova Scotia premier said in an interview.

The government now holds exactly half the occupied Commons seats.

Standing in the Commons: Liberals 132, Conservatives, 95, NDP 22, Creditistes 8, Social Credit, 4, Independent 3, vacant 1—total 265.

Mr. Stanfield said the Conservatives will apply the most pressure on the government on the issue of the administration's "mismanagement" of its financial operations.

The major concern for Canadians in the next month or so would be inflation and the government's proposed tax increase, as yet unspecified, he said.

GENERAL ENCOURAGED BY PROGRESS OF WAR

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gen. William Westmoreland arrived from Saigon today "Very, very encouraged" over progress of the Vietnam war effort but unhappy about the prospect of any year-end bombing pause.

The United States war commander also denied he was under administration pressure to score major military victories before the 1968 elections.

"There is no attitude by my higher command to accentuate this pressure because they appreciate this is my business, my job," he said.

On the war itself, the general said "I've never been more encouraged" since he went to Vietnam nearly four years ago. "We are really making progress over there. We have beaten them to the punch every time. They have been looking for a spectacular victory and we have denied it to them," he said.

AG Welcomes Hellyer Proposal

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

The federal and provincial governments today appeared to take a major step towards ending their war of words over the proposed Roberts Bank super-port.

Commercial Transport Minister Robert Bonner this morning welcomed a proposal from Federal Transport Minister Paul Hellyer that the two governments set up a liaison committee and begin serious talks on development of the port.

Mr. Bonner said he would phone Premier Bennett, who is in Ottawa today for a finance ministers' conference, in case the premier wished to start the ball rolling immediately through an informal contact.

He also suggested that he (Bonner) may arrange to meet Mr. Hellyer either before or after the Ontario government's "Confederation for Tomorrow" conference next week at which the attorney-general will represent B.C.

Few Withering Observations

But, the apparently growing spirit of co-operation between the two governments didn't quite reach full bloom as both sides exchanged a few withering observations left over from recent arguments in public.

Mr. Hellyer, noting that Mr. Bonner had accused him of having "tongue in cheek or holes in his head" when the federal minister first proposed co-operation last month, gave notice in his letter that he would release it to the press in order to demonstrate his sincerity to the public.

Unfortunately, although the letter was dated last Friday, Mr. Bonner's office still had not received it this morning and the attorney-general based his welcoming comments on a quick reading of the text obtained by reporters.

"I'm glad Mr. Hellyer has taken the precaution against poor mail delivery by releasing the contents of his letter to the press before I have seen it," he said.

Later Mr. Bonner added that he still didn't know what Mr Hellyer intends because "it's a mode of communications just as unusual as his initial statement was."

But, by the end of the interview, Mr Bonner obviously had second thoughts and asked reporters not to make him appear too acrimonious in his reaction.

"I, of course, welcome the invitation to talk," he replied when asked for his personal response.

"As a result (of the letter) I

Carter Tax Changes Backed by Labor Body

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Labour Congress today threw its support behind recommendations of the Carter royal commission on taxation, and expressed concern about the "organized hostility" other groups have shown to the Carter report.

"We are disturbed by the extraordinary lengths to which the report's detractors have gone," the CLC said in 9,500-word brief to Finance Minister Sharp.

Carter's ability-to-pay principle for taxation is wholly appropriate, the brief says.

If the government follows the commission's approach in tax reform next year "it is inconceivable that the majority of taxpayers would be dissatisfied with the outcome."

"We believe that the Carter proposal to tax capital gains is neither unfair nor the harbinger of the death blow to initiative as some critics would have us believe," says the brief.

Without this measure, working people would continue to bear a disproportionately large share of the nation's tax burden.

The CLC favored integration of personal and corporate income taxes for a trial period and supported taxation of the family unit with some changes.

It expressed reservations about proposals to tax fringe benefits and to treat co-operatives like other business enterprises for tax purposes.

PILOT KILLED IN X-15 CRASH

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI) — Air force Maj. Michael J. Adams was killed today when the record-holding X15 rocket ship crashed in the desert after a malfunction of controls at an altitude of 260,000 feet.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the veteran pilot was not able to eject himself from the stricken craft although it has escape capabilities. It was his 11th flight in an X15.

"We're not sure what happened," said a NASA spokesman. "He just plunged back in."

Adams had taken off in a nearly routine flight of the No. 3 experimental ship. He was launched from beneath the wing of a huge eight-jet B52 bomber high over Delamar Lake, northwest of Las Vegas, Nev.

The ship smashed into the desert about 50 miles north of this desert base. There was no fire, the spokesman said.

It was the first fatal accident involving the X15 program in its eight years of existence.

Top-Level Talks Called by LBJ

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has summoned his military and diplomatic leaders to a White House meeting on the Vietnam war—a war he says could cut even deeper into his public support.

"I may wind up with a poll of one per cent before it's over with," he is reported to have said recently.

But underlining his determination to pursue his stated goal of peace with honor in Vietnam regardless of public opinion, he used this quote from Lincoln during his toast Tuesday night at a White House reception for Premier Eisaku Sato of Japan:

"Let us have faith that right makes might, and let us . . . dare to do our duty as we understand it."

Johnson said: "It is taking time and patience to win peace in the world. But it will be won if we have the faith to uphold Lincoln's first principle."

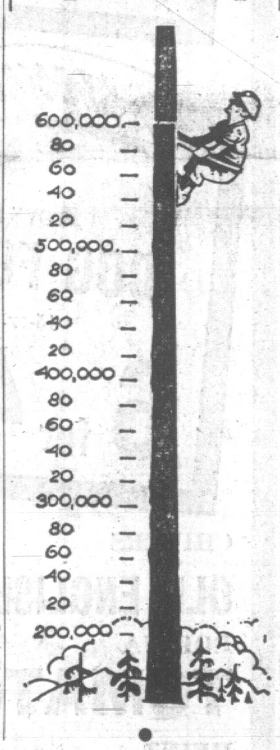

George Christian, White House press secretary, said the top-level meeting today was expected to include discussion of whether there should be a U.S. halt in bombing of North Vietnam during the year-end holidays.

B.C. SHIP PILOTS IN WORK STOPPAGE

VANCOUVER (CP)—A work stoppage by British Columbia ship's pilots slowed ship traffic through the ports of Vancouver, Victoria and other coastal points today.

Seventy-four pilots, members of the Canadian Merchant Service Guild, refused to guide ships in and out harbors. They said they were awaiting the outcome of grievance discussions between the union and the federal government in Ottawa.

National Harbors Board officials here have granted the captains of ships entering or leaving coastal ports permission to pilot their vessels themselves pending the outcome of the dispute.

Union officials indicated that the pilots plan to return to work Thursday morning. They declined to elaborate on issues involved in the grievance discussions in Ottawa.

'I Will Be Back,' Says Shirley As Anti-Viet Candidate Wins

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — Shirley Temple Black, former child movie star attempting a political debut, was defeated Tuesday for the Republican nomination for Congress by Paul N. McCloskey, Korean war hero who advocates American disengagement from the Vietnam war.

McCloskey, 40, Navy Cross and Silver Star winner, faces Democrat Roy A. Archibald, 47, in a Dec. 12 runoff election for San Mateo County's 11th District seat, vacated through the death of J. Arthur Younger, a Republican.

Mrs. Black told her supporters: "I will be back. This was my first race and now I know how the game is played. I plan to dedicate my life and energies to public service because I think my country needs it now more than ever."

SHIRLEY BLACK
. . . 'knows the game'

With all of San Mateo County's 575 precincts counted today, McCloskey rolled up 52,878 votes to 34,521 for Mrs. Black.

Archibald polled 15,069 votes against 8,813 for Edward M. Keating, his nearest Democratic rival.

The campaign confrontation between McCloskey and Mrs. Black, 39, now a housewife and mother of three, was mainly on the Vietnam issue.

She urged leaving conduct of the war to the joint chiefs of staff, "the experienced military leaders of the United States."

In a victory statement, McCloskey declared voters had endorsed his ideas "for pressing for negotiations to gradually disengage U.S. forces from Vietnam."

Archibald, the Democratic nominee, also is a critic of present Vietnam policy.

BIG BOOST PUTS APPEAL AT 89.6 PER CENT

United Red Feather Red Cross Appeal today got a boost from the Hudson's Bay Company.

Its donation of $14,052 made up of $8,052 from employees and $6,000 from the company, brought the appeal total to $537,644, or 89.6 per cent of the target.

Campaign chairman G. F. Auchinleck and divisional chairmen are now making a special effort to bring in the remaining $62,356.

Repeat calls are being made to the business divisions and an appeal has gone out to householders who have not been contacted to phone 385-6708 or 384-0801 to have donations collected.

Stability in U.S. Economy Needed by Canada: Sharp

By JAMES NELSON

NEW YORK (CP)—Finance Minister Sharp, on a confidence-restoring visit to this centre of the Western world's financiers, said Tuesday he prays every night for stability in the American economy.

He dismissed as an unequal partnership any idea of a Canada-U.S. economic union, but said a wider free trade area involving North America with Britain and Western Europe might well be studied.

And he told American businessmen that Canada is able to live within the restrictions it accepted on its foreign exchange reserves, in return for exemption for new Canadian securities issues from the U.S. interest equalization tax, which is designed to deter Americans from investing abroad.

These views were expressed by Sharp during a question period following an major address to the Economic Club of New York. In it, he said Canada is moving to restore good health to its inflation-stricken economy, it will continue to need and welcome foreign investment, and it is not going to break up on the issue of Quebec separatism.

Robert V. Roosa, former undersecretary of the U.S. treasury for international affairs and now a partner in the prestige investment firm of Brown Brothers Harriman and Co., describe Sharp's speech as "reassuring to us here."

Roosa fired the questions of the audience of businessmen at the finance minister, saying Americans were "somewhat envious of the forthrightness with which your government has moved towards a temporary tax increase." A request by President Johnson for a 10-per-cent hike in taxes is bogged down in Congress.

He asked whether the measures he is planning would actually control inflation in Canada, if it isn't stopped in the U.S. He said Canada can't isolate itself. Its economy is so closely bound with the U.S. that "I pray for the stability of the American economy."

Sharp told the financiers frankly: "Wages and prices have been rising at too rapid a rate."

MEDICAL BREAKTHROUGH DEMONSTRATED IN TORONTO

Spinal Cord Mend Lets Paraplegics Move

TORONTO (CP) — With a dramatic demonstration at a Toronto hotel Tuesday night, a surgeon unveiled a technique that allows persons paralyzed from spinal-cord injuries to regain the use of their limbs.

Dr. Gordon Murray, 73, of Toronto, speaking at the annual dinner of the Toronto East General and Orthopedic Hospital Research Foundation, had attendants wheel in on a bed a 24-year-old accident victim paralysed from the shoulders down since October, 1963.

Before the operation, Dr. Murray said, the victim, Bertram Proulx of St. Jean de Cherbourg, Que., "was utterly hopeless—in hopeless despair." He could not move his hands or elbows and he breathed with his diaphragm, unable to expand his chest.

Mr. Proulx then lifted himself to a sitting position, unassisted, by pulling on slings attached to a bar over the bed. After resting, he then, with the aid of nurses, moved off the bed to a standing position on the floor, supporting himself by his elbows on a walker, a mobile device used for support.

"He hasn't moved a joint for three years," Dr. Murray said.

The patient moved one arm above his head at the bidding of a nurse and later heaved himself into a comfortable position in bed and took a drink from a glass.

WILL WALK AGAIN

Dr. Murray, honored for pioneering work in open heart surgery and development of the artificial kidney, said his research to disprove the textbook theory that the spinal cord could not be mended began eight years ago.

He and his associates cut the spinal cords of animals while they were under anesthetics to emulate the human condition, then tried to bring the ends together exactly opposite each other.

"My theory was that the reason the cord doesn't regenerate is that the ends are not in apposition," Dr. Murray said.

The difficulty was in bringing this about, he said. The spinal cord is made up of more than 30,000,000 axons or nerve cells and forms a soft tissue which cannot be sewn.

He said he cut through the spinal cord, removed the damaged portion, cut through the surrounding bone to shorten the cord and brought the ends together. This required special tools to bore a curved hole through the bone so it could be wired together.

Dr. Murray showed pictures of rabbits used in his research experiments. One, with its spinal cord cut through, was on its feet after three months and was energetic and active after five months.

He said improvement in humans begins to show about the third month after surgery.

The thing that encouraged him and his associates to try the operation on humans was the hopelessness of paraplegics and quadriplegics, Dr. Murray said.

Other methods have been tried in an attempt to get spinal cords to regenerate, including the use of saliva of mice, snake venom, extract of cancer of mice—all without success. The secret is shown to be bringing the ends of the cord into apposition.

He said later that two of the seven patients operated on by him to date had not shown improvement. They suffered from a spinal cord lesion in which the cells were destroyed.

PARAPLEGIC for the last three years, Bertram Proulx, 24, of St. Jean de Cherbourg, Que., sits in a car after dramatic demonstration in Toronto Tuesday night of new surgical technique to repair damaged spinal cords. (CP Wirephoto.)

GRAIN

WISNNIPEG (CP)—The flaxseed market became active towards the close of the Wiinipeg grain exchange today as fairly liberal offerings moved into the market depressing prices.

Earlier, prices moved in a narrow range taking some stimulation from steady European oilseed prices.

Arthur Mayse

You know as much as I do about the Reverend Doctor Cotesworth Pinckney Lewis, of Williamsburg, Virginia, and that is very little indeed.

Monday's Associated Press piece defines Dr. Lewis as an Episcopalian, which is an Anglican with an American accent and outlook. The photograph that accompanies the story of his challenge to his country's president shows us a tough, good-humored face above the clerical round collar.

We are told further that he is a conservative Southern Democrat; but when he spoke from his pulpit last Sunday to a congregation that included Lyndon Baines Johnson, he did not deal in such terms as a minister of that political persuasion might be expected to use.

What rector Lewis delivered to the president was something mighty like an old-fashioned churching.

Though loyal to his leader, he bluntly declared himself appalled by a war in which civilian casualties run so high. Then, to cap all, he observed that most nations see the American purpose in Vietnam as "a form of neo-colonialism."

★

I doubt any American head of state from George Washington down—and, ironically, it happened to be Washington's favorite pew which the Johnsons occupied—was ever so dealt with from the pulpit.

Whether a scandalized flock will permit Dr. Lewis to continue in his post remains to be seen. But the fact remains that the rector, hitherto a stranger to controversy, probably preached the best Veterans' Day sermon delivered in all his broad land.

Whatever else may be said of the rector and his views, I prefer to remember him as a brave man who met his hour head-on and made the most of it.

I would also like to believe that at least one highly-placed Canadian churchman took advantage of our own Remembrance Day weekend to challenge the rightness of permitting the manufacture in Canada of napalm components for the cindering of men, women and children.

But if any such call to conscience was issued, it does not appear to have been recorded, and the Canadian protest is left mostly to the young in their hornets'-nest universities.

Meanwhile, the never-declared war drags on toward its second decade, and the Virginia rector's remarks to his church's visitor from the White House are but an echo of the bewilderment and dismay that has spread across the United States.

★

The hawk is still dominant down there, but the signs are plain that his feathers have taken a very severe ruffling. There have been too many escalations—too many reverses and disappointments—for the thinking American to accept the Communist organizer as the bogeyman responsible for each loud dissent from presidential policies.

Dr. Lewis, after all, is by birth, breeding and convictions about as far from Communism as a man can get.

As to where this war will end, nobody can say, although the beginning of the end may arrive with the 1968 presidential elections. We can only hope that our neighbors emerge from their tribulations firmly minded to avoid such pitfalls in future.

The lesson failed to take in Korea, but Vietnam should provide sufficient cure for the messianic complex that leads a large nation to attempt to solve a small one's internal problems by force of arms.

I am even optimistic enough to believe that the United States, strayed godfather to the United Nations, will one day accept the grand dream of international rather than national settling of all non-domestic disputes, its own included.

I do not suppose we will hear much more about the Rev. Dr. Lewis, a man who, as another of his nation did long before him, fired a shot heard round the world. He may have thrown his congregation into a tizzy, but he gave voice to thoughts that badger many a concerned American and Canadian today.

NO PANIC ABOUT POWDER

An asbestos powder used by schoolchildren and described by Victoria health officials as potentially dangerous, was today dismissed as "relatively innocuous" by Vancouver's senior medical health officer.

"We have tested a sample of the powder used in Vancouver schools and find there is no justification for recalling it," Dr. Gerald Bonham said in an interview.

The Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health warned Tuesday that asbestos powder used for modelling in kindergartens and elementary schools is potentially dangerous.

Senior Medical Officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread said letters will be sent to principals of all such schools in the district pointing out that even short exposures to the powder can produce irritation and inflammation of the lungs.

FIBRES BLAMED

Dr. Whitbread said that even when the powder is moistened for modelling the fumes could be harmful to children.

"Only a very small percentage of people who use the powder might be affected by it but we have to take care of that percentage," he said.

"It is the fibres in the asbestos which cause the irritation."

Dr. Bonham said his department was warned about the possible dangers of asbestos powder a couple of weeks ago.

"We understood that this powder has been used for modelling in schools for years," he stated.

"So we sent a sample of the powder used in Vancouver schools to the city analyst and we now find it is a relatively innocuous fibre."

Cafe Owner Buys Former 'Y' Building

Victoria's old YMCA building at the corner of Blanshard and View, was bought today by Paul Arsens of Paul's Restaurants Ltd.

Mr. Arsens bid $52,500 for the 53-year-old brick building at a sheriff's sale in Victoria Law Courts. It was the highest of 24 bids made by 22 businessmen attending the public sale, directed by the B.C. Supreme Court.

"We intend to tear down the building," Mr. Arsens said, "but we have definite plans for the site. Much will depend on future plans for Blanshard Street."

"The site could be used for many purposes. It could be a restaurant, a theatre or a parking lot."

The old building, disused since the new Y building was opened at 880 Courtney, was to have been converted into a hotel by local developer Tage Borge Larsen.

But Commonwealth Trust Company held the original mortgage on the building for $60,000. The company took action through the B.C. Supreme Court, and the court directed that the property should be sold to the highest bidder at a public auction.

This morning's auction was conducted by Eric Wilkinson, sheriff of the county of Victoria, in the sheriff's office.

DEAD SILENCE

For five minutes after he called for bids there was dead silence.

"Surely, you gentlemen haven't come here for nothing," smiled Mr. Wilkinson. "Who will bid $50,000?"

Three minute's silence followed. Then Mr. Wilkinson asked for an opening bid of $25,000 and it was met. Over a period of half an hour the bidding climbed very slowly by small figures to $50,000.

Sheriff Wilkinson then consented to a five-minute adjournment, while bidders considered whether they would go any higher. After the break, $51,700, $52,000 and $52,500 were offered.

The final bid was called three times, after whch Mr. Arsens was declared the purchaser, subject to the approval of the court, which is expected later this week.

Earlier, a spokesman for Commonwealth Trust Company said the old Y building was "as solid as a rock" and he hoped whoever purchased the property would convert it into a hotel.

Woman Fined $100 For Shoplifting

A 59-year-old woman today was fined $100 for shoplifting.

Ann Minos, 915 Oliver, was charged in central court with stealing several small articles from Hudson's Bay Co. Nov. 7. The total value of the loot was $4.96.

COLIN RUTHERFORD
. . . 'don't write about me'

Open-Liner Fouls Saanich

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Does Saanich smell?

A radio station commentator says yes, Reeve Hugh Curtis says no and council will hear all about it Monday night.

It all began when a woman telephoned the open-line program of Station CKDA and observed there is a "blue curtain" in Esquimalt and a "tweed curtain" in Oak Bay.

But how do you tell when you're in Saanich?

By the smell, said commentator Walter Connell.

He later told The Times he was referring to sewage pollution of ditches in Saanich.

'ILL-INFORMED'

The remark triggered a letter from Reeve Curtis to Keith McKenzie, executive vice-president of CKDA.

"I view an ill-informed and poorly-considered remark such as this with the strongest possible distaste," he wrote.

"I believe you would feel as strongly about this as I do if you were chief magistrate of this municipality. Other comments by your weekend moderator from time to time indicate he is sadly lacking in detailed knowledge of the Greater Victoria area and he is given to making exaggerated and generalized statements about various problems in this community.

"I cannot emphasize too strongly my objection to the statement this man made. It is not warranted, it is not accurate and it reflects not on the program but on your radio station."

APOLOGY

Mr. McKenzie replied, saying he wanted to apologize for "any embarrassment caused you or members of your council."

He said sewage and garbage disposal are Saanich's greatest problems and the topic has been raised on many occasions.

Mr. Connell had made a "facetious remark, and after listening to the tape of the broadcast we believe it could only be taken in that context and certainly not seriously."

SUCCESSFUL SHOW

CKDA has had "great success" with its open-line show, "and I think you can readily understand that with that much conversation (40 hours weekly) on the air there are bound to be some badly-worded statements creep in."

Both letters will be read to Saanich council at its meeting Monday night, as well as a third one from Mr. Connell in which he asks to appear before council.

Mr. Connell told The Times he will tell council he is aware of local issues. He also said he has since been taken off the weekend open-line program.

He wanted a hearing before council to answer the reeve's letter and to "point out some things the people are not aware of."

FLAG UNIT PROTESTS EXPULSION

The president of the Canadian Ensign and Union Jack Society said today the organization was refused permission to parade with the Royal Canadian Legion to Victoria Cenotaph on Armistice Day.

Mrs. Daisy Beckett said the society aplied to the Legion's Britannia branch and was turned down.

"No reason was given and the same thing happened last year. We are determined to fight this discrimination against our society and it will be a fight to the finish."

Mrs. Beckett said the society will ask David Groos, MP for Victoria, to raise the matter in Ottawa and will also approach Premier Bennett and Mayor Hugh Stephen of Victoria.

She said although permission to join the parade was refused, officers of the society did take part in the service at Victoria Cenotaph.

Mrs. Beckett's son, Robert, who is mascot of the society, placed a wreath, as he has done for three years past, and there were two flag-bearers, Reuben Bott and George Babcock, carrying the Red Ensign and the Union Jack.

Mrs. Beckett attended as president of the society with Mrs. Margaret Derbyshire, vice-president.

A spokesman for the zone council of the Royal Canadian Legion said today:

"No veteran is refused permission to join our parade. All are welcome. But we do stipulate that the Canadian Ensign cannot be carried in the parade. This is because the Legion now recognizes the Maple Leaf as the official flag of Canada."

Saanich Meeting To Hear Expert From California

A California man is being flown to Victoria to speak at a public meeting tonight on sewage disposal.

He is Albert Marino, chief of the division of environmental health of Placer County near Lake Tahoe in the northern part of the state.

Announcement was made by Roy Ralfs, president of the Saanich Action Committee, the ratepayers group sponsoring tonight's meeting at 8 at Mount View High School.

CITY NONAGENARIAN GUARDIAN ANGEL TO KING HAROLD'S CHURCH

He Gave Quietly But the Secret's Out

By PETE LOUDON

An elderly Victoria man is the revered benefactor of an ancient church in the tiny English town of Waltham Abbey.

The generosity of Colin H. Rutherford, 90, of 1227 Beach Drive, was revealed today by Rev. R. H. Darby, vicar of the church built more than nine centuries ago by King Harold.

Mr. Rutherford has given $57,000 to restoration and maintenance of the church in the past seven years, said the vicar.

"What I've done there I've just done quietly. Don't write about me. Write about Waltham Abbey," Mr. Rutherford said modestly in an interview today.

But Mr. Darby, wishing to acknowledge a recent gift of $3,000 "to buy something special for the church," felt the secret donor should be known to all.

"We cannot adequately express our thanks," said the vicar.

"I am sure Mr. Rutherford knows the esteem and affection with which we hold him."

The vicar said Mr. Rutherford was born in the market town 15 miles north of London and left as a young man to seek his fortune. He became wealthy as a China coast trader before settling in Victoria 40 years ago with his wife and son, Colin P. Rutherford, who now is a city investment dealer.

Mr. Rutherford senior returned to his birthplace seven years ago. He learned that money was required to restore the old church, a project now completed. The abbey sent Mr. Rutherford a silver salver, suitably engraved, on his birthday last Sept. 16.

Mr. Rutherford says the abbey was built at the site of an ancient cross which was supposed to have healing powers.

King Harold came to it racked with disease and was cured. He built the abbey in 1060 in thanksgiving. Six years later he died with an arrow in his eye after vainly battling the Norman invasion of William the Conqueror.

The abbey was built as a Roman Catholic church and as such it was destroyed by Henry VIII when he led England away from Rome.

Rebuilt and rededicated in 1966 by Princess Margaret as an Anglican place of worship, its beauty is famous.

The people of Waltham Abbey also sent Mr. Rutherford an engraved album of photographs of the project, incuding a statue of king Harold, which Mr. Rutherford's gifts provided.

Thieves Get $1,000 In Union Centre Raid

REAR-ADMIRAL STIRLING
. . . 'exciting prospects'

FULL-TIME

Foundation Names Stirling

Retired Rear-Admiral Michael G. Stirling of Victoria has been appointed director of the University of Victoria Foundation, it was announced today.

Announcement of his appointment as the foundation's first full-time offical was made by chairman Tom Denny, also of Victoria.

The foundation was established by provincial statute 13 years ago to receive and administer funds and properties donated to what was then Victoria College for scholarships and other similar purposes.

The foundation's investment holdings now stand at $140,500.

As director Admiral Stirling will develop contacts with members of the community who have a special interest in the development of higher education in Victoria and who wish to contribute to further advancement.

"I am excited about the possibilities for the future of the University of Victoria," Admiral Stirling said. "It obviously should become one of the great universities of Western Canada."

HELP NEEDED

But, he said, to achieve this status it is obvious that the interest and help of private citizens as well as corporations is a necessity.

"The more interest, initiative and contributions that can be mobilized, the faster the progress will be."

Admiral Stirling retired in 1966 after two years as Maritime Commander (Pacific) at Esquimalt. Born in Kelowna in 1915, he joined the navy as a cadet at 18.

Over a 33-year career he held a wartime destroyer command, was director of naval communications in Ottawa and served two years at NATO headquarters in Norfolk, Virginia. From 1962 to 1962 he was Chief of Naval Personnel in Ottawa.

21 Offices Hit; Doors Shattered

Burglars ransacked numerous offices in the Union Centre building on Quadra Street in an overnight break-in.

Close to $1,000 was stolen and about $1,000 property damage occurred, mainly to office doors which were forced open with a crowbar.

Damage was being cleaned up this morning as city detectives investigated.

Two safes, one in the United Brotherhood of Carpenters office and the other in the Victoria Labour Council, were forced open.

Burglars appeared to have swung a sledgehammer against a corner, slightly lifting it, and then prying the door open with a bar.

INSURED

The carpenters union was checking losses, but president John Schibli said the maximum possible loss was between $500 and $600. He believed insurance covered the loss.

Thirty dollars was stolen from the safe in the labor council office.

Other losses included $81 from the B.C. Ferry Employees Union, $40 from a cigarette machine and $20 from a coffee fund.

Twenty-one of the 22 offices in the building were broken into. The only exception was the International Union of Operating Engineers.

Several unions, including the painters, typographical and laborers, had no money on hand but the burglars ripped out a wall cabinet and pulled filing cabinets apart before finding this out.

The Victoria Labour Council Credit Union office was among those broken into, but no money was stolen.

Union Centre caretaker Earle Allen said a check was being made to see if insurance on the building covers the broken doors.

BROKE WINDOW

The burglars gained entry by smashing a window at the top of the main auditorium towards the rear of the building and dropping a rope to the floor.

It was presumed they methodically broke into each office except one over a period of several hours including forcing open the two safes.

Mr. Allen said there was a break-in three years ago at the Union Centre but little was stolen.

Uvic Students May Protest Dow Recruiters

Uvic students appear likely to follow the lead of UBC students who Tuesday staged a sit-in to protest a Canadian chemical company's recruitment program.

About 300 UBC students protested the appearance of two representatives of the Dow Chemical Co. of Canada Ltd., on campus to interview job applicants.

The protestors alleged the company makes a chemical used in napalm fire bombs geing dropped in Vietnam.

Dow representatives are due on campus here Nov. 29.

Hidden Jar Nets Thief $1,050 Cash

A 78-year-old women who put $1,050 in a jar in her bedroom has reported the money stolen.

Mrs. Anna Johansen, 1472 Stroud, told police she had planned to take a trip and had paid in advance.

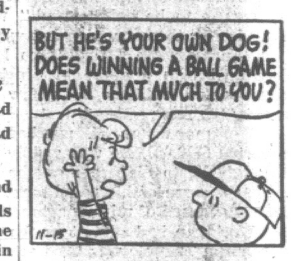

She later changed her mind and went to the Silver Threads Service, administrators of the trip, and received a refund in the form of a cheque for $1050.

She said she took the cheque to a bank, cashed it in denominations of 50s and 20s, and put the money in a jar which she hid in a return air vent in her room.

According to police, sometime later she checked and the jar was empty. City detectives are investigating.

'ONE OF THE BEST'

Baird Rapped Hard For Manager Attack

Ald. Robert Baird ran into heavy crossfire from fellow aldermen today for his Tuesday attack on city manager Dennis Young.

Ald. Baird, seeking re-election to city council in December, said the city manager was not fulfilling his duties and was farming out to independent research firms work he should be doing himself.

"Ridiculous," snapped Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow. "Mr. Young is, as far as I am concerned, one of the smartest and best informed city managers in this country.

"And that is not just my opinion. He has just been elected general chairman of the Institute of Public Administration of Canada, he was the main speaker at their Montreal convention earlier this year, he is a member of the national executive of that group, a member of the standing committee on municipal financing of the Candian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, and goodness knows what else.

'ENDLESS ACCOLADES'

"The list of accolades paid this man appears endless."

Ald. Edgelow said he not only disagreed with Ald. Baird's accusation but also the method he chose to launch it.

"I think it a pretty poor way to open an election campaign, selecting an employee who can't enter the forum of public debate.

"Apart from my general disappointment at the attitude of Ald. Baird I also think he is guilty of a serious breach of confidence. The meeting in the mayor's office took the form of a preliminary discussion on department head salaries. We do the same thing every year, going over the problem in a confidential way before debating the final conclusions in open council.

'RIDICULOUS'

"I can only repeat that the entire attitude of Ald. Baird on this matter is ridiculous."

The usually mild-mannered Ald. Cecil Parrott also took exception to Ald. Baird's criticism.

"It was completely uncalled for," Ald. Parrott said.

"What surprises me is that after sitting on council for four years Ald. Baird suddenly comes out with a statement like this. If he feels this way he must have felt like it for some time. How come he's never made the charge before in council?

'EXCELLENT JOB'

"Mr. Young, in my opinion, is doing an excellent job. And anyone who is around city hall every day, as I am, will confirm that.

"Ald. Baird's attack cannot be justified and it is most unfortunate that he chose the few weeks before the election to make it."

Ald. Percy Frampton said he did not always see eye to eye with Mr. Young, "but that in no way reflects on his competency."

"I have to say that although I may disagree with him from time to time he is definitely a competent man. I do not think we would be able to replace him very easily."

Ald. Hugh Ramsay also criticized Ald. Baird's action.

"Launching an attack of this kind at a time like this takes a civic election campaign to a pretty poor level," he said.

"I heartily concur with the comments of my colleagues. The comments of Ald. Baird were unprovoked and unjustified."

Ask The Times

Q. How does the height of the Husky Tower in Calgary compare to the space needle in Seattle? W.G.D.D.

A. The Husky Tower is 610 feet to the tip of the needle. The Seattle tower is 606 feet according to the official World Fair 1962 guide. The Times' figure of 210 feet for the Calgary tower under a picture in the Nov. 14 issue was a typographical error.

GEORGE BONHAM

Kiwi Veteran Receives Medal 52 Years After Gallipoli

Fifty-two years after an historic First World War campaign, a Victorian has received a medallion to mark his role in it.

At 75, George Bonham of 845 Burdett can still recall the bloody days of the Gallipoli landing in the Dardanelles campaign.

And so at last has the New Zealand government.

Last week Mr. Bonham received by mail a bronze medallion, a lapel pin and a certificate paying tribute to his part as a trooper in the army of New Zealand.

On one side of the heavy dark medal is a strange picture—a donkey carrying a slumping soldier.

But it touches the memory of any who were there in April of 1915 when thousands died in battle with Turkish and German troops.

"When we landed on Gallipoli we lost almost all our stretcher bearers," Mr. Bonham explained. "But there was a donkey wandering on the beach and a private named Simpson, a stretcher bearer, used the donkey to help carry the wounded.

"Everyone knew him. He and the donkey were up and down the mountainside picking up the wounded."

Both Simpson and the donkey were killed. The medallion is in part a tribute to them too.

Mr. Bonham was visiting in New Zealand when the First World War broke out. He was one of the first to join up and in a matter of months was training in Egypt before fighting in the canal campaign and then at Gallipoli.

He was wounded twice there and sent to Gibraltar to recuperate.

A sheet metal worker, he was a member of the Canadian Corps of Commissionaires until retiring four years ago.
